British Advance

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Jan. 6.—The possibility that British troops might sweep past the Italian seaport base at Tobruk and plunge on more than 250 miles across the Libyan sands to attack Bengasi arose tonight even as the advance guard of British motorized units threatened Tobruk's outer defenses.

Tobruk, 70 miles across the desert from Bardia, which the British captured yesterday, is the next natural objective, but it was not quite certain when the British would open a drive on Tobruk or whether they would pass it up for the time being for bigger game—the Cirenaican capital across the desert.

At any rate, the Royal Air Force pounded Tobruk in heavy raids similar to those loosed upon Bardia in the 48 hours preceding the final land attack which culminated in its capture yesterday.

Tons of bombs were dropped on military objectives at the seaport base. The R. A. F. command said one fire was so huge it could be seen in Bardia.

At least one motorized spearhead was reported 20 miles from Tobruk, already blockaded by the British navy to prevent arrival of Italian reinforcements.

Australian troops carefully mopped up the Bardia region preparatory to further operations, while British tanks moved westward, waiting for orders. The list of prisoners reported taken in Bardia rose to more

British Find Captive's Salute to His Legions

Bardia, Libya, Jan. 6 (AP).—In the wreckage of Bardia the British found today copies of an order of the day of Gen. Annibale Bergonzoli, the captured Fascist commander, which began:

"Standing at the summit of Hellfire Pass, I salute the victorious Italian army which trampled underfoot the standard of the enemy which tried to impede you on your victorious march into the Nile valley . . ."

(Presumably this was issued about September 14, when the Italians drove across the border into Egypt.)

Boats Press Search For Body of Flier Lost on War Duty

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 6.—Amy Johnson Mollison, Britain's greatest aviatrix, drowned in the icy waters of the Thames Estuary yesterday after she was forced to bail out of the aircraft she was flying for the air transport auxiliary.

Surface craft tried in vain to rescue the war-working ladybird who had flown, in her spectacular career, from Britain to Australia and to America, Japan and China and across Africa.

A seaman from a nearby balloon-barrage ship plunged into the water and grasped a body, but lost his grip in the buffeting waves. He himself was reported near death from exposure and was unable to say whether the body was that of the aviatrix or possibly that of a passenger.

For hours, searching boats criss-crossed the scene where the 32-year-old flier fell but were unable to find her body.

The searchers did find her flight authorization papers and some gear bearing her name. The papers indicated she was off her course, possibly lost, when her machine dived into the choppy estuary in mid-

First Lady Quits Spanish Loyalist Refugee Mission

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dr. John Haynes Holmes, clergyman, were reported yesterday to have resigned as sponsors of the American Rescue Ship Mission because it was "not under good auspices."

The mission had been raising funds for a ship to bring Spanish Loyalist refugees from Marseille, France, to Vera Cruz, Mexico. It was charged in New York yesterday that Communists and their sympathizers had conceived and largely administered the undertaking. (Details on Page 11.)

Nazi Generals In Rome; Russian Trouble-Shooter Arrives in Sofia

By International News Service

Berlin, Jan. 6.—A momentous Italo-German military conference, which may be a prelude to a joint Axis offensive in the Eastern Mediterranean region, will be held in Rome tomorrow, it was reported in Berlin tonight.

Secrecy surrounded the identity of the persons scheduled to participate in the consultation, but it was understood that the talk will be held on the basis of the recent Innsbruck meeting between the Italian general staff and Marshal William Keitel, chief of the German supreme command.

It was said that any mutual Italo-German offensive in Albania or North Africa would be likely to be preceded by military consultations in Italy, apparently to formulate plans of action.

Soviet Expert in Bulgaria

By the Associated Press

Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 6.—Diplomatic sources regarded joint Russian-Turkish resistance to any German push through Bulgaria as still likely tonight, despite German reports that the U. S. S. R. has agreed to let the Nazis enter and take over Bulgarian territory.

The arrival here of a high official of the Soviet commissariat of foreign affairs, these sources said, suggested that the reports—emanating from official German quarters—might only be wishful thinking.

Diplomatic reports also indicated the Turks have concentrated several hundred thousand crack troops in Thrace, close to the Bulgarian frontier.

Nazis Claim Soviet Approval

Reports given currency by official German quarters in Belgrade said Russia had acquiesced to a German move in Bulgaria on consideration that Germany not oppose Soviet policy either in Finland or Moldavia, the Rumanian area which adjoins Bessarabia, former Rumanian soil already annexed by Russia.

(There was no confirmation of these reports, however, in Russian, Bulgarian, Rumanian or Turkish sources.)

The Russian official, Alexander Mihaicovitch, came to Sofia with the official title of first counselor of the heavily staffed Soviet Legation here.

The Balkans, however, know him as the director of the Middle European division of the Soviet foreign commissariat and as Moscow's outstanding expert on Balkan affairs.

Talk With Boris Reported

Word went the rounds of the chancelleries that Mihaicovitch already has seen both Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff and King Boris, but this was not confirmed.

It was the Greek Orthodox Church's Christmas Eve in Bulgaria and also the sixty-third anniversary of the "freeing" of Sofia from Turkish domination.

Bulgars in Sofia attended ceremonies honoring the Russian dead in the battle which won Sofia and turned them into a prayer that the Soviet would use its weight now to keep the Germans on the Rumanian side of the Danube.

$509,000,000 Sought to Rush 2-Ocean Navy

Vinson Offers Program To Complete Warships Year Ahead of Schedule

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee yesterday presented a $509,000,000 program to expand naval shipbuilding facilities, designed to complete the two-ocean Navy at least a year ahead of schedule.

More than double the outlay authorized for expansion of warship construction facilities last summer, which was calculated to complete the huge building program by 1945, the new Administration-backed measure would authorize additional shipways, shops and ordnance production machinery at existing Navy and commercial yards and plants.

"We particularly want to speed up the building of destroyers and submarines," Vinson stated. "At present additional vessels cannot be laid down until those now building are completed and building ways become available. Under this bill, new ways will be provided, and we hope to finish the program at least a year ahead of time."

The measure was introduced on the eve of a "full-dress" investigation by the House Naval Committee of the progress of shipbuilding and aircraft production. Chairman Vinson announced last night that Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief

Berlin Calls President's Talk 'Sharp'

By the United Press

Berlin, Jan. 6.—Authorized sources tonight termed parts of President Roosevelt's message to Congress "rather sharp" but refused further comment until the entire speech is available.

Early editions of the Tuesday morning newspapers published nothing on the Roosevelt message and made no reference whatever to it.

Bad News to the Italians

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Jan. 6.—President Roosevelt's message to Congress was bad news to the Italians, but it could have been worse. It is realized that the United States is becoming ever more committed to an Axis defeat and that each speech and message of the President is stronger than the last and this was the strongest of all.

Still, Italians remain firmly convinced that before American help can become effective Britain will have been beaten and nothing Mr. Roosevelt said today will make them change that belief.

Congress Gets Set for Record Budget Appeal

Roosevelt Expected To Ask 17 Billions In Defense Estimate

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Placed on notice by the President that national defense will mean "the payment of more money in taxes by all," the Congress is preparing to receive tomorrow a White House budget message that will call for the greatest peacetime expenditures in the history of the country.

The budget message, said in advance to call for appropriations totaling at least $17,000,000,000 will be international in scope.

In line with President Roosevelt's policy of all-out aid to nations fighting aggression, America's expense account for the next fiscal year will cover the cost of weapons for Great Britain, China and Greece, as well as national defense for this country.

Estimates totaling a minimum of $10,000,000,000 for "short-of-war" defense, will pay for Army and Navy activities, but will also cover guns, ships, tanks and airplanes to be loaned and leased to the nations that are fighting the Axis powers across the seas.

Need for Stern Measures

The budget message will also show a need for stern measures of financing, it was said.

The President and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau want the tax exemption privilege removed from all future issues of Federal, State and local bonds. In all likelihood tomorrow's message will refer to that.

The Administration will also ask for a raise in the national debt limit, probably to at least $65,000,000,000, from the present level of

Repayment in Kind

Congressional leaders moved swiftly last night to give legislative force to the President's request for speedy loan of arms to Great Britain and all other free nations at war.

Decision to speed a broad authorization, first through the House, was reached concurrently with the President's address.

House leaders were studying memoranda submitted by both the State and Treasury Departments prior to framing Congress of the necessary statute.

In accordance with the President's wishes, no White House draft has been submitted and Mr. Roosevelt in his message stated only general objectives and no specific terms.

May Amend Pittman Act

In well-informed quarters it was suggested that the bill may be offered as an amendment to the Pittman Act of May 28, 1940, which authorized manufacture and sale to South American republics of ships and munitions.

The amendment is expected to empower the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of War, in their discretion, to lend or lease needed weapons from America's own defense reservoir, equipment either now built, in the making or to be ordered.

Provision would be made for repayment within a reasonable time, either in kind or in goods produced by the democracies aided and vital-

The State of the Union

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday committed this Government to the three-fold national policy of driving forward on defense, aid to besieged democracies and no appeasement.

An intent Congress, assembled for the first time in joint session, heard his gravely-worded warning that American security depends on defeat of the Axis powers.

And overseas, Britain and other nations fighting aggression heard his pledge:

"We shall send you, in ever increasing numbers, ships, planes, tanks and guns."

Against the "so-called new order of tyranny" he envisioned a new order for freedom with "supremacy of human rights everywhere."

Calls for New Taxes

But the more immediate task, he told Congress, is to arm as never before for defense, fitting the arms orders of warring democracies "into our own program."

To pay at least part of new defense costs, he advised members to join with American voters in "putting patriotism above pocketbooks" in a new tax program based on ability to pay. That will call for personal sacrifices, he said, but Americans are willing to make them.

Steel braces, propping the weakened roof of the crowded House chamber, added a stark touch to the scene. Grim faces of his House and Senate audience matched the President's own serious mien.

Axis Envoys Absent

Eyes turned frequently from the floor to the diplomatic gallery found only friendly faces there. No Axis power had sent a representative.

The President declared that never before has American security been so seriously threatened—that the future and safety of this Nation is overwhelmingly involved in the conflict abroad.

Once more he served notice on the dictatorships that America will not be intimidated by threats. Assistance to nations resisting aggression, he fairly shouted, is not an act of war, however aggressors may construe it.

In tones that rose at times to a crescendo, he opposed any peace "dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers."

And in crisp staccato, he put America on notice that the Government will deal with "the few slackers and troublemakers in our

Congress Gets Bill to Cut Draft Ages to 18 to 21

Legislation to change the age limits of men subject to selective service from 21 through 35 to 18 through 21 years was presented in the Senate and House yesterday.

The bill, offered by Chairmen Sheppard and May of the Senate and House Military Affairs Committees, is backed by the American Legion. Both legislators indicated they were introducing it at the Legion's request and were not sponsoring the change.

Besides lowering the age limits, the bill would make the compulsory military training permanent. The existing act will expire in 1945.

Greeks Reported Hurled Back Near Elbasan by Nazi Tanks

By the United Press

Belgrade, Jan. 6.—German tanks leading an Italian counterattack on the western slopes of the Malispatit mountains today hurled back Greek troops attempting to push upon Italy's mid-Albanian base of Elbasan, according to frontier reports.

The German tanks, recently arrived on the northern Albanian front, were said to have been thrown into action in defense of Elbasan and the Albanian capital of Tirana.

A battle was said to have occurred early today after the Greeks had been thrown back to the Malispatit slopes Sunday from their advance positions along the Sterman River.

Two Greek officers, 220 soldiers and a large quantity of war materials were reported captured.

Greek casualties were reported from Struga, on the Yugoslav frontier, to have included five officers and 84 soldiers killed and three officers and 150 soldiers wounded. Italian losses were said to be "very small."

Along Albania's Adriatic coastal sector, where the Greeks are pushing upon the key port and landing base of Valona, against increased Italian resistance, heavy fighting was reported on the northern slopes of Khora Mountains.

The Greeks were said to be continually attacking strong Italian positions, forcing the enemy to withdraw toward Valona in several encounters.

Strategic Retreat

Scott, an Encircled General, To Be Moved for Digging In

Gen. Winfield Scott, like his one-time friend and present neighbor, Gen. George T. Thomas, is in for a roller-coaster ride.

Around the mounted statue of Washington's first Civil War defender, at Sixteenth and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, workmen yesterday were clearing the way for the new Scott Circle underpass, an operation destined to make the general's position insecure for a while.

When serious digging starts later in the month Gen. Scott's statue will be moved to temporary safety at the edge of the circle.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District director of highways, said moving the statue would be one of the first operations when the excavation starts January 25.

He explained that workmen will dig under the statue and its granite base, place steel rollers underneath, and tow it to the new position.

GEN. SCOTT

The statue, cast by Sculptor Henry Kirke Brown, was made from the metal of cannon captured by Gen. Scott's army in the Mexican War, and given to the Government in 1874. Its pedestal is Massachusetts granite, and the base, according to Capt. Whitehurst, is a single oval block weighing 140 tons.

The statue of Gen. Thomas, at Thomas Circle, was given temporary quarters at the edge of its circle during construction of an underpass.

No Bills to Pay, Either

U. S. Drafts Program to Guard Health of Defense Workers

An unprecedented plan to offer federally financed health care to every worker in essential defense industries is being prepared by the Administration, it was learned last night.

The plan, which probably will be presented to Congress in the near future, is what President Roosevelt had in mind yesterday when he said in his annual message that "we should widen the opportunities for adequate medical care."

The United States Public Health Service and the Federal Security Agency are drawing up blueprints for the defense medical program.

So vast is the program that at the start it probably would have to be restricted to essential industries employing about 10,000,000 people.

But full operation of the program might bring health care and medical attention to double or even triple that number.

Industry executives have found out, it was said, that a high level of health pays dividends in production totals. Illness sometimes interrupts the rhythm of production, and more often slows it down.

Insofar as possible, the Government defense health program would work in close cooperation with local medical and dental associations.

Though the Government would pay the bills, medical care probably would be administered by private doctors, thus avoiding any controversy over "socialized medicine."

President Calls For All Aid To 'Friends'

Roosevelt Says Axis Perils Americas; Its Envoys Absent

midst" if patriotic example fails to shame them.

Unsmiling, heedless of the rebel yells and applause that punctuated his speech from the Democratic side, or the silence across the aisle, he exhorted Congress to "great responsibility—and great accountability."

Secret agents of Axis powers and their "dupes" already are here and in Latin America in great numbers, he said. Through these, rather than with an invading army, the aggressors would launch the first phase of their attack on this hemisphere, should Britain fall, he warned.

Serious Danger Cited

The aggressors, so long as they maintain the upper hand, would choose the time, place and method of their attack.

That is why the American republics are in "serious danger," and that is why American efforts must be devoted almost exclusively to meeting this peril, he asserted.

If the democracies should fail in their battle for existence on four continents, the President declared Europe, Asia, Africa and Australasia will be dominated by the conquerors. He said their total populations and resources then would greatly exceed those of this hemisphere.

Single-handed and unprepared, America could not hold off the whole world, and it was "immature" to brag that it could, he said.

Defense Aides Concerned

To prepare this Nation more adequately to defend itself, and to keep munitions flowing to democracies at grips with aggressors, he proposed to ask Congress on Wednesday for "greatly increased new appropriations."

The President said frankly he is concerned over the slowness of defense results in some respects. While Army and Navy have made substantial progress in the year, he said none of those in charge of the program are satisfied with progress made.

While warship construction is ahead of schedule, he said plane deliveries are lagging and "we are working night and day to solve the innumerable problems."

Once again projecting America as an "arsenal" both for its own defense and aid to the democracies, he outlined his plan to lend fighting equipment when British credit for purchase is exhausted.

Expert naval and military authorities would determine how much would be kept and how much would be sent "to our friends who by their determined and heroic resistance are giving us time in which to make ready our own defense."

When peace comes, he said, repayment could be made in similar materials or in other goods "which they can produce and which we need." He left Congress to work out the statutory form.

For the first time in specific terms Mr. Roosevelt advanced a three-point "national policy" which he said stemmed from the will of the people in the last election.

America he said is now committed first to all-inclusive National defense, second to aid to those nations which are "keeping war away from our hemisphere," and third to moral principles that "will never permit us to acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers."

Social Gains Not Forgotten

On these points, he said, there was no substantial difference between the two major parties in the last election.

To bolster "a healthy and strong democracy," he declared himself equally determined to drive forward with the New Deal's social objectives.

He said these could be simply stated as equality of opportunity, jobs for those who can work, security for the needy, ending of special privilege for the few, preservation of civil liberties for all and use of the fruits of scientific progress toward a wider and constantly rising standard of living.

Specifically, he proposed coverage of more citizens under old-age pensions and unemployment insurance, wider opportunities for medical care and "a better system by which persons deserving or needing gainful employment may obtain it."

Four Essential Freedoms"

The President then presented a picture of the world of tomorrow as he hopes it will be—"a world founded upon four essential freedoms."

For people "everywhere in the world," he said, America looks forward to freedom of speech and expression, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

This, he said, was no vision of a distant millenium but a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our time.

"Freedom means supremacy of human rights everywhere," he concluded. "Our support goes to those who struggle to gain those rights or keep them."

'Swift and Driving' Rise in Production Urged on Congress

Text of President Roosevelt's message on British aid, as delivered yesterday afternoon at a joint session of the new Seventy-seventh Congress:

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

I address you, the members of the Seventy-seventh Congress, at a moment unprecedented in the history of the Union. I use the word "unprecedented," because at no previous time has American security been as seriously threatened from without as it is today.

Since the permanent formation of our Government under the Constitution, in 1789, most of the periods of crisis in our history have related to our domestic affairs. Fortunately, only one of these—the four-year War Between the States—ever threatened our national unity. Today, thank God, 130,000,000 Americans in 48 States, have forgotten points of the compass in our national unity.

It is true that prior to 1914 the United States often had been disturbed by events in other continents. We had even engaged in two wars with European nations and in a number of undeclared wars in the West Indies, in the Mediterranean and in the Pacific for the maintenance of American rights and for the principles of peaceful commerce. In no case, however, had a serious threat been raised against our national safety or our independence.

Against Isolation

What I seek to convey is the historic truth that the United States as a Nation has at all times maintained opposition to any attempt to lock us in behind an ancient Chinese wall while the procession of civilization went past. Today, thinking of our children and their children, we oppose enforced isolation for ourselves or for any part of the Americas.

That determination of ours was proved, for example, during the quarter century of wars following the French Revolution.

While the Napoleonic struggles did threaten interests of the United States because of the French foothold in the West Indies and in Louisiana, and while we engaged in the War of 1812 to vindicate our right to peaceful trade, it is, nevertheless, clear that neither France nor Great Britain nor any other nation was aiming at domination of the whole world.

In like fashion from 1815 to 1914—99 years—no single war in Europe or in Asia constituted a real threat against our future or against the future of any other American nation.

Mexican Interlude

Except in the Maximilian interlude in Mexico, no foreign power sought to establish itself in this hemisphere, and the strength of the British fleets in the Atlantic has been a friendly strength. It is still a friendly strength.

Even when the World War broke out in 1914 it seemed to contain only small threat of danger to our own American future. But, as time went on, the American people began to visualize what the downfall of democratic nations might mean to our own democracy.

We need not over-emphasize imperfections in the Peace of Versailles. We need not harp on failure of the democracies to deal with problems of world reconstruction. We should remember that the Peace of 1919 was far less unjust than the kind of "pacification" which began even before Munich, and which is being carried on under the new order of tyranny that seeks to spread over every continent today. The American people have unalterably set their faces against that tyranny.

Every realist knows that the democratic way of life is at this moment being directly assailed in every part of the world—assailed either by arms, or by secret spreading of poisonous propaganda by those who seek to destroy unity and promote discord in nations still at peace.

During 16 months this assault has blotted out the whole pattern of democratic life in an appalling number of independent nations, great and small. The assailants are still on the march, threatening other nations, great and small.

U. S. Safety Involved

Therefore, as your President, performing my constitutional duty to "give to the Congress information of the state of the Union," I find it necessary to report that the future and the safety of our country and of our democracy are overwhelmingly involved in events far beyond our borders.

Armed defense of democratic existence is now being gallantly waged in four continents. If that defense fails, all the population and all the resources of Europe, Asia, Africa and Australasia will be dominated by the conquerors. The total of those populations and their resources greatly exceeds the sum total of the population and resources of the whole of the Western Hemisphere—many times over.

In times like these it is immature—and incidentally untrue—for anybody to brag that an unprepared America, single-handed, and with one hand tied behind its back, can hold off the whole world.

No realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business.

Such a peace would bring no security for us or for our neighbors. "Those, who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."

As a nation we may take pride in the fact that we are soft-hearted; but we cannot afford to be soft-headed.

Attack Is Possible

We must always be wary of those who with sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal preach the "ism" of appeasement.

We must especially beware of that small group of selfish men who would clip the wings of the American eagle in order to feather their own nests.

I have recently pointed out how quickly the tempo of modern warfare could bring into our very midst the physical attack which we must expect if the dictator nations win this war.

There is much loose talk of our immunity from immediate and direct invasion from across the seas. Obviously, as long as the British navy retains its power, no such danger exists. Even if there were no British navy, it is not probable that any enemy would be stupid enough to attack us by landing troops in the United States from across thousands of miles of ocean, until it had acquired strategic bases from which to operate.

But we learn much from the lessons of the past years in Europe—particularly the lesson of Norway, whose essential seaports were captured by treachery and surprise built up over a series of years.

Secret Agents Here

The first phase of the invasion of this hemisphere would not be the landing of regular troops. The necessary strategic points would be occupied by secret agents and their dupes—and great numbers of them are already here, and in Latin America.

As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive, they—not we—will choose the time and the place and the method of their attack.

That is why the future of all American republics is today in serious danger.

That is why this annual message to the Congress is unique in our history.

That is why every member of the executive branch of the Government and every member of the Congress face great responsibility—and great accountability.

The need of the moment is that our actions and our policy should be devoted primarily—almost exclusively—to meeting this foreign peril. For all our domestic problems are now a part of the great emergency.

Justice Must Prevail

Just as our national policy in internal affairs has been based upon a decent respect for the rights and dignity of all our fellow-men within our gates, so our national policy in foreign affairs has been based on a decent respect for the rights and dignity of all nations, large and small. And the justice of morality must and will win in the end.

Our national policy is this:

First, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to all-inclusive national defense.

Second, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to full support of all those resolute peoples, everywhere, who are resisting aggression and are thereby keeping war away from our hemisphere. By this support we express our determination that the democratic cause shall prevail, and we strengthen the defense and security of our own Nation.

Third, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to the proposition that principles of morality and considerations for our own security will never permit us to acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers. We know that enduring peace cannot be bought at the cost of other people's freedom.

In the recent national election there was no substantial difference between the two great parties in respect to that national policy. No issue was fought out on this line before the American electorate. Today it is abundantly evident that American citizens everywhere are demanding and supporting speedy and complete action in recognition of obvious danger.

Speed Up Armament

Therefore the immediate need is a swift and driving increase in our armament production.

Leaders of industry and labor have responded to our summons. Goals of speed have been set. In some cases these goals are being reached ahead of time; in some cases we are on schedule; in other cases there are slight but not serious delays, and in some cases—and, I am sorry to say, very important cases—we are all concerned by the slowness of the accomplishment of our plans.

The Army and Navy, however, have made substantial progress during the past year. Actual experience is improving and speeding up our methods of production with every passing day. And today's best is not good enough for tomorrow.

I am not satisfied with the progress thus far made. The men in charge of the program represent the best in training, ability and patriotism. They are not satisfied with the progress thus far made. None of us will be satisfied until the job is done.

No matter whether the original goal was set too high or too low, our objective is quicker and better results.

Two Illustrations

To give two illustrations:

We are behind schedule in turning out finished airplanes; we are working day and night to solve the innumerable problems and to catch up.

We are ahead of schedule in building warships; but we are working to get even further ahead of schedule.

To change a whole nation from a basis of peace time production of implements of peace to a basis of war time production of implements of war is no small task. And the greatest difficulty comes at the beginning of the program, when new tools and plant facilities and new assembly lines and ship ways must first be constructed before the actual materiel begins to flow steadily and speedily from them.

The Congress, of course, must rightly keep itself informed at all times of the progress of the program. However, there is certain information, as the Congress itself will readily recognize, which, in the interests of our own security and those of the nations we are supporting, must of needs be kept in confidence.

New circumstances are constantly begetting new needs for our safety. I shall ask this Congress for greatly increased new appropriations and authorizations to carry on what we have begun.

I also ask this Congress for authority and for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds, to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations.

Our most useful and immediate role is to act as an arsenal for them as well as for ourselves. They do not need man power. They do need billions of dollars worth of the weapons of defense.

The time is near when they will not be able to pay for them in ready cash. We cannot, and will not, tell them they must surrender, merely because of present inability to pay for the weapons which we know they must have.

I do not recommend that we make them a loan of dollars with which to pay for these weapons—a loan to be repaid in dollars.

I recommend that we make it possible for those nations to continue to obtain war materials in the United States, fitting their orders into our own program. Nearly all of their materiel would, if the time ever came, be useful for our own defense.

Barter Repayment

Taking counsel of expert military and naval authorities, considering what is best for our own security, we are free to decide how much should be kept here and how much should be sent abroad to our friends who, by their determined and heroic resistance, are giving us time in which to make ready our own defense.

For what we send abroad, we shall be repaid, within a reasonable time following the close of hostilities, in similar materials, or, at our option, in other goods of many kinds which they can produce and which we need.

Let us say to the democracies: "We Americans are vitally concerned in your defense of freedom. We are putting forth our energies, our resources and our organizing powers to give you the strength to regain and maintain a free world. We shall send you, in ever-increasing numbers, ships, planes, tanks, guns. This is our purpose and our pledge."

In fulfillment of this purpose we will not be intimidated by the threats of dictators that they will regard as a breach of international law and as an act of war our aid to the democracies which dare to resist their aggression. Such aid is not an act of war, even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be.

When the dictators are ready to make war upon us, they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war.

Free Hand Needed

Their only interest is in a new one-way international law, which lacks mutuality in its observance, and, therefore, becomes an instrument of oppression.

The happiness of future generations of Americans may well depend upon how effective and how immediate we can make our aid felt. No one can tell the exact character of the emergency situations that we may be called upon to meet. The Nation's hands must not be tied when the Nation's life is in danger.

We must all prepare to make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands. Whatever stands in the way of speed and efficiency in defense preparations must give way to the national need.

A free nation has the right to expect full cooperation from all groups. A free nation has the right to look to the leaders of business, of labor, and of agriculture to take the lead in stimulating effort, not among other groups but within their own groups.

The best way of dealing with the few slackers or trouble makers in our midst is, first, to shame them by patriotic example, and, if that fails, to use the sovereignity of government to save government.

Must Have Courage

As men do not live by bread alone, they do not fight by armaments alone. Those who man our defenses, and those behind them who build our defenses, must have the stamina and courage which come from an unshakeable belief in the manner of life which they are defending. The mighty action which we are calling for cannot be based on a disregard of all things worth fighting for.

The Nation takes great satisfaction and much strength from the things which have been done to make its people conscious of their individual stake in the preservation of democratic life in America. Those things have toughened the fibre of our people, have renewed their faith and strengthened their devotion to the institutions we make ready to protect.

Certainly this is no time to stop thinking about the social and economic problems which are the root cause of the social revolution which is today a supreme factor in the world.

Democracy's Bases

There is nothing mysterious about the foundations of a healthy and strong democracy. The basic things expected by our people of their political and economic systems are simple. They are:

Equality of opportunity for youth and for others.

Jobs for those who can work.

Security for those who need it.

The ending of special privilege for the few.

The preservation of civil liberties for all.

The enjoyment of the fruits of scientific progress in a wider and constantly rising standard of living.

These are the simple and basic things that must never be lost sight of in the turmoil and unbelievable complexity of our modern world. The inner and abiding strength of our economic and political systems is dependent upon the degree to which they fulfill these expectations.

Needed Improvements

Many subjects connected with our social economy call for immediate improvement.

As examples:

We should bring more citizens under the coverage of old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

We should widen the opportunities for adequate medical care.

We should plan a better system by which persons deserving or needing gainful employment may obtain it.

I have called for personal sacrifice. I am assured of the willingness of almost all Americans to respond to that call.

A part of the sacrifice means the payment of more money in taxes. In my budget message I recommend that a greater portion of this great defense program be paid for from taxation than we are paying today. No person should try, or be allowed, to get rich out of this program; and the principle of tax payments in accordance with ability to pay should be constantly before our eyes to guide our legislation.

Public Backing Cited

If the Congress maintains these principles, the voters, putting patriotism ahead of pocketbooks, will give you their applause.

In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world.

The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.

The third is freedom from want—which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peace time life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world.

The fourth is freedom from fear—which, translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world.

The Peaceful Change

That is no vision of a distant millennium. It is a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation. That kind of world is the very antithesis of the so-called new order of tyranny which the dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb.

To that new order we oppose the greater conception—the moral order. A good society is able to face schemes of world domination and foreign revolutions alike without fear.

Since the beginning of our American history we have been engaged in change—in a perpetual peaceful revolution—a revolution which goes on steadily, quietly adjusting itself to changing conditions—without the concentration camp or the quick-lime in the ditch. The world order which we seek is the cooperation of free countries, working together in a friendly civilized society.

This Nation has placed its destiny in the hands and heads and hearts of its millions of free men and women; and its faith in freedom under the guidance of God. Freedom means the supremacy of human rights everywhere. Our support goes to those who struggle to gain those rights or keep them. Our strength is in our unity of purpose.

To that high concept there can be no end save victory.

Axis Envoys Conspicuously Not at Capitol

Presence of British, Chinese and Greek Shows Way U. S. Leans

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

If any proof were needed that the United States is not neutral in the wars that rage abroad, that proof was supplied yesterday in the House diplomatic gallery.

Looking down intently as the President delivered his message to Congress were diplomatic representatives of three beleaguered countries—Great Britain, China, Greece.

Conspicuously absent were the representatives of the Axis powers—Germany, Italy, Japan.

Cimon P. Diamantopoulos, the stocky, gray-haired Minister of Greece, was the lion of the day next to President Roosevelt. Flash bulbs exploded around him in great numbers and spectators craned their necks to get a look at him.

A year ago it was tall, handsome Hjalmar Procope, the Minister of Finland, who held the spotlight in the diplomatic gallery. His country was then waging its immortal David-and-Goliath battle against Russia, and the strain was reflected in his face.

Yesterday Minister Procope, a smiling figure in black coat with striped trousers, sat just behind the Soviet Ambassador, Constantine A. Oumansky.

Norse Royalty There

In the adjoining executive gallery at the side of Mrs. Roosevelt sat two royal refugees, Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha, of Norway.

President Roosevelt's speech, the eighth he has delivered to Congress, required 38 minutes for delivery.

Those who listened to the President's message on the radio said that, judging from the applause that came over the air, Congress appeared to be indorsing his remarks with gusto.

From the House gallery, one got a different impression. Applause there was, and in good volume, but most of it arose from the Democratic side of the aisle. The Republicans for the most part just listened. They did not appear to be hostile; rather, they were attentive and seemingly conscious of their role as the "loyal opposition."

President Roosevelt left the White House for the one-mile ride to the Capitol at 1:40 p. m. He wore no hat or overcoat as he got into his limousine with license tag 100. His gray suit appeared to be the same one he wore on a similar occasion, last year.

In other White House cars rode Mrs. Roosevelt, Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha of Norway, Edward F. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. Flynn, and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, the President's personal secretary.

Likened to Wilson's Ride

The caravan, with two cars of Secret Service men and two more loaded with newspaper reporters, swept down Constitution Avenue behind a squadron of motorcycle policemen. A company of National Guardsmen saluted the President at the apex of the Federal Triangle. No crowd was encountered until the President reached the Capitol Plaza, and there only a thin line of spectators had gathered.

The occasion had been likened by some to President Wilson's historic ride to the Capitol in 1917 to read his war message, but there was nothing in yesterday's scene to suggest that parallel unless it was the large number of policemen and plain clothesmen.

Forty Secret Service men and a like number of Washington headquarters detectives were in the Capitol, stationed everywhere from dome to the subway. Besides these there was a complement of FBI men who are always stationed at the Capitol to guard against cranks.

The House chamber itself was jammed long before the President arrived.

Hull and Ickes Absent

When members of the Cabinet were escorted into the chamber by Sergeant at Arms Kenneth Romney, many an onlooker must have thought of the changes that had taken place since 1933. Only one member of that original Cabinet was on hand yesterday—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. There might have been three, but the distinguished figure who usually leads the Cabinet parade—Secretary of State Cordell Hull—was missing because of the illness of Mrs. Hull. Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes also was absent.

As the clock hand pointed to 2 p. m., a gavel sounded, and Doorkeeper Joseph Sinnott cried out, "The President of the United States." The Senators, Representatives and Cabinet officers arose.

Looking unusually solemn, the President came in on the arm of Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, his naval aide. The applause at this point was coming from both the Democratic and Republican sides. In the midst of it, President Roosevelt went to the reading clerk's desk and began his speech, not waiting for Speaker Rayburn to say his line—"Senators and Representatives, I have the distinguished honor to present the President of the United States."

Glass Applauds Heartily

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, who on his eighty-third birthday last week said Uncle Sam ought to send his fleet over to Europe to "shoot hell out of the Axis powers," sat in a front row.

He smiled fondly as he looked up at the President, and joined heartily in the applause.

In contrast to the Virginian was Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, who sat a few rows away. The famed isolationist never once applauded the President. Senator Robert M. LaFollette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, who sat alongside Johnson, likewise kept his hands in his lap. He did, that is, until the end, when he arose with the others and applauded.

So scarce was applause on the Republican side during the speech that two G. O. P. members actually became conspicuous when they clapped their hands. They were both New Yorkers—Representatives Kenneth Simpson and James Wadsworth.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who, with her daughter, Paulina, sat down among the members on the Republican side, looked on the scene through her lorgnette.

Gable, 'Disgustingly Healthy,' And Carole Fly Back Home

FIT FOR WORK AGAIN—Clark Gable, accompanied by his actress-wife, Carole Lombard, boarded an American Airlines sleeper plane at Washington Airport last night for Hollywood, where he will report for work today. Star Likes What President Told Congress and Denies He Lost Tooth; Hopes He Won't Get Fired for Being Late

Wrapped to his famous ears in a drab, brown muffler and puffing a big, black cigar, Clark Gable, with his wife, Carole Lombard, paused in Washington last night long enough to announce he was "disgustingly healthy" after a week's sojourn in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

The couple boarded an American Airlines sleeper plane for California at 6:40 p. m. and Gable said he would report to his Hollywood studio at noon today to begin work on a new picture.

"They've been screaming their heads off out there for me to come back," said Gable. "I'm already overdue—hope they don't fire me."

And contrary to all reports, the movies' "he-man" hero denied he lost a tooth in treatment of his ailing shoulder.

"I had a minor operation—but the docs didn't take a tooth. They did about everything else, though, and I never felt fitter in my life," he said.

The Gables dined at Harvey's Restaurant as guests of Gene Ford and Carter Barron, local Loew's executives, before catching their plane. Yep, Gable had a steak—rare.

The idol of a million or more feminine hearts is getting gray about the temples, but otherwise is the same fellow who took on all comers in "Boomtown." Incidentally, of all his pictures, that was the one in which he had the most fun, Gable confided.

His new production is "Soapy Smith," a story of the early mining days in Colorado. No feminine lead has yet been chosen, but Gable hinted he'd sort of like Hedy Lamarr.

Mrs. Gable—everyone called her that at dinner—said she was planning a three or four months' rest before starting a new picture.

They both agreed the biggest thrill of the trip East was listening to the President's fireside chat in the White House oval room.

"And I liked what he told Congress, too," said Gable.

Roosevelt Due To Sign Order On Arms Board

Hillman Is Expected To Have Authority Equal to Knudsen's

By Louis Stark
Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt is expected to sign and make public this afternoon an Executive Order which, unless last-minute changes are made in the draft, will set up the Office of Production Management, vesting coordinate powers on defense policy in the hands of Secretaries Stimson and Knox, William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman.

The order now on the President's desk would go as far as Administration advisers feel it is safe to go in delegating powers, but a one-man chairman in the sense of a "czar" with supreme powers to speed defense production does not appear in this draft, to which Attorney General Jackson gave the final touches yesterday.

Instead, Hillman, who is also labor commissioner on the National Defense Advisory Commission, appears in the capacity of associate with Knudsen, who will be director. They will have coeval authority in the entire range of defense activities and Hillman will not be relegated to the sole problem of defense labor. Roughly, Hillman's task would be comparable to that of Ernest Bevin in Britain.

The President would still be the Nation's chief defense authority who would make rulings in the event of disagreement by the four-man defense setup.

Administration quarters indicated they felt that if Mr. Roosevelt signs the order in its present form it will be an act of momentous importance to the Nation and particular to labor and industry. The order as drafted will not win the approval of those who have been calling for a chairman to direct the activities of the Defense Commission and of the Office of Production Management.

Instead, so far as labor is concerned, it begins where Executive orders issued in the World War left off. Its provisions are implicit in their recognition of labor not only in an advisory capacity, but it also lays the groundwork for granting labor a status of equality on all boards and committees in the entire defense effort. Labor has been clamoring for this recognition.

Presidential advisers have been saying that unless labor is made coordinate with industry and both are ranked with other governmental factors in the defense task, precious time will be wasted without possibility of recovery.

Others have told the President, however, that unless he places a supreme production and procurement commander on top of the defense machine the organization was likely to bog down for lack of authority at the pyramid of the apex.

Whether these arguments were referred to when Knudsen and Hillman conferred with the President yesterday could not be learned. However, it was indicated that an agreement on the Executive Order had been reached.

Informed guesses are that the national debt will stand at slightly more than $47,000,000,000 at the close of the present fiscal year next June 30. Another $8,000,000,000 or so—next year's estimated minimum deficit—will be added to it in the 1942 fiscal year.

An increase in the debt of that size would mean a debt of at least $55,000,000,000 on June 30, 1942—almost $417 for each of the 130,000,000 men, women and children in the United States.

Would Offer Bonds to Public

In addition to these points, tomorrow's message is said to call for authority to issue billions of dollars in national defense bonds and savings stamps, which would be sold to American citizens with an accompaniment of patriotic pleas, much as in the World War drive to sell Liberty Bonds.

This provision is included because the financial planners of the Administration do not like to see excess reserves continue to pile up in banks. When a bank buys a Government bond the net result is to create more excess bank reserves.

The Administration knows, on the other hand, that when a private citizen buys the bonds, a bank deposit is created, which must be covered by legally fixed bank reserves. This process tends to reduce excess bank reserves, which are regarded as an inflation threat.

Secretary Morgenthau yesterday confirmed the international character of the forthcoming budget by telling his press conference that it will include "very substantial amounts" for foreign governments fighting the Axis.

The Treasury Secretary said that his tax plans are not yet in final stage, but he hinted that the Administration does not look with favor on such proposals as sales taxes or other levies that directly touch consumers.

There were strong indications that the official tax program will carry a recommendation for a flat increase in the basic income-tax rate, which is now 4.4 per cent. Government economists point out how small a sacrifice this rate is, compared to the basic taxes of more than 25 per cent paid in Great Britain.

Secretary Morgenthau also said that before the end of the month the Treasury would offer $500,000,000 in fully taxable defense notes, probably bearing interest at three-fourths of 1 per cent, with a five-year maturity. A similar issue was sold speedily last month.

The issue would be the second in Treasury history to be subject to all Federal taxes.

Meanwhile, the Treasury asked banks for $78,000,000 of Treasury deposits raised by the sale of Government securities.

Dwindling cash in the Treasury's working balance made the call necessary. Treasury officials like to keep the working balance above $1,000,000,000, and it is now approaching that level.

of the bureau of naval aeronautics, will be the first witness called when the group meets at 10:30 this morning.

After naval officials are quizzed on the progress of aircraft procurement, leaders of the aviation industry will be called for testimony on means of speeding up production, Vinson said. Following this, the committee will call other Navy officials for information on the progress of building the new air bases in American territory and on sites acquired from Great Britain.

An inquiry into the training of naval pilots and the progress of shipbuilding will follow—a program expected to last several weeks.

The probe, however, may be laid aside temporarily tomorrow, Vinson indicated, to permit the $509,000,000 shipbuilding facilities bill to be considered. It would authorize $315,000,000 for new shipways, shops, etc., at both Navy and private yards, and $194,000,000 for additional equipment and facilities for the production of armor-plate and other ordnance.

Chairman Vinson said that no additional shipyards are contemplated under the program, as expansion of existing plants will produce quicker results. Much of the money for enlargement of armor-plate production facilities will go to small subcontractors, he stated.

The two-ocean Navy bill authorized the Navy to spend $150,000,000 for new building facilities, plus about $100,000,000 for additional armor and ordnance capacity. Secretary Knox, in a letter to the Naval Committee requesting the new expansion, said the $250,000,000 has been about all spent.

During the day, Secretary Knox also announced that the 50 destroyers transferred to Great Britain in exchange for naval and air base sites in the Atlantic have all been turned over to British authorities. Officially disclosed for the first time were the names of the ships transferred.

The vessels, all over-age ships of World War vintage, were the Abbot, Aulick, Bailey, Bancroft, Branch, Buchanan, Claxton, Conner, Conway, Cowell, Crowinshield, Doran, Edwards, Evans, Fairfax, Foote, Hale, Haraden, Herndon, Hopewell, Hunt, Kalk, Laub, Maddox, Mackenzie, McCalla, McCook, McLanahan, Mason, Meade, Philip, Ringgold, Robinson, Rodgers, Satterlee, Shubrick, Sigourney, Stockton, Swasey, Tillman, Thatcher, Thomas, Twiggs, Abel P. Judge Relents In Alexandria Meter Dispute Threatened contempt of court proceedings against Alexandria police who have disregarded the warning of Judge Reece Duncan that he will tolerate no more arrests involving allegedly defective parking meters on the north side of King Street, failed to materialize yesterday, as four more persons were dismissed on charges based on operation of the north-side meters.

Judge Duncan, who made no comment when he dismissed charges against the four motorists, said he had deferred action against the officers at the request of City Attorney Armistead L. Boothe, who was engaged in another matter, and expressed a desire to be present when the proceedings are inaugurated against the arresting officers.

The wives of Secretary of State Hull and Chief Justice Hughes were "resting comfortably" in Emergency Hospital last night, Mrs. Hughes recovering from a tumor operation and Mrs. Hull undergoing X-ray examinations for a digestive ailment.

Mrs. Hughes, 76, was taken to the hospital Sunday night from her home, 2223 R Street Northwest, and underwent an operation yesterday.

Mrs. Hull's physician, Dr. Matthew White Perry, said she probably would remain in the hospital, where she was taken yesterday afternoon, for a "few days" for observation.

London, Jan. 6 (AP).—Official circles in London tonight termed President Roosevelt's message to Congress "a terse and masterly presentation of the world situation."

"This most interesting speech is being studied with the greatest possible appreciation," it was said.

Praise From Ottawa

Ottawa, Jan. 6 (AP).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, praising President Roosevelt's message to Congress in Washington today, declared in a statement tonight:

"Since the outbreak of war, the forces of freedom have had no support of comparable strength, magnitude and durability."

He described the President's message as "downright, direct and decisive," and said: "If aggressor nations were ever in doubt, they now know where the United States stands and the lengths to which that country is prepared to go in its determination to thwart their ambitions."

The prime minister and most of his cabinet listened to the broadcast of the Roosevelt message.

Victories to Cost England the War, Italians Predict

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Jan. 6.—The Italian short wave radio which has been explaining" the war in Africa as a victory for Italian morale, admitted the fall of Bardia today, but said that "in the light of certain circumstances," the British capture of the port must be regarded as "a Pyrrhic victory."

"A few more such victories and Britain will be brought to her knees," the announcer declared in a broadcast recorded here by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Pointing out that the British were extending their lines with difficulties of reinforcement and replacement while the Italians were operating on interior lines, the announcer added that "we view the British success at Bardia with perfect equanimity."

U. S. to Muster 'Back-Alley' Machine Shops

Railroads' Ability To Meet Defense Needs Being Checked

Steps to mobilize every "back-alley machine shop" and "every ounce of productive power" in the country coincided yesterday with official inquiries designed to make sure that American railroads are equipped to meet every defense requirement.

Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, called on the Nation's manufacturers to survey their plants and men, down to "every square foot of industrial capacity" now unused for defense production.

Fuller, proclaiming January 19-25 as "Preparedness Through Production Week," said in his call:

"Factories and facilities, even to every back-alley machine shop, every obscure country foundry, every hole-in-a-corner shop, every employer of two or three or a dozen mechanics who can perform a productive service to the program of defense building which the present 'terrible urgency' demands be done, must be mustered into the service of supply for embattled democracy.

"In order to do this, we are conducting an exhaustive survey of potential defense facilities of the Nation. Not a square foot of industrial capacity nor an ounce of manufacturing power should be overlooked.

50,000 Questionnaires to Go Out

"The muster must be completed by January 25."

Fuller said that more than 50,000 questionnaires would clear through the National Industrial Council to State and local manufacturing organizations, to be mailed by them to every manufacturer, no matter how small, in their territories.

Results, he added, would be furnished to the National Defense Commission in Washington.

At the same time, the Interstate Commerce Commission told Congress in its annual report that the defense program had raised the question whether the Nation's transportation facilities "will be able to do their part adequately and effectively," but said the answer would have to come from the Defense Commission.

Noting that it had as a transportation specialist, Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, the commission said he and his consultants had better means than the commission of appraising transportation needs.

"Obviously, this question is a very serious one and of vital importance in the defense program," the report continued. "We know, however, that Mr. Budd and his consultants realize its importance and are considering it from every angle."

The commission remarked that each year from 1929 to 1939 the number of freight cars class one railroads retired was greater than the number they acquired. This, the report said, "has particularly given rise to alarm in appraising the needs for the future which will be associated with the defense preparations."

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said recently the railroads "enter 1941 with a plant geared to meet any transportation demands that may be made on them." In 1940, he added, railroads installed in service 75,000 new freight cars and 400 locomotives and had 30,000 freight cars and 180 locomotives under construction. As a result of new construction and repairs to cars, he said the railroads would have at least 160,000 more freight cars available in 1941 than they had two years ago).

The Commisison noted that "railroads are now able, because of improved methods and conditions of operation, to do materially more work per unit of equipment than was the case when they had a greater supply" and that "the capacity of other forms of transportation has greatly increased."

Leaders Appointed For Jewish Center Membership Drive

Division chairmen and team captains appointed to lead the Jewish Community Center's annual membership enrollment campaign were announced last night by Drive Chairman Burnett Siman and Dr. Maurice Goldberg. The campaign will officially open tonight with a mass meeting of all workers in the Cafritz auditorium of the center. The goal is 2,000 members for 1941.

Mrs. Samuel Rudolph will head the service council division of the drive; Genevieve Lavin, the girls' clubs division; Wolf Wittenberg, the boys' clubs division, and Natie Brown, the gymnasium division.

Team captains who will head groups of from 5 to 15 workers, include:

Irving Slossman, Samuel Bossin, Joseph Tuhman, Alice Kurland, Mrs. Z. Kellman, Mae Friedman, Lenell Goodman, Yetta Levine, Abe Besoner, Milton Berkowits, Bernice Epstein, Al Leichtling, Mrs. J. Pondiller, Gitta Novick, Shulamith Novick, Jerry Fine, Irma Friedman, David Wallace, Mrs. Dorothy Street, Dr. Ivy A. Felsman, Bea Berman, Sara Letvin, Mrs. Joel Wolfsohn, Mrs. Paul Shulman, Mrs. Max Kandel, I. Kartzinel, Milton Mintz, Morris Oshinsky, Meyer Pumps, Morris Weingarten, Mrs. David Minster and Mollie Weingarten.

D. C. Antiaircraft Guardsmen Mustered Into Federal Service

OH, SWING IT!—Goldbrick, diminutive mascot of Battery A, 260th Coast Artillery, will be considerably more dog when the regiment returns from training in Texas. Perched on the regimental band's bass drum, he listens to the efforts of Clarinetist Banks E. Shull, jr.

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

The District National Guard lost its only antiaircraft regiment and the United States Army gained one yesterday at 6:45 a. m., when the 260th Coast Artillery entered Federal service. It was the first District Guard unit to be called for a year's training in the face of the national emergency.

Considerably shaken up since last August by discharge of men with dependents and by a thorough reorganization, the regiment mustered 746 enlisted men and 97 officers. The men were started through physical examinations at the rate of 200 daily, all officers having had examinations during the past week.

The outfit's preponderance of officers, said Col. Walter W. Burns, its commander, will be more than offset at Fort Bliss, Tex., by increase in enlisted strength to more than 1,300 by addition of selectees.

Trained for Expansion

"One of the purposes of the National Guard," he said, "is to train competent officers for sudden expansion. We seem to have carried out that function perfectly."

Under the present schedule, the regiment will have completed all physical examinations and transfers of property in time to leave next Monday, January 13, for Fort Bliss. The first battalion, with 12 heavy guns, will travel by road; the four automatic weapons batteries of the second battalion will go by rail.

A supply of the Army's new gasoline-fired field kitchens, designed for use on the march and in the field, will be issued to the regiment, but not until it reaches Fort Bliss, its 2,469-mile trek finished. Efforts were set afoot yesterday to procure bedding rolls for officers in time to be used on the convoy.

The first battalion's tentative itinerary will carry it through nine States in 17 days on a long sweep Southward and then into the West. This will enable it to avoid the worst winter weather and to skirt the Eastern mountain ranges. The route was extended several hundred miles to avoid bridges and culverts too weak for the heavy guns.

Contract for Meals

Due to lack of an adequate armory, the regiment's men will be permitted to spend their nights at home until the trip begins, although about 200 men will be quartered in the armory on Maine Avenue and O Street Southwest. Each battery has contracted with restaurants for meals while here, one battery crossing the river to an establishment near Washington Airport three times daily. Officers said this arrangement, despite its difficulties, was preferable to feeding the men sandwiches and coffee three times a day for a week.

Recent promotions in the regiment include that of Maj. Perry C. Huff to lieutenant colonel commanding the second battalion, in the place of Lieut. Col. William F. Bullis, who resigned to accept a commission in the Navy.

Amy Mollison Crashes, Drowns

Lookouts on ships in the estuary sighted the plane about 750 feet up. It started to climb, then suddenly turned and made a long glide into the water.

At about 200 feet a figure with a parachute fluttered away from the plane and plummeted into the water.

It was the end, in the narrow seas of home, for the woman who had dared the vast expanses of oceans the world around.

As a member of the air transport auxiliary, she was engaged in flying from one airfield to another, picking up other women pilots who ferried planes from the factories.

The laughing, happy airwoman—"Johnny," as she was known to fellow pilots—gained world-wide attention in 1930 when she set out in a light airplane for Australia from England.

Twenty-two at the time, she had never flown farther than 140 miles—from London to her Yorkshire home.

World interest mounted to enthusiasm as she was reported in Vienna, Istanbul, Aleppo and Baghdad on successive days. She reached India in six days, two days under the previous record., but damaged her plane at Rangoon and eventually arrived at Port Darwin, Australia, in 20 days.

Seven months later she tried to reach Peiping via Siberia, but was forced down near Warsaw. In six months she was off again across Russia, Siberia and China to Tokyo. In one day she covered 1,630 miles, establishing another new record.

English pride in "Johnny" knew no bounds, and she was made commander of the Order of the British Empire.

In 1932 she was mbarried to James A. Mollison, himself already a widely known flier.

A few months after her wedding, she broke her husband's record for a flight to the Cape of Good Hope by 10 hours and 18 minutes. She and her husband then planned to fly the Atlantic to New York, rest briefly, fly from New York to Baghdad and then back to London.

After damaging their plane on the takeoff they tried once more and when 57 miles from New York, crashed in a forced landing at Stratford, Conn., July 24, 1933. Both she and her husband were injured.

The flying couple's last attempt at long flight records was in the Melbourne air race in 1934. Amy and Jimmy started with a brilliant nonstop flight of 2,553 miles to Baghdad in just over 12 hours, but hard luck plagued them in the form of plane trouble and they withdrew from the competition.

Mrs. Mollison smashed another England-to-Capetown record in 1936 when she made the flight in 3 days 6 hours and 26 minutes.

That same year, she announced that she and Mollison had decided "soloing" was their best marital course and that they would go their separate ways. Two years later, in 1938, they were divorced.

Amy entered a New York-Paris race in 1937, but the United States Government banned it on the ground that it was a stunt.

Amy then turned to glider piloting, aerobatics and motor racing and became an instructor in the Civil Air Guard. When war came, she became a ferry pilot.

Amy Mollison made several visits to Washington in her long record-breaking flying career. But she never sat a ship down for a three-point landing at Washington's pint-size airport without commenting on the lack of a good field at the Capital of the Unietd States.

She told a Post reporter during her first visit here in August, 1933, that American ariports as a whole were her "greatest disappointment" on a tour of inspection of this country.

"Why I expected the Capital to have a wonderful field," she said. "Aren't you people interested?"

In February, 1934, she returned here to lecture on her solo flights from England to Australia before the National Geographic Society. She predicted at the time that women would never become commercial pilots.

Pearson, Allen Sue Rep. Sweeney

Robert S. Allen and Drew Pearson, authors of the Washington Merry-Go-Round, filed a $500,000 libel suit yesterday in District Court against Representative Martin L. Sweeney (Democrat), of Ohio, and former Representative John J. O'Connor, New York.

Attorneys Edgar Turlington and William A. Roberts filed the complaint in which Pearson and Allen said Sweeney and O'Connor filed no fewer than 60 libel suits against them, claiming several million dollars in damages.

The columnists said in their complaint that the politicians widely publicized these libel suits with malicious motives.

Tool Builders Plan to Smash Bottleneck

Prepare to Utilize All Plant Space And Speed Training

A triple blow to smash the machine tool bottleneck was planned here yesterday at a conference of the Nation's leading machine tool manufacturers.

The conference heard the charge that Defense Commission "mishandling" in planning priority of production was a major factor delaying the delivery of finished planes, guns, shells and tanks.

The manufacturers—officers, directors and defense committee members of the National Association of Machine Tool Builders—met at the Carlton Hotel. The meeting will continue today with yesterday's conferees joined by more than 100 others. Today's meeting will see 90 per cent of the Nation's machine tool capacity represented.

At 1 p. m. they will be addressed by Defense Commissioner Knudsen. Knudsen recently said privately, one manufacturer stated, that the machine tool industry had accomplished the "impossible" in 1940 by doubling its 1939 production. "Now," Knudsen was quoted as adding, "now do it again!"

Terms of Plan Learned

The three-sided plan for a production speed-up, which was linked with a demand upon the Government for "an orderly delivery schedule based on the order of importance," will be ironed into form today. The Post learned yesterday that the plan includes:

1. An effort to utilize every inch of unused plant capacity, particularly among small manufacturers, by stimulating the letting of subcontracts for machine tool parts, and even complete machines ordered by the Government from companies with a thick backlog of unfilled orders.

2. Expansion of productive capacity by squeezing additional machinery into existing plants and rushing construction of new buildings, financed by bankable Government contracts and certified as vital to defense needs to permit 5-year amortization.

3. Accelerating the training of new skilled workers, plus overtime work where necessary, to throw the entire industry on a 24-hour basis.

8,000 Parts in Engine

Emphasizing the importance of machine tools to the defense program, manufacturers explained yesterday that an airplane engine contains almost 8,000 separate metal parts, each one of which must be cut to its exact shape by a machine tool.

These 8,000 parts fall into 900 different types. Some of these parts can be made by the five basic machine tools—turning, boring, grinding, milling or planing machines. But most of these parts demand the construction of special attachments to the basic machines, and many demand the construction of special machines from the ground up.

Each of these attachments or special machines may take from six weeks to two years to construct. They range from the size of a desk to that of a two-story house and may cost as much as $50,000.

Their precision must be better than that of a fine watch. Some dimensions must be accurate to two ten-thousandths of an inch—one-tenth the thickness of cigarette paper. Some surfaces must be ground to eliminate scratches as microscopic as eight-millionths of an inch deep.

Tools Needed for Equipment

Machine tools are used to make the metal parts for planes, rifles, machine guns, mortars, heavy guns, tanks, ships. They are also used in making the buildings, hoisting equipment, electrical machinery and heat treating equipment needed in arms production.

Steel, rubber, glass and wood are all processed by machinery made on machine tools. Even machine tools themselves are made on other machine tools.

Priorities set up by the defense commission have turned the industry's capacity almost entirely to defense production, and civilian orders have gone by the board. But the manufacturers complain that the commission has given every defense item an A-1 delivery order.

They say that some machines have been rushed to completion then forced to stand idle "waiting for some other part of the program to catch up." They urge that the commission allocate the machine tool orders according to a planned delivery schedule that would coordinate production and get the first tools for weapons needed most.

The plan to expand subcontracting is supported enthusiastically by the Defense Commission, which has pointed out that Lord Beaverbrook in England doubled airplane production in three months by getting all unused machine tool capacity at work through subcontracts.

Baltimore Officers Ready to Induct Selectees Friday

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—Army officers in Baltimore's new draft induction station in the Fifth Regiment Armory today prepared for the stream of selectees who will begin reporting Friday for their year of training.

All selectees in the second draft call from Maryland, the District of Columbia and northern Virginia counties will be examined and inducted into the Army at the new station.

Sixty-five Virginia selectees will report Friday morning and the Washington quota will be inducted Saturday. Maryland's 682 selectees have been ordered to report the first four days of next week.

Under the schedule, 153 Maryland men will be examined and inducted on Monday, 179 Tuesday, 210 Wednesday and 140 Thursday.

Leahy Arrival Arouses Hope In France

Admiral Presents Credentials to Flandin; To See Petain

By Lansing Warren
Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Jan. 6.—United States Ambassador to France William L. Leahy, who presented his credentials to Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin this afternoon, probably will be accredited with all possible haste. Tomorrow or next day he will be received by Marshal Petain, it is understood.

There is no doubt that his arrival has aroused high hopes both in official circles and among the general public, where there is a feeling that the United States alone among nations is able to do something and to make some promises that will in some way benefit France's position.

It is the same sort of feeling as was reflected in the public appeal made by Premier Paul Reynaud to President Roosevelt when it was known that the field was lost for France.

What Ambassador Leahy will have to offer no one can put in concrete terms, but his arrival is nonetheless being watched with expectation.

The Ambassador, accompanied by Charge d'Affaires H. Freeman Matthews, drove up at the Parc Hotel this afternoon and was in conference with Foreign Minister Flandin for 20 minutes. He placed in Flandin's hands the office copy of his credentials, the original of which will be given to Marshal Petain. The protocol tonight will determine the time for that interview.

It was notable that plans for filming and photographing the meeting with M. Flandin were canceled, although the government here, it is known, has no desire to suppress publicity on the event. But the government is not able in all things to do exactly as it would like.

Admiral Leahy was not present at the first luncheon offered by Marshal Petain to the Diplomatic Corps today, since he does not become a part of it until his credentials have been delivered.

Grand Jury Indicts 12, Is Held Over For Alien Quiz

The autumn grand jury made its final report in the District Court yesterday, indicting 12 persons and dismissing charges against 7 others.

The jurors, who ordinarily would be discharged with the opening of the winter term of court today, will remain in office to complete their investigation of alien propagandists here.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the District Court, ordered the grand jury's authority extended upon request of District Attorney Edward M. Curran. Also extended was the special grand jury investigating suspected election law violations.

A new grand jury to handle regular cases will be impaneled tomorrow.

Those indicted were:
Grand larceny—Bernard J. Corcoran, 40.
Housebreaking and larceny—Joseph H. Parker, 19, colored; Lorenso Gray, 27, colored; John Jones, 28, colored; Homer C. Thompson, 39, colored.
Assault with dangerous weapon—Lucy Parker, 36, colored; Joseph Jones, 45, colored (also indicted for housebreaking).
Forgery and passing a forgery—Lonnie O. Ford, 36; Normal L. McDowell, 37; John R. Purdy.
Unauthorized use of automobile—Robert Disher, 22.
Abduction—Mayrene L. Freeman, 19, colored.
The grand jurors dismissed these charges:
Unauthorized use of automobile—Carl H. Richardson, 61; Charles T. Frye, 18.
Assault with dangerous weapon—Susie Brown, 30, colored; Fred D. Jones, 33, colored; Lottie Thomason, 33, colored.
Forgery and passing a forgery—James Lewis Vaughn.
Sale and possession of narcotics—Lee Ling Sing, 39.

D. S. M. Awarded Posthumously To Col. Harrington

The Army yesterday awarded the Distinguished Service Medal posthumously to Col. Francis C. Harrington, former WPA Administrator, for his work in charge of that agency.

The citation accompanying the medal declared that it was for "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service" in charge of the "greatest peace-time effort ever undertaken by any bureau or department." As adviser to the President and Congress, it was said, he contributed "to the well being of millions" and "to the benefit of the entire Nation."

Award of the medal will be made to William S. Harrington, Col. Harrington's son, a student at Yale.

Prince Camillo Killed On Albanian Front

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Jan. 6.—Prince Camillo of Bassiano, 25, son of Margaret Chapin, of New York, and Prince Roffredo of Bassiano and nephew of Prince Onorato Caetani, has been killed on the Albanian front, it was learned today.

The Caetani house is one of the oldest and most illustrious lines in Italy. Prince Camillo was the nephew of Prince Gelasio Caetani, former Italian Ambassador to Washington.

Roosevelt Reelected! This Time It's Official

President Roosevelt yesterday was elected President of the United States—officially.

In a joint session of the House and Senate, the electoral college votes were formally counted in the House chamber, a procedure before which no President is formally elected. After the count, tellers announced the vote of the electoral college, thus legally terminating the processes involved in the first election of any President to a third term.

Labor Accords Must Be Put In Writing, High Court Holds

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The National Labor Relations Board, adding to its long string of Supreme Court victories, was upheld yesterday in its contention that employers must sign written contracts when collective bargaining agreements have been reached with unions.

Once the agreement has been arrived at, refusal to sign a written instrument formally embodying its terms is an unfair labor practice under the Wagner Act, the Court maintained in a case involving the H. J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh. The Labor Board was also sustained in its disestablishment of a company union in another case.

The high tribunal yesterday also brought to completion a controversy involving some $50,000,000 in claims against the German government extending back nearly a quarter-century, to the famous Black Tom and Kingsland explosions of 1916 and 1917.

Speaking for the court, Chief Justice Hughes—who was Secretary of State from 1921 to 1925—declared that Secretary Hull's action in certifying the awards must be regarded as "conclusive."

The damage, which will be paid in part from confiscated German property now held by the Government, were certified by Secretary Hull after having been established by a 1939 decision of the Mixed Claims Commission. The commission had dismissed the claims in 1930, and had reversed itself after determining that some of the evidence presented by Germany was fraudulent. In the meanwhile, the German commissioner, Dr. Victor L. F. H. Huecking, withdrew.

Pointing out that Congress had specifically required the Secretary of State to certify the awards, Chief Justice Hughes declared that "we find no basis for concluding that the Secretary of State, in certifying the awards, did not act after due deliberation or fail to express his considered judgment."

In a concurring opinion, Justices Black and Douglas held that the question was a political one, involving relations between the United States and Germany "which we believe are constitutionally committed exclusively to the legislative and executive departments."

Noting that Secretary Hull had refused to accept the German contention that the awards were improper, the two New Deal justices warned that if the court invalidated the claims in question, it would precipitate "a square clash between the executive and judicial branches of Government."

Murray Hails Heinz Decision

"And far more than this," they said. "Whoever is entrusted finally to determine what government must or must not do in a dispute between nations is the ultimate arbiter of momentous questions of public policies affecting this Nation's relations with the other countries of the world."

The Supreme Court's decision in the Heinz case, requiring a written contract with the union when an agreement is reached, was hailed last night by Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O. He termed it "a rebuke to the irresponsibility of those companies which have paid lip service to collective bargaining but have provoked industrial stoppages by refusing to carry through the bargaining process to its logical and legal conclusion."

In its opinion, written by Justice Stone, the Court declared that "the signed agreement has been regarded as the effective instrument of stabilizing labor relations and preventing, through collective bargaining, strikes and industrial strife." The signed agreement has been "long recognized" as "the final step in the bargaining process," said the Court.

In other actions yesterday, the Court:

Agreed to decide whether the Corrupt Practices Act applies to primary as well as general elections.

Upheld orders of the Texas railroad commission prorating oil production in the east Texas oil fields.

Ruled that even though a Federal court has handed down an opinion in conformity with existing State law, the decision should be challenged by the Appellate Court if the law is altered while the case is pending.

Backed the Justice Department in its insistence that only partial deductions could be made for certain types of losses in four tax cases.

Refused to review a decision that dismissed a $750,000 damage suit against Secretary Ickes by John D. Glass, Texas attorney, formerly employed by the Interior Department.

Refused to review a decision permitting five United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries to compute their 1933 Minnesota income tax on a consolidated, rather than an individual basis.

Upheld an Ohio State statute providing that the value placed on his stock by a dissenting stockholder should, after six months and under certain circumstances, be considered equal to the fair cash value.

Settled a procedural question relating to the administration of the Bankruptcy Act.

Upheld a lower court's determination of damages for breaking a 999-year lease in bankruptcy proceedings.

Upheld a Circuit Court judgment that a claimant could collect from an enemy corporation under operation of the Trading With the Enemy Act.

If You Get Up Nights
How Are Your Kidneys?
Most people never think of their Kidneys although these vital organs contain about 9 million tiny tubes and work night and day cleaning and filtering excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. Because they never get a real rest it's easy to see that as you grow older the Kidneys may get tired and slow down. Then excess acids and wastes may accumulate and poison your system because of functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. So if you have to get up nights, or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, backaches and groin pains, due to non-organic and non-systemic Kidney or Bladder weakness, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Over ten million packages of Cystex have been sold in 73 countries and have given such joyous, happy relief to so many thousands of people that it is now sold under a positive guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex now costs only 35c at druggists and the guarantee protects you.

Nazi Officials Won't Discuss Balkan 'Fog'

'Others Made It for Us,' Berlin Authority Says of Confusion

Berlin, Jan. 6 (AP).—Everybody in Europe except the Germans seemed to be talking about the Balkans tonight.

Not a single, authentic inkling of what, if anything, the German army in the southeast intends to do came from any authoritative quarter. Spokesmen smiled at the flood of rumors some of which were termed fantastic.

"It's a splendid fog and others made it for us," said one.

This confirmed an impression that German authorities welcomed the welter of rumors as a screen behind which to perfect plans.

One definite observation made was that the presence of German aviators in Italy who could conceivably operate with land troops in the Balkans does not weaken the air force which is devoting its attention to England.

It was stated officially that replacement of aviators was no problem; that German training periods had not been shortened and that Germany was not able even to use all those who had volunteered for air service.

To foreign correspondents the official silence strikingly recalled similarly uncommunicative periods before the invasion of Poland in September, 1939; the beginning of the air battle of London last August; and the launching of the Scandinavian and Lowland assaults in April and May of last year.

As to reported deals with Russia, the only statement forthcoming was that the Reich and Soviet had extended to August, 1942, existing agreements for payments for commodities exchanged.

The Eire charge d'affairs, William Warnock, called at the foreign office to convey protests of reported German bombings of Eire territory. Warnock said he received no specific answers to his representations.

Bulgars Firm, Turkey Told

Istanbul, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Premier Dr. Refik Saydam today told Parliament that Turkey, mutual-aid ally of Britain in the Eastern Mediterranean, will continue "absolute adherence to her alliances."

The premier's statement was regarded by political quarters as a strengthening of warnings that Turkey will fight if German troops march through Bulgaria, and perhaps even if Nazi troops occupy Bulgarian territory.

Although German occupation of Bulgaria is "an ever-present danger," it was stated authoritatively, Turkey has no reason to regard Wednesday as the "zero hour," as has been reported abroad.

Premier Saydam said that "our policy will be to follow the same tried line which produced such favorable results."

"I can say," he added, "that the propitious policy you have chosen has been justified by the present developments."

London Undergoes 3 Daylight Alarms But Night Is Quiet

By the Associated Press

London (Tuesday), Jan. 7.—A series of heavy explosions and bright flashes on the French coast, heard and seen across the Straits of Dover despite a muffling fall of snow, indicated last night that the R. A. F. again was smashing at the invasion ports.

German bombers shunned England during the night, apparently because of adverse weather conditions over northern France, but the R. A. F. did not desist.

Light German fighter-bombers, however, attacked London three times yesterday—the first time in weeks that the capital has undergone more than one daylight alarm—and dropped bombs on East Anglia and southeastern points.

The sound of machine-gun fire high above London indicated the Royal Air Force clashed with the Germans.

In the daylight raids a girl and a man were killed when two bombs hit a London office building; 20 bombs were dropped near an East Anglia town without casualties or damage; bombs fell on the southeastern approaches to London.

The government reported "many buildings were damaged and some persons were killed" in the German fire bomb raid on London Sunday night, but that the raid was not on a heavy scale and ended before midnight.

Force Plane Plants to Move

British bombers have sunk or damaged seriously a number of Italian submarines at Bordeaux, France, and have bombed industrial northern Italy so effectively that some airplane plants there have decided to move, the air ministry declared last night in a roundup of damage reported inflicted on the Italian war machine.

The summary, touching on operations as far back as October, followed descriptions of raids on Brest in which docks were "again battered by many sticks of bombs" Sunday and a destroyer damaged Saturday.

Despite an "immense barrage" and challenges from German fighter planes, the British said all aircraft returned safely.

(The Germans said two British bombers crashed into sea in an attempted raid Sunday.)

Two German supply ships were declared hit by R. A. F. bombers off southwest Norway Sunday.

The air ministry service said British bombs had "severely damaged or sunk outright" Italian submarines based at Bordeaux on "several occasions."

The attacks on Bordeaux are important counteroffensives to the Atlantic raids conducted by Axis submarines based there.

The air ministry bulletin asserted that the British had learned their air raids on Turin, Milan, Alessandria and other north Italian industrial cities in October had been "so effective that the Italian people attributed almost supernatural powers to our bomb aimers."

Munitions Dump Goes Up

A direct hit that exploded an ammunition dump caused widespread damage at Alessandria and vicinity, the bulletin said.

At Turin, the Fiat automobile and airplane works were said to have been seriously damaged while at Milan it was asserted that most of the Caproni aircraft factories decided to move farther south and east as a result of British raids.

Attacks on Durazzo and Valona on the Albanian coast, the account continued, have been "extremely successful."

In one raid, most of the aircraft on the ground at Valona was destroyed, and at Durazzo a number of fuel tanks were blown to bits.

As a result of British raids on the Dodecanese, the bulletin said there had been no operations from those Italian islands bases in the Aegean since the outbreak of the Greek-Italian war.

Terror's Crew Tell of Bringing Her Name Home to Bardia

Monitor's 15-Inch Guns Demoralized Italians Despite Torpedoes Around Ship So Thick 'You Could Knit Them'

By Larry Allen.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Aboard the Monitor Terror With the British Mediterranean Fleet, Jan. 6.—This weirdly camouflaged, hard-fighting British warship splashed back into her Egyptian base today after helping to hand Bardia a New Year's greeting of nearly 600 tons of TNT-packed shells.

The 7,200-ton Terror, slow and broad-beamed to carry her 15-inch guns, had come through a hail of bombs and constant torpedo attacks to shell Italian shore batteries at the Libyan port in the naval bombardment which helped clear the way for the British army's advance.

At one time, an officer said, "the torpedoes were so thick in the water we could almost knit them."

'Wasn't Any Transport When Smoke Cleared'

While the Terror fired her 15-inch shells, the gunboats Ladybird and Aphis, moving inshore like Mississippi River mudscows, pumped their 6-inch shells to blast Italian motor transports from the highway atop the sandy plateau and scatter Italian troop concentrations.

The Terror alone poured 140 tons of high explosives into the besieged Italian fort on January 3, as the prelude to the biggest bombardment of the Mediterranean war by British battleships, cruisers and destroyers.

"We dropped a big lot of bricks into the heart of a motor transport moving along the road," said one of the ship's officers. "When the smoke cleared there just wasn't any transport there."

From about ten miles out the monitor Terror rained shells, while the Ladybird and Aphis moved in closer, hurling their shells as fast as their eager gunners could load.

The Italian shore batteries returned the fire vigorously, one shell landing near the Aphis and causing "slight casualties."

The Terror's job was to stop any Italian counterattack against the British army's steady barrage, but her officers said the barrage did more than that—it demoralized the Fascists, hastening their surrender, they said.

Trucks Crumble Like Eggshells

Once during the bombardment the Terror sighted an Italian truck convoy trying to get supplies to Bardia's beleaguered troops. The ship's guns sprayed a 5-mile stretch of road, crumbling the trucks as thought they were eggshells.

British naval authorities credited the Terror's two ducklike companions—the 625-ton Ladybird and Aphis—with blasting the wedge in Bardia's defenses which eventually opened the way to the fall of the fort.

Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, visited the Terror after her return from Bardia and congratulated the captain for writing in hot lead the first chapter finale of the battle of Bardia.

The Terror formerly was a guard ship at Singapore and later at Malta. The Ladybird and the Aphis came to the Mediterranean from Yangtze River patrol in China.

Churchill Sets Up 3 Units To Speed War

Group Heads Given Power to Conscript Labor if Necessary

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 6.—Britain's insistent demand for speed and more speed on the home front in what every Englishman believes will be the most decisive year of the war was met by Prime Minister Churchill today with the dramatically timed creation of three new executive bodies to deal with production, imports and postwar reconstruction.

In the first major move to draft labor, Churchill put into the hands of three members of his government sweeping powers over the men and women who constitute these islands' industrial forces.

They are Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, who was placed in charge of a new production organization; Minister of Supply Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, who is to boss the all-important import group, and Minister Without Portfolio Arthur Greenwood, who will make a study of postwar reconstruction.

While Andrew's group attends to "the vital war business of bringing food from overseas, supplying the fighting forces and keeping the life of the country going," Bevin's organization "knowing what our output must be, must achieve it."

Will Get Broad Authority

Bevin's "Executive," as the three new bodies were defined in an official announcement from No. 10 Downing Street, will get broad authority to do what it likes with raw materials, with factories and workshops of Britain.

In a move to insure even further coordination, the newely created chairman will sit with the heads of the existing committees of defense, home policy and food policy to advise the war cabinet concerning the home front. Sir John Anderson, Lord president of the council, will sit as chairman of all these groups.

The speed which Churchill hopes the new executives will reach, the government's official statement said, "will help the war cabinet take on an even faster tempo."

It was pointed out that if there should develop any threat of departure from the government's policy "the guiding hand of the prime minister and the war cabinet will always be there to rectify it."

The first major reorganization of Churchill's wartime government, it was interpreted as designed to streamline activities and cut to a minimum delays resulting from overlapping functions of agencies hastily established in the first year of the war.

Associated with Bevin in the production organization, which replaces the production council, are Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aircraft production; Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, president of the Board of Trade, and Sir Andrew.

Sir Andrew's import executive includes Lord Beaverbrook, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty; Capt. Lyttleton and Lord Woolton, minister of food. They represent Britain's chief importers.

China Is Main Supply Source For a Triple-Dealing Germany

Nazis Buy Vital Material From Both Free And Occupied Territory, Ship It Across Siberia; Orientals Sell Them British, U.S. Goods

By Douglas Robertson.
Copyright by New York Times

Shanghai, Jan. 6.—China today, both Japanese-occupied and free territory, is Germany's most important source of raw materials necessary for continuation of the European struggle.

By direct means within the Japanese occupied territories and by indirect means in the same territories, also within free China, German agents are busily procuring and shipping to Germany such supplies as cotton, caustic soda, all oils, natural and mineral; textiles, woolens, tinned goods, sulphur—in fact practically everything needed by Germany for war purposes.

Through utilization of the Axis pact to the very utmost, German agents are able to persuade Japanese authorities to permit them to travel freely throughout Japanese-controlled areas, directly buying up any and all products deemed necessary.

Indirectly, German agents are using Chinese, Japanese and others as middlemen. These ostensibly are ultimate wholesalers, but the final transactions deliver the goods into German hands.

Mediaries Buy From U. S.

These "round-the-bush" transactions are especially devoted to products not produced in China, such as lubricating oils, greases, tinned goods and woolens. Numerous British and American firms are dealing with these middlemen, although whether they have knowledge of the ultimate destination of their imported goods is uncertain.

The extent to which Germany is depending upon materials from China, whether China-produced or goods imported and then exported, is evidenced by the gigantic rail shipments that go over the Trans-Siberian railway from the Far East. Already freight rates across Siberia have been raised between 500 and 800 per cent for outside shippers, yet Gremany through an agreement with the Soviet is still able to ship at previous tariffs.

An indication that trainloads of Chinese goods, both natural and imported, are being transported to Germany lies in the fact that the route via Dairen, Harbin and Manchouli, thence over the Siberian Railway, is unable to cope with the handling of such shipments. The overflow, which already has assumed startling proportoins and shows all signs of becoming larger, is being routed via Vladivostok, thence over Russia's northern railway skirting the original Trans-Siberian route.

Soviets Sell Arms in East

The Soviets are not losing in the deal as their cars are bringing out munitions and war supplies to the Far Eastern armies and are returning with paying laods.

The entire enterprise on the part of Germany shows that plans had been worked out to the utmost decimal point.

At present finished products are being shipped to Germany from German-owned or controlled factories operating at Shanghai, Tientsin and other Chinese cities where cheap Chinese labor as well as other favorable conditions permit productive costs to be held at the lowest possible.

Although Japanese authorities view with suspicion this German expansion, fearing invasion of the Japanese business field, they cannot very well call their own Axis partner to account.

Through China today Germany is not only double-dealing but triple-dealing. German agents continue on more or less cordial relations with the Chungking government, carrying on trade with Chiang Kai-shek's government. Meanwhile, other agents are carrying on trade relations with the Japanese-controlled areas of China at the same time as they dispatch emissaries to adjacent territories which are not controlled by Japanese forces.

Meanwhile, Germany has been long urging and prodding Japan into attempting a southern expansion which, of course, would bring the United States into conflict with Japan and embarrass Great Britain.

than 30,000.

Thus Marshal Graziani, commander of the Italians in North Africa, has lost, British reports said, one-third of his army in captured, killed or wounded men, and his most important eastern base—Bardia—has fallen.

British Have Two Choices

(The British appeared face with two alternatives if they decide to attack Bengasi next—to drive straight across the desert or to drive around the tip of the Cirenaican hump with the aid of the royal navy, which contributed materially to the Bardia victory.)

Observers with the British forces said the number of Italians surrendering at Bardia constituted an open invitation to the British to strike on against Bengasi.

The Egyptian press viewed the Bardia victory as removing all danger to Egypt from Italy and said Bardia, with its useful harbor, has become the key to a British advance into Tripoli, Italian possession just beyond Cirenaica.

Tripoli itself has been heavily bombed by the R. A. F. A communique tonight said tons of bombs were dropped the night of January 4 and 5 on the target area which included the power station, customs buildings, docks and shipping. Large fires were visible 30 miles out to sea.

Feeding Prisoners a Problem

British military sources said the British dominate inland regions almost 100 miles from the western Egyptian frontier. They added there are indications of rapidly increasing demoralization among Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's forces.

The number of prisoners has raised a problem of feeding and transportation for the British, but as soon as possible the Fascists are being shipped to concentration centers.

The cost of caring for them already has reached millions of dollars.

"Army Intact," Rome Says

By the Associated Press

Rome, Jan. 6.—The Italian high command admitted loss of "more strongholds" on the Bardia front today, but avoided any mention of the fall of Bardia itself as Italians at home exchanged gifts on a chill, gray Epiphany day.

Identification of the North African points from which Fascist troops had been routed was expected to be given only after the holiday.

The Rome radio said "the Italian army is intact," and added that the invading army in Libya, "far from its bases, faces the same situation as the British said the Italians did at Sidi Barrani."

In an English language broadcast, it quoted sources in Turkey and Germany to indicate that the Fascist armies in the desert were badly outnumbered, but accounted well for themselves.

One Turkish report cited said the Italians at Bardia were compelled to yield to 800 tanks and a British army of 400,000 men.

Instead of dwelling on the Libyan situation, the Fascist newspapers told of the campaign in Albania—of cold there so intense that automatic weapons were rendered unusable and "tents shattered as though made of glass." Il Giornale d'Italia reported that bad weather limited the Italian air force to scouting flights.

Dispute Revolves Around Quotation Used by President

President Roosevelt, declaring that a "dictator's peace" would bring "no security" to the United States, used a quotation yesterday which is commonly attributed to Benjamin Franklin, but the authorship is disputed.

"Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety."

Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, said the sentence appeared as a motto in a book of anonymous authorship published in 1759 in London and entitled, "An Historical Review of the Constitution and Government of Pennsylvania."

Benjamin Franklin was in London at the time and many, both in the colonies and in England, believed he was the author.

On June 9, 1759, Franklin wrote to Isaac Norris concerning the book: "I had no hand in it. It is wrote by a gentleman said to be one of the best pens in England." He went on to say, however, that he had looked over the manuscript and had paid, in part, for its publication.

Old Age Policy Pays up to $50 a Month!

Needed Protection, Ages 65 to 85, Costs Only 1 Cent a Day

The Postal Life & Casualty Insurance Co., 696 Postal Life Building, Kansas City, Mo., has a new accident policy for men and women of ages 65 to 85.

It pays up to $500 if killed, up to $50 a month for disability, up to $25 a month for hospital care and other benefits that so many older people have wanted.

RKO-Keith's Breaks Out An Imposing List, Too

Impressive Films Announced for Fifteenth St.; Al Jolson Aspires to 'Dollar-a-Year' Job; This, That and the Other About the Theater

AND NOW COMES Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's Theater, to add Fifteenth to F and Thirteenth as the midcity thoroughfares upon which lusty cinematic entertainment may be anticipated in forthcoming weeks and months.

With Ginger Rogers booming along in majestic box-office fashion in "Kitty Foyle" as its current attraction, Keith's holds forth immediate promise of a considerable list of what appear on paper to be the most notable celluloids it has been able to boast in consecutive order for months on end. The stenographic Miss Rogers will be followed by two more pretty promising youngsters, in the persons of Virginia Bruce and John Barrymore, in "The Invisible Woman." Heaven forbid that Virginia Bruce ever should become invisible! Whether she is that particular woman or not, the picture is said to be packed with those unbelievable demonstrations of camera legerdemain that characterized the earlier "Invisible Man," in which Claude Rains manifested himself on the screen in footprints in the snow and other eerie signs that would have been unidentifiable except for the resonance of the Rains voice, which always was "visible" during the action.

This item will be succeeded by Carole Lombard—a recent Washington visitor with her ailing husband, Clark Gable—and Robert Montgomery, in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," with Director Alfred Hitchcock, master of melodrama, diverting his talents to comedy. Then will come Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan in the new gelatin version of Fannie Hurst's "Back Street," in which Irene Dunne and John Boles scored a sensational success 'way back yonder. And that ain't all!

Deanna Durbin will be coming along in "Love at Last," formerly known by the working title of "Nice Girl;" Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane," completed after almost as much delay as encountered by "Gone With the Wind," is scheduled for an early showing and so are Jean Arthur in "The Devil and Miss Jones" and Marlene Dietrich's "Flame of New Orleans."

We'll be seeing you and your pictures, Mr. Meakin.

Although elusive almost to an undiscoverable degree by harried drama desks working against the opening of a new play in the National Theater last night, Darryl F. Zanuck, vice president in charge of production for Twentieth Century-Fox, was a Washington visitor yesterday. Among other things in a quick round of the town, he was present to hear the President's address to the new Congress at the Capitol—seat of government, not the theater where his pictures have their first-runs.

Speaking of government, the old grapevine, with something more than its usually doubtful authenticity, whispers the tip that our old friend, Al Jolson, cracking Broadway wide open these past many weeks in "Hold Onto Your Hats," the symbol of his resurrection as a stage star of the top rank, is making generous gestures in the direction of the White House. Al, so one hears, has proferred his services to the President as a "Dollar-a-year-man" to assume complete charge of entertainment in the Army cantonments now springing up all over the land as evidence of this country's determination to keep its left high and its right cocked. Successful culmination of his plans probably would mean the closing of his current New York hit and large financial loss to the "world's greatest entertainer"—which Al has proved himself with some definiteness to be.

Katie Hepburn's film version of her smash stage hit, "The Philadelphia Story," must have something. That big national weekly, that goes in so heavily for pictures to tell its own stories, nominates "The Philadelphia Story" as its "Movie of the Week," in its last issue, and prints page after page of scene reproductions from the film. Since the original stage play had its premiere in the National Theater in this city, it should be worth mentioning that the role played by Van Heflin now is assumed by Jimmy Stewart. Mr. Heflin, you will recall, is the renegade Rader in the Warner Brothers "Santa Fe Trail," current on local screens. Ruth Hussey, "the girl" in "Flight Command," also is in the gelatinized play, as are Cary Grant and Roland Young, most recently, the harassed little fellow in "No, No, Nanette." Nice cast.

'Mr. and Mrs. North' Joyously Panics National First-Nighters

By Nelson B. Bell

"MR. AND MRS. NORTH." Alfred de Liagre, jr., presents the new comedy in three acts and four scenes, by Owen Davis, based on the stories by Frances and Richard Lockridge. Directed by Mr. de Liagre; setting by Jo Mielziner. At the National Theater.

—THE CAST—

Mr. North	Albert Hackett
Bunco	Tito Vuolo
Mrs. North	Peggy Conklin
Ben Wilson	Lex Lindsay
Claire Brent	Barbara Wooddell

Timothy Barnes	Frank Wilcox
Fuller Brush Man	Horace Cooper

North, South, East or West, penetrate to the farthest points of the compass and it will be a monumental task to stir up a more joyously amusing mystery-comedy—completely on the "escapist" side—than "Mr. and Mrs. North," presented for its metropolitan premiere "prior to New York," in the National Theater last night.

Here without question is the comedy that "Off the Record," "Out West It's Different," "Glamour Preferred" and such others of the season's valorous essays at spontaneous humor as have come along to date, set out to be. It is a bit wordy, yes; occasionally the action devised to develop the major theme of the dramatic puzzle Owen Davis has derived from the written pieces of Frances and Richard Lockridge is halted in its tracks and, now and again, complications that never quite come off are hinted, but, by and large, "Mr. and Mrs. North" is the highly spiced and wholly welcome dish for which the theater and its hardy faithful have been waiting.

Were it not that the three acts and four scenes, all laid in the Norths' apartment in Greenwich Village, have been fashioned with a comic skill that is entirely sufficient unto itself, one with a tenacious memory might catch glimpses of "The Bat," "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and any number of other similar works in the unravelling of its plot. But "Mr. and Mrs. North" are so triumphantly themselves and their play so enormously equipped with the instrumentalities of achieving its own invigorating ends that any resemblance to anything of a like nature that has gone before is only vaguely and unimportantly coincidental. Its hereby is honorably and enthusiastically enrolled in the 1941 hit column.

Not One Murder, But Two

There is scant advantage to author, play, cast or reviewer in such an expository outline of story content as might be embodied in any hurried midnight resume of so baffling and buoyantly played a comedy as "Mr. and Mrs. North." It is a murder mystery. Better than that, it is a double-murder mystery, with neither of the venal acts taking place before the eyes of the audience. One is revealed by the opening of a closet door; the parting of a pair of flimsy curtains. Both are [illegible] crimes, as such things as snuffing out life go in a big city. Both of the Norths and all of their friends, casual acquaintances and avowed enemies are suspect in the eyes of the police.

But the chief virtues of this enlivening adventure in homicide repose rather in the glibness of the writing and the consummate competence of the cast than in any labored analysis of police department method. The thing begins gayly, progresses hilariously and ends on a high note of comic implication.

Along the way, as has already been implied, there are intervals when the major movement of the play seems to have been sidetracked to make way for brief comedy, character and "situation" sketches that would almost do for vaudeville as separate and distinct units of entertainment. But by some miracle of adept writing they seem never to offer any serious impairment to the steady progress of an interesting and cumulatively effective comedy-drama.

A Ne Plus Ultra Cast

Perhaps an earlier allusion to "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" springs from the subconscious promptings of the appearance in the cast of many players who contributed to the penetrating pungencies of the Clare Boothe play.

Not included among these are Peggy Conklin and Albert Hackett, who are cast in the title roles of the present work. Both return to the stage after long absences occasioned by divergent causes. Neither could have been more judiciously selected for their appointed tasks by Alfred de Liagre, jr., who has given "Mr. and Mrs. North" flawless production, casting and direction. Miss Conklin and Mr. Hackett not only pick up where they left off, but where they might have picked up had they been continuously engaged in the living theater.

Philip Ober, as Lieut. Weigand; Millard Mitchell, his droll associate in the processes of "the law," and Lex Lindsay, whose case looks plenty black for a time, are undebatable top choices for their roles. Tito Vuolo turns in a splendid comedy characterization as the landlord of the apartment, in which the successive homicides turn things on end, and Barbara Wooddell, Owen Davis, jr., a little less relaxed than he will be later on; Joan Marlowe, Lewis Martin, Stanley Jessup, Horace Cooper and all the rest leave nothing undone in the matter of the play's soaring success.

Jo Mielziner's single setting furnishes a homey and livable billet from which "Mr. and Mrs. North" is able to launch a quick invasion of a coveted position among the new year's most amiable conquests.

Met an interesting chap named Rose at the Sam Goldwyns the other night. Rose left England a month ago, and returns this week to continue producing pictures. He tells me the conditions over there aren't nearly as frightening as pictured in our magazines. He's never been inside an air raid shelter. Sure, the bombs burst, fires are started, but the damage is slight compared with our reports. Nothing along the Thames has been injured, shipping goes on as usual, and the only things they seem to lack are oranges and lemons.

Goldwyn doesn't expect to produce this year. Sam tells me 6 per cent of picturegoers are under 21, and the fans won't go for middle-aged problems. He found that out when he produced "Dodsworth." They want 'em young and pretty. No matter how great the acting, they've still got to be young.

And did you know he had such faith in Dorothy Lamour's drawing ability that when he put her in "Hurricane" he already had Margo under contract and paid her off in full, believing that Dottie would be a bigger draw. He was right. It's one of the biggest grosses he ever had.

Did you know American-born Lady Cunrad was a visitor in our midst? She tea-d with Barbara Hutton the other day, together with Sir Thomas Beecham, and said to him, "Oh, won't you be happy when it's all over over there, so we can go home?" . . . She was invited to tea, but stayed until Gary Cooper arrived for dinner. She was that anxious to meet him.

David will see her on the way East and there is a chance that he will cast her in "Hatter's Castle," the A. J. Cronin story.

Hollywood has been passing up its biggest singing bet in Ilona Massey. She has beauty, voice and personality. I hope "New Wine" is what she needs to establish her on the screen.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Add to the ironies of life—Patric Knowles, a sergeant in the Canadian Air Force, sick with German measles; Alice White and Jack Roberts, now that their marriage has been made public, receiving belated congratulations; John Howard and Hedy Lamarr are again on telephoning terms; Kay Francis and Ivon Goff, the writer, are beginning to look serious; the Frankie Albertsons expect their baby any minute; Estelle Taylor's romance with Paul Small, agent, is no more; the Darryl Zanucks will celebrate their seventeenth wedding anniversary on Sunday. Virginia and the children came home from Sun Valley Friday, but Norma Shearer and her children are remaining for an additional two weeks to recuperate from the flu.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Jan. 6.

TWO WEEKS AGO the report spread through the drug stores and restaurants that the producers of "Johnny Belinda" were seeking an understudy for Helen Craig—whose portrayal of the deaf mute in that show elevated her to stardom . . .

LYONS

More than 80 actresses applied for this job of understudying a deaf mute. Each was asked to leave her name and address with the stage manager . . . In due time each received a printed form letter from the manager, containing full instructions for the audition. Some of Miss Craig's "lines" were included—emotions which must be portrayed in pantomime for the audience to grasp. And then, in each letter, also was included a book of instructions, describing the sign language alphabet.

WHEN JOE SCHENCK, the movie executive, went to the United States attorney's office here he agreed to answer questions put to him by one of the assistants. His desire to cooperate was based upon the knowledge that he is completely innocent of any intent to defraud the Government . . . "Now look, Mr. Schenck," the young prosecutor began, "I'm going to ask you some questions. I know that you movie people have some ideas as to how a prosecutor works. You've learned that from your research department. Now I want you to forget all that. This is entirely different" . . . Schenck, thereby placed at ease, gave full response . . . "Young man," he told the prosecutor after the interview was over, "now I can tell our research department a few things."

HAROLD ROME, who wrote the songs for the touring "Pins and Needles," has been revising the lyrics regularly to keep pace with the changing events. "It's very tough," he sighed, "to be a writer of social significance these days" . . . Tommy Manville took a young lady last night to see "Meet the People." Manville's girl was practically nude—for a Manville girl—because she wore no orchids. When Tommy was asked to explain he said: "When I took a girl to see 'Pins and Needles' she didn't wear any orchids, either. I wanted to be just as fair to this revue" . . . When Arthur Kober is married next week to pretty Margaret Frohmknecht Justice Pecora will perform the ceremony. Kober's attendants will be Herman Shumlin and Lillian Hellman, his former wife.

WHILE H. Leopold Spitalny conducted a rehearsal of the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra he made one mistake, and was called for it . . . "Fellas," Spitalny told the musicians, "when I'm wrong, you, too, be wrong. Then we'll all be right."

"DEAR LEONARD," writes Hannen Swaffer, the London columnist. "Here's one thing I wrote, between bombardments: 'Now Drake, at last, has finished playing bowls . . . Alfred, his cakes all burnt, has set his ships in motion . . . Canute no more is ordering back the waves . . . Nor Mrs. Partington the wild Atlantic Ocean . . . The Munich mind has lost its final bus . . . And left the task to Britain—yes, to us!'"

AFTER A BROADWAY play, written by a Frenchman, became a hit, an agent sold the author's services to Warner Brothers for four weeks at $3,500 a week. At the end of the fourth week the writer finally reported. "This story is for Charles Boyer and Marlene Dietrich" . . . "Good," said Hal Wallis, "I can get them. Go ahead" . . . "The action takes place in Paris," the playwright continued, "or Vienna, or Shanghai, or maybe New York. It doesn't matter. Boyer is married, or he isn't, or he's her sweetheart, or he isn't. It doesn't matter. Dietrich works in a beauty parlor, or a cocktail bar—or she plies the wharves—or maybe she's an espionage agent. It doesn't matter. She loves him, or she doesn't—or hasn't met him. It doesn't matt——" . . . Wallis interrupted: "I know. It doesn't matter. But what does matter is that you're getting $3,500 a week and—and you're fired."

PEGGY FEARS purchased a new 31-foot-long mural by Salvador Dali, the surrealist artist, and has rented a new, larger apartment so that she can find space to hang it . . . William Rhinelander Stewart's $17,000 Rolls-Royce car—one of the most elegant cars in the town—was sold to Felix Ferry for $100. Stewart had kept it in storage for the past eight years . . . John G. Winant has joined the ranks of possible appointees to the Court of St. James' . . . Errol Flynn is telling of Mike Curtiz's instructions before the filming of "Santa Fe Trail": "You go to a place where the hand of man has never set foot."

GEORGE "The Real" McCoy at last has come into his own. His sidewalk interviews, from the steps of the Hotel Astor, are being broadcast every night over N. B. C.'s hookup . . . Only two years ago McCoy discovered that it was possible to live in New York without paying for food, a bed or entertainment. He accomplished this by going to the World's Fair, eating the sample foods at the various food exhibits, sleeping in the Royal Scot at the railroad exhibit, getting his shaves at the electric razor exhibit, etc. He even amassed pocket money by selling this story to Life Magazine . . . But now he doesn't have to worry about pocket money, for George "The Real" McCoy is a radio star . . . His host of friends attended the premiere of his broadcast by bringing their pocket radios and listening, in the rain, a few feet away from him . . . The program was introduced by the playing of "Pop Goes the Weasel" on a glockenspiel. McCoy didn't like its sounds and asked an N. B. C. aide: "Who's been using this instrument?" Only one man," he was told. "Arturo Toscanini."

Baby Strangles While Feeding In Her Carriage

Apparently strangled on milk from a bottle, 4-month-old Rose Marie Moore died yesterday afternoon in her carriage in the back yard of her home at 2146 P Street Northwest.

Her nurse, Lottie Turner, of 907 Twenty-second Street Northwest, left the baby for a few minutes in the sun. The child was unconscious when she returned, and was pronounced dead on arrival at Columbia Hospital. She was taken there by her father, John A. Moore, who operates a radio shop in the building where the family lives.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald scheduled an autopsy for noon today.

Another baby, a colored child about a month old, was found dead in a truck at the rear of 1227 New Jersey Avenue Northwest. Homicide squad detectives started an investigation.

Contract Bridge

The question is presented by a contributor today concerning response to a partner's minor-suit opening bid. I. B. B., the contributor, writes:

"My partner dealt and opened the bidding with one diamond. The player on my right passed and I held this hand:

◇ A K 9 5 3
♣ 7 4 2

"I bid two diamonds. Is a positive raise from one to two in your partner's suit stronger than a negative one no-trump response?"

I. B. B. bid his hand wisely. While some players might bid three diamonds, it would encourage three no-trump or a jump to game in the minor suit by partner, for which I. B. B.'s hand is not adequately prepared. His hand, as bare as it is in the side suits, is "trump poor," as the old saying goes.

A positive raise from one to two in partner's suit may, or may not, be stronger than a one no-trump response, depending upon the circumstances. However, a raise, while definitely limiting the strength of the hand, does show two features missing from a no-trump reply; trump support, and possible ruffing tricks.

One no-trump is not always a "negative bid," sometimes showing as much as two plus honor tricks. One no-trump over a minor-suit call, such as a club or a diamond, would not be considered as weak as a no-trump bid over a spade or a heart.

Policeman Cleared In Holdup Slaying

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of William E. Knight, colored, 23, of 151 S Street Northwest, shot by a policeman Friday in a liquor store holdup at 5514 Colorado Avenue Northwest.

Exonerated at the inquest was Policeman George K. Brown, of the Sixth Precinct, who was "planted" at the liquor store with a colleague after a series of holdups at the establishment.

The victim was wanted by police in connection with similar recent holdups.

Lend-Lease Plan Speeded By Leaders

House Aides Study Memoranda Prior To Drafting Bill

Consideration was being given to routing the measure through the Banking and Currency Committees instead of through the foreign affairs groups of both bodies.

Contest Possible

The jurisdictional point is understood to have been raised because of lend-lease provisions of the measure. Should this course be followed, influential members of the Foreign Affairs Committee indicated they would contest it. No decision had been reached last night.

While the House Foreign Affairs Committee is predominantly sympathetic to the Administration course, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has a strong, if outnumbered, noninterventionist bloc.

It was learned that the first draft may eliminate recent proposals for a new Government corporation to make and supply arms for the British. No separate appropriation for the aid items is contemplated, it was said. Supplies for democracies abroad presumably would be financed mainly from the $10,000,000,000 national defense estimates to be included in the forthcoming budget.

Decision to move the measure first through the House was believed influenced by machinery for more rapid action there.

Confident of Safe Majority

Leaders were convinced they had a safe majority for passage through both houses.

Those who commented following the speech were preponderantly favorable, but intermixed was sharp criticism by leaders of the nonintervention bloc.

Speaker Rayburn said the American people "are for every legitimate aid to the democracies" and the President presented this view "in masterly fashion."

Senate Majority Leader Barkley said the speech was "in fine tenor, and in my judgment represented the overwhelming views of the American people."

Wheeler Indicates Battle

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, said the President spoke "the views of America, and I am sure the policy he advocated will be supported by Congress."

But plain notice that the program faces a battle was contained in the criticism by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana. Wheeler said:

"It is too bad this speech was not made before election. It was intended to frighten the American people to a point where they would surrender their liberties and establish a wartime dictatorship in this country. I liked the two minutes the President devoted to recommendations for the extension of social and economic gains."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, called it "a strong plea for peace through war by proxy" and added: "For the sake of America, I hope his program will never have to go farther. In any event he is right in demanding total defense and in admitting we are not getting in it."

Vandenberg said he thought aid should continue short of "making us cobelligerents" or of dissipating America's nucleus for its own defense. He said it was impossible to pass specifically on the lend-lease plan "because it is still too nebulous.

Senator Austin, of Vermont, acting Senate minority leader, immediately indorsed the speech and in a radio address last night declared the American people have enlisted on the side of "freedom" in the present conflict. Austin said no dictator should get the impression Americans won't fight if they have to.

Another Republican foursquare with the President's foreign policy was Representative Wadsworth, of New York, who called the address admirable.

Taft Opposes Lending Idea

But Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, said that despite his belief that England should be aided short of involvement in war, "I thoroughly disapprove the method of lending munitions suggested by the President . . . The whole idea of lending munitions is a complete subterfuge. Every one with any sense knows that the loans will not be repaid."

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, just designated Senate president pro tempore, said: "It was a great message; will be received with overwhelming approval by the American people. It had the ring of real Americanism to it."

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, thought "the President covered too much territory" when he outlined plans "to try to give the whole world the kind of life we have in this country."

Chairman Sheppard of the Senate Military Affairs Committee called it "one of the greatest deliverances not only in American history but of all time."

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, thought it "a fine speech. It couldn't be better."

Hopkins Flying To London On Mystery Trip

New York, Jan. 6 (INS).—Bound for Lisbon and bomb-scared London as President Roosevelt's personal emissary, Harry Hopkins was aboard the Yankee Clipper tonight, the exact nature of his journey still a mystery.

Tight-lipped, though smiling and affable, up to the time of his departure, Hopkins parried all questions hurled at him with the statement:

"I wouldn't want to add anything to what the President has said about that."

Beyond admitting that he was en route to Lisbon, where he is to be met by United States Minister to Portugal Herbert Pell, and then to London to be greeted by Hershel Johnson, of the American Embassy, Hopkins was noncommital on the details of his mission, or what is portended for America and embattled England.

He said he didn't think his business in London would take "very long."

ANTHONY ALLERDICE, 7, and his mother, Mrs. David Allerdice, sr., 43, died Sunday of suffocation in a fire in their Indianapolis apartment. The father and another son, David, jr., Princeton University football star, were burned severely in attempting to rescue the mother and child

9 Britons Seize Italian Ship And 115 Troops

Captives Take Courage When Australian Destroyer Approaches

By International News Service

Alexandria, Jan. 6.—A daring exploit in which a British army sergeant and eight of his men, prisoners aboard an Italian motor schooner, turned the tables on their captors and seized the schooner and 115 Italian soldiers was revealed in Alexandria tonight.

Forced to surrender when their ammunition ran out during a battle in the desert, the British soldiers were being shipped to an Axis concentration camp when the schooner was intercepted by an Australian destroyer.

The italian troops hid in the schooner's hold while the vessel's crew waved their shirts and caps, shouting that they had British prisoners aboard, hoping to save themselves from being shelled.

At that stage, it was reported, the British sergeant became aware that help was near and led a barehanded attack on his Italian guards in which the nine men fought their way to the deck and then battened down the hatches over the hidden Italian troops.

Because of rough seas, the Australian destroyer was unable to launch a boat, it was reported, so he shouted orders through a megaphone for the schooner to follow the destroyer.

Several hours later, the schooner reached an Egyptian port with the sergeant standing guard over his captives.

Train-Auto Crash Kills Md. Couple

Henryton, Md., Jan. 6 (AP).—A man and his wife were killed today when their car was struck by an eastbound Baltimore & Ohio freight train at the crossing here.

State police identified the victims as L. Andrew Smith, 44, and Elizabeth Smith, 50, both of Henryton, in Carroll County.

Speech Shows Foresight, N.Y. Times Says

Deserves High Praise, Declares Herald Tribune

Editorial comment on the President's message to Congress, appearing in newspapers in many cities follows:

NEW YORK TIMES—There cannot be the slightest doubt that the course to which Mr. Roosevelt pledged this country yesterday has the indorsement of the vast majority of our people, and that they will approve whatever measures are needed to put it into practice. In an hour of great crisis the President has spoken to the Nation with candor and with foresight.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE—As a statement of American ideals, the President's message to Congress deserves high praise . . . because of his general outlook upon governmental problems, he sees and states the threat of military attack with particularity and dismisses the large and more far-reaching economic threat in a single phrase . . . the situation cries aloud for a single munitions head.

CHICAGO JOURNAL OF COMMERCE—Most any way you look at it, and with the fullest allowance for the apparent fact that the President was speaking for foreign consumption as well as domestic, the speech marked the end of our alleged neutrality. There is no need to say that any nation can openly ally itself with one side of a conflict, as the President has done in his speech, and pretend to be neutral.

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS—The President's message to the 77th Congress . . . is a trumpet call. It will open the eyes of those who are still asleep. It will get the drowsy to their feet. And to those—the majority—who are already awake and eager, it will bring new hope, new courage, new determination.

CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE—The President revealed himself . . . to be in an excited frame of mind. The text, filled as it is with alarms, hasty generalizations, contradictions and threats to Europeans and Americans alike, is not the work of a man facing a situation dispassionately . . .

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS—The President seemed vague to us on the extent of our war aims . . . if a return to the status quo as of the day before Hitler tore into Poland is the eventual British war aim and is to be ours likewise, then from all signs now visible we'd better resign ourselves to the prospect of a war or series of wars as long and bitter as the Napoleonic wars.

BOSTON POST—The President reached new heights in presenting the danger to America in the present war in Europe and Asia. He was never more eloquent . . . there was little wonder, however, novel or unusual in the whole address. Mr. Roosevelt has steadfastly proclaimed the principles upon which the "state of the Union" address was based . . . all of us will agree with his stand, in principle . . .

BOSTON GLOBE—. . . as a whole, the address to Congress is more a report of the state of mind of the President than of the state of the Union . . . Few citizens will question Mr. Roosevelt's analysis . . . to an unprecedented extent he has led the Nation in preparedness. Now he asks Congress to accelerate the pace. On his continued leadership will depend the part that this country is to play in the immediate future.

ATLANTA CONSTITUTION—What the President wants, and what every American with any knowledge of the situation wants, is to ship these (war) materials, in ever-increasing quantity, to Britain and her allies on any sort of a basis, as loaned goods, as free gift if necessary.

To do this will require changes in the Neutrality Act and repeal of the Johnson Act. These two items should be the first and immediate interest of the Congresses.

MIAMI HERALD—President Roosevelt's address . . . reads more like a report on the menaces from abroad that confront the Nation—but he touched upon our domestic affairs to the extent of telling us that taxes would have to be upped to meet the national preparedness program and to continue allout aid to Great Britain.

NEW ORLEANS TIMES PICAYUNE—Here is a forthright presentation of national policy, of national peril and of national need that will have the applause and active support of an overwhelming national majority. Mr. Roosevelt puts into words what most Americans feel and believe to be necessary. Upon the course he has charted with respect to Hitler's world war, Congress can give the President its hearty support "without regard to partisanship" with full assurance of active approval and backing by a great majority of the American folks back home.

Peeping Tom on Skis Starred In Week's Dizziest Doings

By Gladwin Hill

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 6.—The eight-column headline on the Dizzy Digest this week unquestionably goes to the case of the two men who staggered up to the New Orleans Sugar Bowl game with tickets for the California Rose Bowl game——

Having taken, they concluded somewhat blearily, the wrong train.

The rest of the dispatches in the cockeyed Chronicle are drier, but hardly more rational.

Discoveries of the week: In Scarsdale, N. Y., an unidentified peeping Tom who operates on skis . . . and in Cleveland, a hit-and-run pedestrian who bumped into a car, broke one of its windows, and escaped—into the sanctuary of a burlesque house.

Errors of the week: After waiting in line an hour to get his driver's license renewed, a Tulsa, Okla., man discovered he'd already renewed it . . . and a Columbia, S. C., man found that he'd sent out all his New Years cards in envelopes marked "do not open until Christmas."

Darned-Clever-Those-Americans Division: A Japanese song-and-dance contest in Honolulu was won, in a field of 40 competitors, by a girl of Scotch-Irish-Portuguese descent . . . And out in St. Paul there cropped up that fabulous character, the man who built a boat in his cellar and had to tear the house apart to get it out—but this man claimed he meant to all along!

Banquet Dept.: A Tacoma, Wash., minister gave a "bring-the-person-you-like-least" dinner, and it was pronounced a great success . . . and a Columbia, S. C., club planned a dinner for the benefit of the Greeks, consisting solely of Italian spaghetti.

Meanest Thief & Co.: Two Chicago holdup men, after robbing a woman grocer, hung her up on a hook for 10 uncomfortable minutes . . . and some burglars, after cleaning out a home in Scottsbluff, Nebr., lay down in the bedroom and took a nap.

Family Affairs: The sheriff of Moundsville, W. Va., retired exactly 100 years to the hour after his grandfather . . . A Brockton, Mass., woman who has four twin sisters and twin daughters gave birth to triplets . . . And the Port Chester, N. Y., couple who won prizes for having the first local baby of 1940 scored again with the first baby of 1941.

Two boys somehow managed to capture an alligator amid the tropical fastnesses of Pocomoke, Md. . . . And a health meeting in New Haven had to be canceled because all the speakers were sick.

Md. Retail Sales In Year Up 35%

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—Maryland's retail sales in 1939 totaled $619,273,000, an increase of 35 per cent over the comparable figure for the 1935 business census, a bulletin from the Bureau of the Census stated today.

The total even topped the 1929 predepression figure, which was given as $610,967,000.

Selects Ruled Exempt From Md. Auto Tags

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—The attorney general's office advised Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, State adjutant general, today that officers and men from other States coming to Fort George G. Meade for military training would not be required to purchase Maryland license tags for their private automobiles.

Reckord had written Attorney General William C. Walsh asking for the opinion, asserting that "large numbers" of men would come here when the Twenty-ninth Division is mobilized about February 1.

"Were these officers and men to be stationed in Maryland proper," the opinion said, "Maryland tags would be required at the expiration of three months.

"They will be stationed at Fort Meade, however, which is a Federal reservation, and will not be residing in this State at all . . . and they may operate their vehicles, if duly licensed in their home State, without Maryland tags, even though they are stationed at Fort Meade for a period in excess of three months in any year."

An act of the 1939 Legislature provided that "officers, men, and other employes of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps assigned to duty in this State for indefinite periods, shall be considered nonresidents . . ."

Assistant Attorney General Robert E. Clapp, jr., explained that if the out-of-State troops were stationed at Fort Meade longer than one year, it would only be necessary for them to renew their car licenses in their home State.

Franklin, Jr., Begins Career In Wall Street Law Firm

There's Nothing Fancy About Job, He Admits; Gets $2,100 Yearly

By Inez Robb.

International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 6.—It would be slightly hyperbolic to record that Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., buckled down to his first day's gainful employment just like any young American in similar circumstances.

Young Roosevelt hung up his hat today in the legal firm of Wright, Gordon, Zachary & Parlin at 63 Wall Street, a thoroughfare allergic to Roosevelts from time to time in the past. The President's third son will toil there as just another $2,100-a-year law clerk.

But at the end of the first day, Franklin hadn't signed any big, important legal papers. He hadn't opened any mail. In fact, he hadn't even had a taste of what the job will be like from now on.

"The trouble with this first day is that I've had no time to do anything but pose for newspaper photographers and be interviewed by reporters," he said.

"I didn't even have time to listen to my old man deliver his address to Congress," he added regretfully. I said that I had.

"Was he good?" asked his son eagerly. "Was he specific?"

Then he talked about this, his first job.

"I'm starting out the way everyone else does," he said. "I have a desk here with a lot of other people. There's nothing fancy about it."

Ordinarily, he would have gone to work last September, at the time when law firms usually hire clerks who have been graduated the previous June from law school.

"But there was that little matter of a campaign to keep me busy all autumn," said the handsome young man who was graduated from the University of Virginia law school eight months ago.

"I don't know how much good I did," he said modestly, "but at least I got through the campaign without stubbing my toe or cramming both feet in my mouth."

But from now on, Franklin will get to work at 9 a. m. each and every work-day morning. He will quit at eventide whenever his work is finished.

General legal experience is what he is after. He is not specializing in any particular department of the law.

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT, Jr.

His brother Jimmy's business (motion pictures) may have more blondes in it, but Franklin still thinks law will be more interesting. He and his father, he proudly pointed out, are the only lawyers in the family.

For his first day on the job, young Roosevelt was a picture of what the well-dressed law clerk wears. He was attired in a white shirt with a double-breasted pin striped brown suit, brown shoes and brown sox. ("But no garters! I don't like 'em," he added.)

His black tie with the narrow gold stripes was, he admitted, the old school tie: That of the exclusive Fly Club of Harvard, to which both he and his father belong. It had no special significance—just the first tie that came to hand when he was dressing this morning.

For several months now he and his wife, the former Ethel duPont, and their son, Franklin D. 3d, have been living in New York.

The junior Franklin D. said he had no idea how long it would take him to work up to the dignity of a separate office. When asked if he eventually planned a career in politics, he smiled and said:

"That's a question I'm not going to answer for a long, long time."

District Housing

The benefit of the Defense Housing Coordinator's work has begun to make itself felt in the District. Although it has been known that there were many vacant homes in and near Washington, the availability of these for the various types of incoming defense workers remained disputed or in doubt. Now a preliminary report has clarified the situation to such an extent that Mr. Roosevelt has been able to authorize Government construction here of some 300 housing units in the locations and of the kinds most needed. He acted under the law which operates when he judges an acute shortage exists which cannot be met by private enterprise.

At the same time the coordinator designated over 500 units considered suitable for private construction, and pointed out that housing of the Alley Dwelling Authority probably would be open only to such Army or Navy personnel as could meet the general entrance requirements. This decision of the ADA not to convert any of its projects to defense housing is a wise one. For if ADA were unable to accommodate the low-income groups among the ordinary population, the housing problem would be greatly aggravated.

The homes to be built here as a result of the coordinator's program as so far formulated will take care of certain classes of Army and Navy personnel. Later surveys will look to the housing of other types, including the horde of office workers descending on Washington. Such planning is essential if we are to avoid overcrowding, which encourages epidemics and disrupts the lives of permanent residents; improper location, which hinders those housed in the performance of their jobs and may cause streets to be clogged with the traffic which carries them; and competition between Government agencies and private enterprise, which results in waste, failures and ill feeling.

A Realistic Plan

Labor leaders representing 13 international metal trades unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. are on record as opposed to strikes and lockouts in defense industries. In taking this stand spokesmen for the unions have shown their statesmanship in stressing the responsibility of both labor and management for maximum production for defense in the present emergency. The unions, however, have not been content with a general declaration of policy—they have also proposed a plan of action to assure maintenance of industrial peace.

Broadly speaking, this plan follows the methods of procedure laid down by the Railway Labor Act, which have been so successfully applied to the roads. The primary aim is to strengthen and improve the machinery of collective bargaining, not by invoking Government aid, but by direct negotiations between employers and organized labor. If the parties to a proposed agreement are unable to come to terms they would call upon the conciliation service of the Department of Labor to adjust differences. As a last resort arbitration, voluntarily accepted by labor and management, would follow. No compulsion would be applied from without to force acceptance of arbitral awards. That is a wise arrangement, for as Dr. Leo Wolman states in outlining his own plan for averting strikes and lockouts, compulsory arbitration "would revolutionize the traditional position and rights of American labor and would not be accepted by either the unions or their members." Nevertheless, if the flow of defense materials should be seriously retarded by labor disputes, compulsion would almost certainly be attempted as the alternative to ineffectual efforts at voluntary settlement of differences.

In offering a realistic plan for dealing with the strike and lockout menace, the metal trades unions are seeking to forestall direct Government action that might seriously impair their freedom of action, as well as that of employing industries. They are trying to apply "the methods of democracy" to a national emergency. At the same time the plan permits the unions to rely upon the aid of Government mediators, if their own efforts should prove unavailing. The plan has the further advantage of being applicable to all representative unions, whether they are affiliated with the A. F. of L., the C. I. O. or an independent group.

The plan, in short, is well worthy of consideration as a genuine contribution to the cause of industrial peace, and as a tangible sign that labor leaders are thinking in terms of the national welfare.

Let's Go

The President's address to Congress yesterday provided a fitting complement to his fireside chat to the Nation last Sunday week. Together they make a complete rationale for our role as the "great arsenal of democracy." It was vital to know for what we are arming as well as why and against whom. Mr. Roosevelt's intuition showed him the need for such a battle cry for the worker in the factory no less than for the soldier in the field. And so the President yesterday outlined a future world order founded upon human freedom which we shall seek to assert on the morrow of victory.

No longer need the aggressors have any illusions about the reason for the electric evolution in our national policy. It is a response to their own threats. The encircling pact which they signed on September 27 was what Talleyrand used to call "a blunder worse than a crime." The blunder consisted of a too-simple view of our pacifism. We may be soft-hearted, but, as Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday, we aren't soft-headed, and no more prodigious mistake was ever made in history than the mistake of the three aggressor powers in thinking of our pacifism as a fightless impotence.

Adolf Hitler may deny again, as he did in his reply to the President's fireside chat, that the three-power pact conveyed any threat to the United States. But against whom was the pact leveled if not against the United States? The pact in its ominous third article said that if a third power interfered in the current wars, the three signatories would make common cause against that third party. Surely the reference had nothing to do with the Soviet Union. Moscow already is aligned with Berlin, and, besides, nothing would please the Japanese more than to see their Muscovite enemy enmeshed in the European complex.

Any schoolboy could see at whom the pact was directed. It was directed at this country. And since September 27 the three powers have been rubbing in the point in truculent speeches in Tokyo and Berlin and in three-power military conversations in Berlin. The aim was to shut us in—to hamstring us against any action outside our own borders. No affront could be plainer. If we wish to isolate ourselves, that is our business, but to allow other nations to "enforce isolation for ourselves or for any part of the Americas" amounted to barefaced intimidation.

Doubtless the spokesmen in Berlin also will say that the President is again sponsoring "a dumb and infamous lie" in thinking of Hitler as a would-be world conqueror. There is no fear in our feeling that Hitler and his cohorts are bent upon world conquest. We are merely reacting to our own intelligence—beginning at last to see that, as a wise man once said, "the beginning of wisdom is attention to realities." The realities are in "Mein Kampf" and in the manner in which the road to world conquest has been traveled in strict conformance to "Mein Kampf." In that book we read that if the Nazis remain true to Nazi principles, they "must one day become rulers of the earth." We read the technic of inculcating pacifism in others so that the Nazis shall become "sole masters of this earth." And when Hitler says again, as doubtless he will, that Germany wants "a just peace and her own place in the sun," we should recall these words, and bear in mind the legend in "Mein Kampf": "First battle, then pacifism." Battle for what? The beginning has been attested in the subjugation already of half Europe, and the end is attested in a dispatch from Tokyo on the very day of the President's address saying that "Japan's plans for a new world order are interwoven with her alliance with Germany."

The United States, moreover, would be Hitler's enemy even if the Fuehrer and his allies were not intent upon world conquest. For we are at the head and front of "the other world" of free enterprise which, according to Hitler's December 10 speech, no Hitler regime could tolerate. The spectacle of a free people on this side of the ocean would be a constant invitation to revolt in all the countries which Hitler has enslaved.

Under Mr. Roosevelt our country intends to match our moral and material dynamism against the militaristic dynamism which has given Hitler his victories so far against his slower-footed adversaries. For this purpose we have entered into a moral and material alliance with Britain, Greece and China. President Roosevelt's address shows that it is a firm compact. And our pledge is consonant with the truest pacifism—the pacifism which, according to Spinoza, is the "harmony of strong souls." For the end is not to be merely the eradication of the scourge which is seeking to tear into a thousand pieces our seamless garment of civilization. The President in yesterday's address put ardor into our struggle, he justified our sacrifice, by enouncing war aims committing us to the reestablishment of the "four essential human freedoms." These freedoms make up a familiar credo to Americans—freedom of speech and expression, freedom of worship, freedom from want, freedom from fear.

In struggling to set up these freedoms in a new moral order for the world, we are by the same token insuring them in our country, for all of these freedoms will be endangered in the event that the Nazis should snatch a victory in Europe and become the modern Titan before we have filled our arsenal and armed our associates to the hilt. Let's go!

Bardia And Beyond

The Battle of Bardia has clearly revealed that the victory at Sidi Barrani last month was no flash in the pan but the result of the brilliant application by the British of the most modern methods of warfare. There was, at all times, the most effective kind of coordination between the British ground forces, the air force and the fleet. The Italians at Bardia found themselves caught like rats in a trap, with no reinforcements of men or supplies able to reach them and no avenue of escape open. They fought bravely, but theirs was no last ditch fight, as can be gauged by the large number of those who surrendered.

This circumstance will undoubtedly encourage the British to press on toward Tobruk, 75 miles to the west, which is already being subjected to fierce aerial and naval bombardment. Possibly the Italian garrison there may be reinforced by German planes and fliers, but it is doubtful if Hitler is prepared to risk any considerable portion of his Luftwaffe in an African venture that steadily becomes more dubious. The only advantage active participation in the African fighting would gain for the Third Reich would be to keep the British fleet and air force in the Mediterranean while an assault on the British Isles is carried out. But this game may not be worth the candle.

Thus Italy's hold on Libya is now definitely in danger. Moreover, the defeats suffered by Italian arms during these past weeks may create serious repercussions in Italian East Africa, where the Blackshirt garrisons are cut off from the homeland by vast stretches of desert and by the British fleet. Truly Mussolini's grandiose dream of empire is being followed by a rude awakening in which the results of half a century of heart-breaking colonial efforts may go up in smoke. At last the Duce is proving a very expensive luxury for the Italians.

Marriages Are Made . . .

Boys and girls of Southeast Washington churches are only the latest in a long line of amateur sociologists who have tried to improve on the haphazard processes of thought or self-deception by which we choose our mates. The trouble with all the new formulae is that, when boiled down, they emerge strangely familiar in shape.

At their institute Sunday night the young men and women made statements from which some persons have inferred a certain contempt for physical beauty. All they said, however, was that they wanted something more. This is an important point, for, after all, beauty is composed largely of those factors which man has considered indicative of health. If we suppressed the susceptibility to beauty, we might become a race marked by buck teeth, doughy complexions, red eyes and lopsided faces, not to mention more obscure and possibly more terrible afflictions.

The boys and girls of the churches laid the main stress on Christian personality as desirable in a mate. But when they defined Christian personality its components were revealed to be consideration, thoughtfulness, kindness, courtesy, intelligence and understanding. These are just the qualities, however, for which, through the centuries, every lonely heart has yearned.

But if anybody is still worried about the normality of tastes in these young people, his fears should be allayed by the remark of one who had outlined the admirable characteristics she would require in the man she marries. It is safe to assume that she spoke for all of them when she added quickly: "Of course, I've got to love him!"

With that, civilization is back to where it was in the days of the Neanderthaler and the Cro-Magnon. And it's not such a bad old world, is it?

REFUSAL

The fruit was there—great yellow apples, giant plums—upon her dining table.
And we, small sisters errand-sent, for all our training were not able To keep our sidewalk path unbent. But, turning to her door— —
So close the house was to the street—wide-eyed, we dared implore,

"Could we please have just one apiece?" And she, as right must go,
Was doubtless right: "I do not think your mother'd like your doing this, and so I think I'd best say no." And what had been adventure thus became
A queer young sadness and a sudden shame.

Perhaps the passing of some thirty years should cover deep that day
And why it hasn't I am not quite sure enough to say
Except that it was bitterness—and left upon the tongue
The taste of all refusals, and the grief of all the young!

Favors Republic

A letter signed Quo Vadis in The Post of January 1 brought the following thoughts to the mind of one of your readers.

In a republic the people elect their local representatives, presumably the wisest, most trustworthy men in their midst. In our country, after two years for the House, six for the Senate, the actions of these men are judged by their constituents and they are either rejected, or reelected.

If they are republicans in spirit, they have during this period voted according to their own convictions, with absolute disregard to any form of pressure, that of their constituents included. In no great country can the masses be possibly qualified to decide matters of legislation because, the greater the nation grows the more complicated becomes the business of government. Even should they be fully qualified to decide as to local or State matters, they are still in no position to judge correctly how such matters conflict with the welfare of the nation as an entity. Congress alone can do that.

A republic can weather and survive any storm—a democracy is doomed to fail because, when the people have entrusted a man by them duly elected with the power to legislate, they will rightfully learn to despise him if he proves unworthy of their trust, and all he does is run back and forth, keeping his nose to the ground, and consulting them on every step he takes.

For a while they might be pleased, like children with a new toy but, in the long run they will inevitably vote themselves into such impossible situations that they will yell for a leader and turn away in disgust from those who have failed them.

It is essential to add that the respective denominations of our two major political parties are absolutely confusing. Some of the finest men we have in Congress, although republican in the true sense of the word, vote the Democratic ticket, whereas many a so-called Republican has adopted the ways which are the very essence of democracy.

As a loyal American citizen I pray every day that this Nation become a republic in the true sense of the word; any other form of government in our country would lead to complete disaster. We possess none of the qualities, either the good or the bad, that make dictatorships work.

Of Exploitation

Which of the two denotes the least understanding, those who "exploit for their own ends our natural abhorrence of war," or those who exploit for their own ends our acquired realism?

From Eton

Following are extracts from a letter written from Eton to a former Eton master:

"You will no doubt have heard that we had a nice little air raid a week ago and about 250 fire bombs on Eton. Most houses were hit, but no damage done to speak of, as the boys greeted them with glee and put them all out at once. A boy at one house woke up to find an incendiary bomb burning merrily in the armchair beside his bed. He beat it out with his empty water jug. Tell your gardener that I had one through my greenhouse, but instead of blowing it to pieces it only broke the two panes through which it fell and singed a few of the less showy chrysanthemums. The next morning was fun as there were hundreds of little boys grabbing about for relics and lots of good ones were found.

"For instance, one boy took an unexploded bomb into chapel that morning and passed it round among his friends at the altar end of chapel. Another one threw an unexploded bomb at the wall in 'Sixpenny' and was surprised and delighted when it went off! I expect some pretty good Sunday letters went out that Sunday to British parents, judging from one telegram which I took down over the telephone a few days after, containing these words of wisdom from the far north of Scotland to the smallest boy in the house: 'On no account dig up what you mentioned in your letter, Daddy.' What had the boy said? 'The Provost surrounded by time-bombs! Land mines in the Fives Courts!' We shall never know. Most typical of all was Dr. L. who on the day after the air raid was visited by a mother who wished her boy to give up the piano and learn an instrument more useful to him in after life.' Dr. L., cautious but unshaken, suggested the harp."

Realizing Our Peril

Because no democracy can take on the personality and whims of one man to anywhere near the extent such is possible under dictatorships, democracies can be depended upon. They can be depended upon to act close to the way of the average citizen.

This makes democracy the only sort of government capable of holding the trust of its neighbors, hence of keeping the peace of the world. Yet the "vice of its virtue" is that democracy is ever exceedingly slow to awaken to peril in its greater forms, ever slow to understand new dangers. Consider how slow England was to comprehend the real meaning of Hitlerism, with its "New Order" of slavery.

And consider how slow even we Americans have been to realize that England's peril is also our own. Even this long after Chamberlain's awakening from his dream, and indeed even after Chamberlain has passed from the entire scene, there is a very real element of appeasers among us.

These appeasers may know well enough that their spiritual brothers in Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France are today languishing in a condition far nearer bondage under the Pharaohs than freedom. They may know well that under Hitlerism the Jews know more terror and misery than the "untouchables" of India. Yet here these appeasers remain, appeasers to the very end, prouder of their stubborn stand than of any capacity to understand.

We are strongly reminded of Woodrow Wilson's observation that wise men do not fear to change their minds, while the mark of a fool is that he rarely does change his mind, never forgetting anything, never learning anything.

Debate On Aid To Britain

At the sight of three letters published in these columns recently holding that this Nation should assume a more neutral attitude so as to refrain from incurring Hitler's enmity, my resolution to write no more to the editor has received a setback. Those who think along those lines should bear in mind that Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium were strictly neutral in every respect; but what happened to them? The Poles and Czechs did everything possible to appease the warlord, but look at them today. The same thing is happening in the Balkans. You just can't deal with a man who has turned out to be the greatest double-crosser in history, Lindbergh's statement to the contrary notwithstanding. As to our sending supplies to Britain, why not? It is allowable under neutrality laws. On the other hand, no one seems to object because Russia, Sweden and Rumania for years have furnished Germany with the essential wheat, iron ore and oil which helped Hitler first to arm and then to conquer a good share of Europe. Without those supplies Germany would be helpless within a month.

Mr. Lanier's argument that if Hitler can't cross the English Channel he surely can't cross the Atlantic doesn't hold water, since, if Britain falls, the Germans would take over the British navy, which is superior to ours, and would raise merry hell without shipping and seaports, even without Japan's help. F. N. P. says Hitler has no quarrel with the Western Hemisphere, which is true: Adolf had no quarrel with the four nations mentioned above, either. No; he would not have to have a quarrel with the Western Hemisphere in order to nazify us and then take us over lock, stock and barrel. F. N. P. should know by this time that Hitler's actions speak far louder than any words he can utter. Let us do as the President advocates—"Get busy," or else learn the goose step and Nazi salute.

Washington, Jan. 2.

How the Gods of War must have laughed when, two days after celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace, two days after a truce between England and Germany during which the planes stopped in their grisly work of showering bombs upon innocent peoples in the belligerent countries, our President pours oil on the fires of war!

When the Chinese, the Ethiopians, the Austrians, the Czechs, the Spaniards, the Albanians, etc., were invaded, we had an embargo—to keep us out of war—but when England is getting a dose of its own double-cross and is made to disgorge some of its ill-gotten plunder (there are two ways of having colonies, one by open seizure, the other through loans to some crooked politicians who will sell out their country for money) we must lift the embargo and give all aid short of war, and then a little incident easily manufactured, and behold our President, pledged to peace like Wilson, will lead us into war.

It is high time the President shewed by actions that he seeks peace and does not intend to make us an appendage to the British Empire. How many offers to negotiate peace the President has turned down only the secret archives will someday show, but this is no reason that a start cannot be made in this direction. Our President can refuse to ship any war materials to England until all efforts to negotiate a peace have failed.

To give a formula for peace is foolish, but the belligerents have demonstrated their ability to call a truce for the Christmas holidays. To fail to stop the flow of war materials is to be responsible for each minute of death and destruction that continues. What does it avail the widows and orphans, the wounded and cripples, in the devastated countries that the British Empire wins the war. Past experience has shown that a British victory is no guarantee of peace. Therefore I urge that war materials should cease to flow to England until all efforts at peace fail.

The Post Impressionist

Oh, Pshaw!

I SEE by the newspapers that George Bernard Shaw refuses to carry a gas mask because if he wore one he's afraid he'd look like a fool. He hasn't changed. The day we had tea with him in the festival town of Malvern, he came puffing up the steep incline to the orangery of our hotel, remarking that it was time Malvern had funiculars. After all, he said, funiculars were artistic enough in themselves.

The sun had already slipped behind the hills, fading the bright blue walls of the garden-room, and turning to pale puce the crimson sofa occupied by Mrs. Shaw. Her husband looked very upright, indeed, in his straight-backed chair, but also more like an overgrown, mischievous schoolboy than usual. He wore his customary gray Norfolk suit and knickerbockers, the brown Norwegian brogans and green worsted socks, and carried a Panama hat. His white beard looked freshly laundered. He had not been outdoors much, and except for the rosy nose and rosy drooping line of the cheek his face had a peculiar pink pallor. The left cheek made a perfect arc, following the line of the mustache, and it was the left side of his face that he generally twitched in mischief.

"I notice," said this vegetarian in his high, thin voice, as he reached for the cucumber-and-tomato sandwiches, "that whenever I'm told something has been especially prepared for me, everybody helps himself first."

His tea consisted of a glass of milk, sandwiches and an apple. After trying in vain to break the apple, he bit into it with great relish and said he thought he must be getting old. "At any rate, I seem to be losing my memory. I can't remember a person five minutes after meeting him. One of these days I'll be meeting Charlotte in the street and asking who she is."

Charlotte Shaw smiled. She was what New Englanders would call a comfortable homebody—freckles, and twinkling eyes behind pince-nez.

"I'm certainly growing more solitary," her husband went on. "But I don't mind being solitary. I find, as I grow older, that I've no great need of people. My mother was a solitary woman. Some men can't bear to be alone. That's what's wrong with actors and actresses. They've nothing to do in the daytime and they're afraid to be alone."

"And if they have got something to do," Mrs. Shaw chimed in, "they've no energy left for their performances at night."

"Precisely," said her husband. "I had an actress in one of my sketches who just wouldn't stay in bed until noon. She refused to be pampered and cosseted. She went off instead and did social service work in the afternoon. And do you know, her charm began to vanish, and her performance fell off terribly. Actors are such spoofs. They've really no personality. It takes a playwright to come along and impress character on them." His right eyebrow went up maliciously, just as it did the day he explained the abnormal bump on his high skull, so broad at the back, by saying that it meant excessive sex appeal.

The talk veered to "Fanny's First Play," and Mr. Shaw remarked: "The critics who were dissatisfied with this play were those whom I'd omitted to caricature in the epilogue. It's quite true," he added, when we all duly laughed, "you can caricature a man on the stage so exactly that his identity is unmistakable, and he will feel flattered. But if you're writing an autobiography—in England, at any rate—you can be malicious only to a certain extent. You can call somebody a pig or a swine or an old goat, but if you say his check's no good, or that he keeps two domestic establishments, you're haled into court. And an autobiography is a dull book unless you're malicious. Unless you can disclose yourself subtly, it's like a bad photograph."

As if by telepathy, he drew out his gold watch and whistled. "My dear, it's 6 o'clock. We must go."

They made their adieus, by no means forgetting their umbrellas. We watched the elderly couple walking sedately down the narrow gravel path of the lawn slope that led past the glossy mulberry trees. Feeling the need of a bracer, we sauntered over to the Unicorn, a mellow and famous old pub, where we drank golden ale out of pewter mugs.

And while we drank and chatted, a figure blew in. It was not a figure that should be mentioned in the same breath with Mr. Shaw. In fact, its breath had better not be mentioned at all. He missed the handbell on the bar and began thumping the counter to call the pubkeeper, all the while droning happily to himself. When we pointed out the bell to him, he rang it with great effect, and then responded like a child to our overture. We became old friends on the spot, after he offered us all a Woodbine, the cigarette of the working-classes.

He was from Birmingham. He had just dropped in for a quick one, while waiting for the bus to come along. "Mother" was outside. With touching eagerness, he drew our attention to his new blue suit, always good for a pound, and to his watch, a two-penny, halfpenny watch.

When he perceived himself the center of an attentive circle, he hailed his spouse with some grandiloquence and offered to buy her a bottle of pop. "Mother's" scared, peaked face relaxed into a grimace as she saw her man attracting notice, but she stolidly refused the pop. While the pubkeeper looked on our indulgence of this heavy-lidded customer with audible disfavor, the latter extracted every last ounce of glory in his short-lived moment.

Then they departed in the opposite direction to that taken by the Shaws, and left us somehow with the feeling of having communicated for the first time that day with a human being.

A Casualty Of Tolerance

By Mark Sullivan

Mr. White Retires

Mr. William Allen White is a fine American. While in past political battles he has hurled editorial bombs, his oustanding qualities have been kindliness, gentleness, good-will; in his career he has stood up for intolerance, and paid a price for it. If America had a mythological religion of poly-theism, a galaxy of symbolic gods, Mr. White would be the god of benignity.

Last May, Mr. White, with others, organized a Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. The committee, among other activities, helped bring about the transfer of 50 destroyers to Britain.

After some weeks, positions taken by the White committee went so far as to give rise, in some quarters, to concern, lest America become involved in the war as an actual combatant. Some who felt this way formed a kind of countercommittee, called the America First Committee. This committee, while not completely opposing help to Britain, insisted that the help should not amount to, or lead to, actual participation in the war.

PRESENTLY Mr. White had misgivings. He felt a "sense that the war fever was rising, and I didn't like it." In that mood, Mr. White made a public statement. He said he did not favor repeal of any of America's neutrality statutes—"the only reason in God's world I am in this organization is to keep America out of war."

To this statement by Mr. White there were two reactions. One came from the opposing America First Committee. It said, through its heads, that if this were Mr. White's position, they were in agreement; that they, like Mr. White, approved some help to Britain, but insisted that the help should not be such as to lead to actual war.

The other response to Mr. White's statement was from his own associates, in his own committee. It was bitter. Mayor LaGuardia of New York accused Mr. White of "doing a typical Laval"—a phrase having pretty odious implications. Others of Mr. White's associates emitted imputations even more damaging and wounding to his feelings. From having first been called a pro-British "war-monger," Mr. White now was called a pro-Nazi "appeaser."

Mr. White resigned the chairmanship of his committee. Last week, in his Emporia Gazette, he printed a poignant editorial, addressed to his own Emporia neighbors. He would, he said, devote his remaining years to work "in that area of the Lord's vineyard" which is Emporia and Kansas.

IN THE STRIFE we are entering, Mr. White is an early casualty of tolerance and free speech, an early martyr to the war fever he feared. An even earlier victim, on the other side from Mr. White, is Col. Charles Lindbergh, though he, young and tough-fibered, will probably continue to express himself, as his right. What America may properly feel about these two men, on opposing sides of a public question, was put in words by former President Herbert Hoover:

"It is a sign of a dangerously irresponsible mind in a nation when patriotic men are fiercely denounced as being the tools of Great Britain or pro-Nazi. . . . I refer to two men—single-minded in their devotion to our country. They are William Allen White and Col. Lindbergh—both of whom have long since earned the gratitude of Americans."

There is another person, about whose case there is mystery, which ought to be cleared up. Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy aided Mr. Roosevelt's first campaign in 1932; was made by Mr. Roosevelt chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, chairman of the Maritime Commission, Ambassador to Britain. Last November he returned to America and made a strong radio address in favor of the election of Mr. Roosevelt. On December 8 last Mr. Kennedy resigned, with a statement completely friendly to Mr. Roosevelt.

THROUGHOUT all these activities, Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal had no fault to find with Mr. Kennedy. Yet the moment after Mr. Kennedy resigned, there was unloosed upon him a deluge of derogation some of which must either have originated within the Administration, or been inspired by it, or had its help. Among other journalists who sometimes reflect the inner New Deal, Messrs. Alsop and Kintner printed an article which, with intent to demean Mr. Kennedy, epitomized official communications that he, while Ambassador, had sent to the President and State Department. The article said that Mr. Kennedy's former associates are "visibly relieved to be his associates no longer." Finally, and appallingly, the article said that "certain State Department officials are now reported to be investigating his doings."

The cause of this descent of derogation upon Mr. Kennedy is said to lie in certain views about the war and American policy, which he had stated privately, and in a newspaper interview which he said was unauthorized.

Whatever views Mr. Kennedy has, he should feel free to give to the public directly, frankly and fully. The merit or direction of Mr. Kennedy's views are not so important as the public's right to know them—and his right to say them.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Does American Democracy Work?

THE MESSAGE of the President formally makes it the official policy of the United States to support the struggle for a free order in our world and to resist the establishment of a totalitarian order. For eight months—since the invasion of Holland in May—this policy has been before the American people, and on all the occasions when they could express themselves responsibly, their verdict has been in favor of this policy.

This policy was the controlling issue at the Republican convention in June. But for the fact that Mr. Wendell Willkie alone among the candidates was clearly committed to this policy, he would never have been nominated against the field. It was the controlling consideration at the Democratic convention. But for Mr. Roosevelt's clear identification with the whole problem of the war, it is in the highest degree unlikely that he would have been nominated for a third term by a virtually unanimous convention. The issue was presented to the voters not once but repeatedly by both Mr. Willkie and Mr. Roosevelt, and when the voters went to the polls they knew that the winner of the election would declare the policy that the President has now declared. Moreover, during the summer the Congress by repeated votes—for a two-ocean Navy, for a great air force, and for conscription in time of peace—committed itself to the view that the United States must be defended against a victory of the Triple Axis.

THIS, THEN, is no unexpected declaration of policy by President Roosevelt as an individual person. This is a national policy, considered for three-quarters of a year by free discussion in the press and on the platform, through political conventions, through Congressional proceedings, and finally through a national election. If ever there was a case of the full employment of the process of democracy to settle a national policy, this is it. No one can suggest that this policy has not been openly and freely placed before the people. No one can suggest that this policy has not been subjected to every procedure known to democracy. No one can deny that by every means available under the institutions and customs of democracy, this policy has received the conscious and deliberate approval of the Nation.

Is it now to be suggested that the decision so taken is not to be acted upon, that the whole question is to be debated again and thrown open to another agitation as if it were a new question which had never before been submitted to the people? To take this view of the rights and duties of Congress is to argue that while democracy requires that the people shall debate their policies, they are not to reach a decision as a result of debate. For if now we have to argue all over again what we have been arguing for eight months, then we shall make democracy ridiculous: We shall prove that democracies can only talk themselves into inaction and confusion.

THE ISSUE before Congress and the country today is not whether America shall be defended by supporting those who resist aggression. The people have spent eight months settling that issue, and therefore in all reason the only question left is how to do effectively and wisely what has been decided and promised. There is here no undetermined question of principle. In principle the only issue is whether the decision of the people that this shall be American policy is to be overthrown and reversed—or, what is even worse, the carrying out of their decision delayed and thus defeated.

The issue is whether democracy works—whether deliberate debate can produce effective decisions and whether effective decisions can then produce practical results. It is a momentous issue. For if democracy does not work in America because it gets itself bogged down in unending agitation and repetitive debate and a legislative filibuster, then it is defeated here, and it will not survive the test to which it is subjected.

Paris Bookshelves Purged By German Secret Police

By T. F. Koop.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Widespread raids on Paris libraries and bookstores by the German Gestapo, highly placed educational quarters disclosed yesterday, have swept their shelves clean of anti-Nazi writings and much philosophical and historical literature.

The raids began, authoritative sources reported, when the German secret police visited bookshops, stalls and newsstands along the Seine late last summer and ordered the proprietors to hand over within a half hour all copies of 143 books on a list which was presented.

The American library in Paris was described as among the institutions served with such an order, but information received here said that the Gestapo removed no books, accepting a promise that all those objectionable from the Nazi viewpoint would be withdrawn from circulation.

Copies of Lists Reach Here

Since those first raids, supplemental lists of banned books—copies of which have reached Washingtonians—have been passed out to Parisian libraries and booksellers. In general, the order is that nothing of an "anti-German character" may be sold.

Most of the volumes on the first list were by French authors, and included not only books on the Nazi regime and totalitarian governments, but also several about the Russo-Finnish war.

Latest advices from authentic neutral sources said that the Gestapo had seized the libraries of all Masonic organizations in France. The Bibliotheque Nationale (the French National Library) thereupon put in a claim for these books, but the latest word was that the Germans declined to hand them over, saying that the material would be sent to Germany "for purposes of study."

Books Sent to Germany

The Library of the Alliance Israelite in Paris, worth several million francs, also was said to have been seized and sent to Germany.

From the Bibliotheque Nationale—one of the world's leading libraries—the Germans were reported to have received an inventory of manuscripts, rare books, etc., which had been stored elsewhere in France for security during the war.

German officials, according to the information received here, have been exercising close supervision over the French publishing industry. They also have taken over the Maison du Livre Francais, most important French book exporting agency.

The Counterattack

THE Northwest Organizer, the official publication of the Teamsters' Joint Council of Minneapolis, has reprinted an editorial which presents very well the reaction of the mercenary unioneer to revelations of crookedness on the part of his pals. This organization, incidentally, is a political freak, being one of the few elements in the A. F. of L. in which the Communist influence is dominant.

The Northwest Organizer replies to detailed, specific disclosures of criminality in labor organization by citing a number of recent cases involving persons and firms engaged in other lines.

First is that of a New York brokerage firm "caught swindling" customers out of $50,000. "Certainly," the Organizer observes, "a minor peccadillo for a Wall Street outfit."

NEXT, the Organizer says, "a boss newspaper" and two of its officers were just convicted of conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Next, "11 conspirators who monopolize the Nation's nitrate products" have just been indicted on a charge of conspiracy to control supply and price.

Then we have a New York broker, sentenced to a year in jail for fraud, and an item from a Southern city in which 38 cops were found guilty of taking bootleg bribes and another was fined $50 for cursing a colored witness against him.

A New York insurance broker, charged with criminal assault on a 17-year-old girl, is next on the list, the Northwest Organizer observing that the rape of children is "a common practice of the rich who love to talk about the sanctity of the home and how the Reds are out to destroy it."

THERE ARE four other citations, including the Howard Hopson case, but these will give you the general idea, and a full canvass of the docket would leave me no room for my say, which is as follows:

The Organizer's editorial says all the persons and companies cited in its list are members or hangers-on of the "upper class," and that those who bark at organized labor can't seem to see or hear real examples of racketeering and thievery by such. The answer is, of course, that crooks are constantly being exposed and punished in all walks of life, but that only in the labor racket is the denunciation and legal prosecution of a knave resented as an attack on a whole class of innocent people.

The reason is that the proportion of crooks is higher in union leadership than in any other occupation, thanks to many years of immunity from prosecution by public authorities. Now, seeing their racket challenged at last, the labor fakers are greatly alarmed, and by means of union weeklies which they publish to protect their powers, are trying to convince their rank and file victims that punishment of those who prosecute them will somehow harm them. Lest it seem to be a careless, unconsidered statement, I repeat that in union leadership the proportion of crooks is higher than in any other occupation.

POSSIBLY the theft of $50,000 is "a minor peccadillo" in union management, too. I have called attention to a Chicago judge, a shameless labor faker, whose law firm for a dozen years wrung about $60,000 a year from the members of a janitors' union, to George Scalise, the thief and fifth column of the Capone-Nitto mob in labor organization, and to a rich and powerful unioneer who grafted $100,000 from the pension fund of his members but still holds his job.

Regarding the newspaper which is said to have been convicted of restraint of trade, I have no information, but I do observe that the newspaper industry has not made this an occasion to rail against the Government as labor fakers rail against those who expose union crooks. And as to the nitrate man, as yet merely indicted but not convicted, I would point out that scores of union racketeers have been indicted on the same charge and that the labor racket has been yelling bloody murder against these indictments and Thurman Arnold of the Department of Justice.

THE INSURANCE broker was promptly arrested on the rape case, with no protest from his colleagues nor any appeal to the policyholders to resent a foul conspiracy against their interests and the observation that the rape of young girls is a common sport of "the rich" comes awkwardly from men who welcome to the company two convicted white slavers in the role of important labor leaders.

The crooked Southern cops have not been defended by the aroused police of the Nation, but a crooked, renegade cop by name Jack Dempsey is international secretary of a big A. F. of L. union, and the revelation of his moral unfitness for a place of honor in the labor movement is taken very much amiss by labor racketeers everywhere.

That just about rounds out the discussion.

French Panic Teaches British Fear Itself Is Thing to Fear

This is the second of a series of articles giving a closeup of England's immediate situation, without the handicap of censorship, by William McGaffin, Associated Press correspondent who has just returned from covering the war in both France and England.

By William McGaffin
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 6.—One of the French stenographers in our office in Paris got so panicky when war was declared that she tossed up her job and bolted for the country.

George Angus, veteran telegrapher in our London office, got blown clear across the roof by concussion from a nearby land mine a few nights before I left town. Unhurt, he picked himself up and came back down to work as though nothing had happened.

There, in the contrast between Latin emotion and British phlegm lies part of the story of the French defeat.

In fairness to the French it should be emphasized that their morale was pretty good throughout the entire "phony war" period, I know, because I watched it.

The stenographer's reaction, however, was typical of how they all blew up when the Germans pierced the extension of the Maginot Line.

One of the first indications I had that military morale was cracking was that May day when a grimy, roadstained soldier slipped in the back door of my apartment and asked for Yvonne, the maid. It was Albert, her husband.

He had deserted along with some 6,000 other tank corps men and fled to Paris after a disastrous encounter with the Germans at Namur, Belgium.

No One There But Germans

"They told us the Belgians were up there holding the line," he said. "When we got there there was no one but Germans."

As the Germans pressed relentlessly on, the panic spread to the civilian population.

It was not the fault of the French people. They had been led by their press and politicians to believe they were sitting pretty behind the Maginot Line. When the break came, bewilderment and frustration were natural consequences.

The British have profited from this mistake. Newspapers and politicians constantly take the opposite track, warning against overconfidence and unfounded optimism.

Nor will British roads be clogged with refugees if England ever is invaded. The high command has issued rigid orders which it is prepared to carry out ruthlessly, forcing everyone to stay put wherever he may be.

Many of the French were machine-gunned and bombed on the roads. The British understand they will not only be helping their soldiers but they actually will be safer staying in their homes if the emergency arises.

In further keeping with this idea, the British have refused to declare any of their cities "open" cities as the French did. In other words, they will not surrender any one of them without a fight.

In many respects the German blitzkrieg has proved a boomerang. Drawing on their observations in France, British officers have taught their people that the thing most to be feared from a dive bomber is fear itself rather than death.

Dive bombers caused surprisingly small civilian casualties in France. To a certain extent that goes for ordinary bombing. Englishmen have learned how to restrain their fears and stand up to night after night of aerial punishment.

The British army has done better than this. It has borrowed the Germans' own methods with apparent success in the British blitz against Italy in North Africa.

Parachute troops were a menace with which the French were inadequately prepared to cope. They hastily improvised a shotgun army at the eleventh hour. The British have had time to perfect an elaborate home guard organization.

Like the American National Guard, the British home guard is composed of the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker who work at their regular jobs in the daytime and devote spare hours in the evening to military drill. They are on constant call, and armed with second-hand American equipment—single loading rifles and Browning machine guns.

Nazis Encouraged Scares

Although this is admittedly light equipment, it is thought capable of the job it would have to do—that is, backing up the regular army, with its more powerful weapons.

Parachutists themselves, however were not so great a menace in France as the fear they provoked among the population.

The Germans encouraged these scares. They went even further with the British. They dropped empty parachutes, cases of maps and other paraphernalia in an effort to convince John Bull that flocks of parachute troops were being landed. John was not taken in. He picked up the phony props and put them in a glass case where all could see—and scoff.

The French never succeeded in curbing the Fifth Column. They arrested working class Communists who might otherwise have been won over to the cause, and left some leaders free to spread defeatism.

One of the greatest advantages the British have over the French is the superiority complex bred into them from school days on. It's a bore in peacetime but it has proved a morale sustainer in war.

This, I believe, is one of the two big reasons for the terrific British morale. "There's always been an England—therefore there'll always be one," they say.

The other reason is the way they have managed to readjust their lives to blitz conditions. It helps them take the bombs with a smile—like the cockney cop who with unconscious humor was recounting a story of his son's experience:

"I have the silliest son. I can't get him to come in out of the raids. The other night we all went to Anderson (garden shelter) and he kept sticking his head out. Finally I said to him 'come in here you silly goof and give the stuff a chance to fall.'"

Crux Of Defense Problem

SHORTLY AFTER the President announced the reform of the defense setup, William S. Knudsen foregathered with a friendly Government official to discuss his work. The official remarked that he had been given the green light for a really intensive defense effort. "Yes," replied Knudsen ruminatively, "now we can keep our hats on and spit where we please."

Besides being another good item in the ever-increasing canon of Knudsenisms, the remark has considerable significance. It means that even after the President had associated Sidney Hillman with him in exercise of the defense powers, Knudsen was satisfied he had been given adequate authority. The question remains whether he is still satisfied after the row over the Executive order legally establishing the new Office of Production Management, and the resultant enlargement of Hillman's role.

Knudsen wisely maintained an impenetrable Danish silence throughout the row and its aftermath. Thus any statement of his reaction must be speculation. Yet on the basis of the first returns of informed opinion, there seems to be little reason why he should be less pleased now than he was before the governmental factions flew at each other's throats.

IN THE FIRST place, the final form of the Executive order, making Knudsen director of the OPM, and Hillman associate director, with no precise delimitation of their fields of action, is much closer to what the President agreed to and Knudsen approved than the draft of the order giving Knudsen unquestioned administrative primacy. In the second place, Knudsen and Hillman get on well together, and ought to be able to work out a division of duties satisfactory to both. The prospect for such an arrangement is all the better, in view of the determination of Knudsen's allies, the top officials of the War and Navy Departments, to support Hillman in his struggle with the defense contractors who refuse to organize their plants.

The basis of the New Deal demand that Hillman share administrative authority with Knudsen was fear that defense contracts would be unnecessarily granted to manufacturers in bad standing with the National Labor Relations Board. The controversial Ford contract was in the background of the row over the Executive order. In deciding whether it is necessary or unnecessary to grant a certain contract to a certain manufacturer, the War and Navy officials are still inclined to be primarily influenced by considerations of efficiency. But they say they are prepared to join with Hillman in using the strongest kind of moral, and perhaps legal, suasion to bring such employers as Henry Ford into line on labor matters.

IN SHORT, Hillman can have cooperation if he wants it. And if he gets cooperation on labor matters, he will not be inclined to interfere with Knudsen's direction of production.

Knudsen is already hard at work putting together the OPM's production division, bringing in such assistants as William Batt, now in Edward R. Stettinius' office, and Kent Keller, of the Chrysler Co., and outlining suborganizations to handle priorities, aircraft output, purchasing and general production. His efforts may be frustrated in the end, however, unless he and the other members of the OPM squarely tackle the problem so acutely raised by the row over the Executive order.

This problem is the need for an intelligent liaison between the labor crowd and the industrial crowd within the OPM, and between the businessmen down here to do defense work, and the New Dealers already in possession. Fortunately, the solution should not be difficult.

The Defense Commission has never had a general counsel, since each commissioner wanted his own legal adviser. Knudsen chose Frederick Eaton and Stettinius, Blackwell Smith, both from big New York firms; Hillman brought down Maxwell Brandwen, lawyer of his own union, and so on. The system has worked remarkably badly.

ALTHOUGH all these legal advisers are able and patriotic men, all are thoroughly imbued with the psychology of advocacy. The businessmen's lawyers incline to feel that in any contact with the present Administration, a man does well to go armed to the teeth. The lawyers of the nonbusiness commissioners like Hillman and Leon Henderson appear to be convinced that it is their colleagues' life ambition to plant a stiletto in their backs. The lawyers really seem to enjoy controversy, and it is hardly too broad a statement to say that 95 per cent of the rows within the Defense Commission, and between the Defense Commission and other Government agencies, have originated with the legal advisers.

The obvious remedy was to appoint a general counsel, who would serve everyone, and would avoid the constant trouble caused by the legal advisers meeting in the manner of tough divorce lawyers arranging a much argued settlement. This remedy has now been applied, and John Lord O'Brian, of New York, has been named to the post. Although his campaign for the Senate against Robert F. Wagner made him some enemies in Washington, his association with the New Dealers on TVA questions has also earned him many useful friends. If he will bring into his office one or two able Juniors from the New Deal group, to dispel every lingering suspicion of Wall Street-mindedness, the required liaison between the conservatives and New Deal factions will be effectively established.

Staff Meeting Of A Pictorial Magazine

Managing Editor—Boys, I've looked over the layouts and I don't like 'em. There isn't a picture in the issue that would make a bartender swoon.

Associate Editor—How about that page showing the interior of that new night club whose decorative feature is a display of corpses of famous gangsters?

Managing Editor—Quite mild, I thought. What became of that idea for a two-page layout showing a day in a crematory? That was a honey!

Picture Editor—We're putting that in a special issue for American Home Week.

Associate Editor—Did you see the layout for this week showing what goes on inside a spider?

Managing Editor—Yes, it was not as horrible as I expected. What is our special two-page pictorial feature in this number?

Layout Editor—It's a vodka spree on a river barge given for co-eds under 18 years of age. We have a close-up of two college girls drunk under a table. And a boy drinking raw alcohol out of a gorilla's skull. Quite delightful.

Associate Editor—I like that page showing the body of that fellow who jumped from the skyscraper just as it crashes through the awning, but I think it should have been in color. I don't know how many letters I got from college girls on those pictures of the electric chair double execution a few weeks ago. It beat the Man-Dies-In-Lethal-Gas-Chamber series.

Layout Editor—I was a bit disappointed in the three pages on the dissection rooms in nine of our large medical schools.

Managing Editor—So was I. I watched five readers open the magazine to this feature and only three fainted.

Managing Editor—It seems to me we are not going far enough in our nudity studies. And I don't think you quite get the idea. They must be daring and at the same time educational; shocking and, er, shall I say uplifting. It's three weeks since we showed a frolic of debs in a Turkish bath.

A Photographer (entering with gusto)—Well, I got it.

All (agog)—What?

Photographer—A morgue after an air raid.

All (struggling to embrace him)—Wottaman!

U. S. Watches Falangist Acts In So. America

'Greater Spain' Propaganda Drive Reported Launched

By Lloyd Lehrbas
Associated Press Staff Writer

Spanish Falangist activities in the American republics are under close watch by the State Department, it was learned authoritatively yesterday, because officials believe there is increasing evidence that Spain's collaboration with the Axis may be extended to foster the spread of German and Italian propaganda in the Western Hemisphere.

The Spanish government, informed sources said, has opened a propaganda campaign designed to revive dreams of Spain's onetime ascendancy in Latin-American affairs. This campaign, they said, is to be advanced by Falangist propagandists in Spanish embassies, legations and consulates in South and Central American countries and in the Philippines.

Copies of official Spanish government documents received here, these sources reported, provide increasing indications that Falangist workers, operating through Spanish government offices, may also become clearing agents for Axis propaganda.

According to official information here, German and Italian activities in Latin-American countries are being directed toward inculcating Nazi and Fascist doctrines, encouraging potential "Fifth Columns," and fomenting opposition to Inter-American policies or plans for unified hemisphere defense.

"To date the Spanish Falangist propagandists appear to have accomplished very little," an informed source said, "but they are increasing and expanding their activities among the Spanish speaking peoples of the American republics and might become a menace to American solidarity unless they are exposed."

The director of the propaganda drive, this authority asserted, is Ramon Serrano Suner, Spain's foreign minister and advocate of closer Spanish collaboration with the Axis.

Coinciding with the campaign for a "greater Spain," informed sources reported, the Spanish press led by Arriba, the official Falange organ considered Serrano Suner's mouthpiece, began a series of attacks against the United States and hemisphere defense activities.

Anti-American posters and cartoons also were circulated in Madrid and other Spanish cities.

Diplomatic Pleas Void Eight Traffic Tickets

Eight persons escaped traffic fines on the plea of diplomatic immunity, according to a "ticket-fixing" report released by police yesterday for the last two weeks.

Two persons were let off with warnings at the request of Congressmen, the list revealed. There were 157 tickets adjusted, including 114 warnings and 43 cancellations.

A ticket for overtime parking listed to Ragon Unsold, of Hagerstown, Md., was changed to a warning at the request of Representative William D. Byron (Democrat), of Maryland. Representative Frank W. Boykin (Democrat), of Alabama, performed a similar favor for Catherine Shrieve, of 1417 N Street Northwest.

Those pleading diplomatic immunity were Maj. Takeo Kato and Rinzo Iwamato, Japanese Embassy; Jose De Lasa, Cuban Embassy; Johannes Mickel, Paul S. Baurhand, Helene Nielebock, German Embassy; Wilhelm R. Wetzer, 1935 Biltmore Street Northwest, and Tamenori Hara, 2032 Belmont Road Northwest.

Mrs. Bradfield, Ill a Year, Dies In Georgetown

Mrs. Elsie Mae Bromley Bradfield, 44, wife of Claude E. Bradfield and member of an old Georgetown family, died yesterday at her home, 1647 Thirty-fourth Street Northwest, after an illness of nearly a year.

She was a daughter of George W. Bromley and the late Amanda Mattingly Bromley. Survivors, in addition to her husband, a printing pressman, and father, are two daughters, Mrs. Doris Stevens and Mrs. Virginia Shoemaker; three sons, Claude E., John and George Bradfield; two brothers, George Edward and William O. Bromley; one sister, Mrs. Marie G. Ballard, and four grandchildren, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 8:30 a. m. Thursday at the residence of her sister, 1911 Thirty-fifth Place Northwest, with requiem mass at 9 a. m. in Holy Trinity Catholic Church, Thirty-sixth and O Streets Northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

B. F. Saunders Dies In Mississippi

Benjamin Franklin Saunders, 68, founder of the Cooperative Cotton Growers' Association of America, died yesterday at his home in Tallahatchie County, Miss.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Janie Saunders, he leaves a sister, Mrs. Henry Thomas Ladd, 2460 Thirty-ninth Place Northwest, and three nephews, one of whom, F. B. Ladd is now in Cuba with a local unit of the Marine Corps Reserve.

Mr. Saunders was engaged in banking, wholesale merchandising and cotton farming.

Funeral Tomorrow For Mrs. Conway

Funeral services for Mrs. Laura I. Conway, 68, who died here yesterday, will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. in the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

A resident of Atlanta, Ga., since her husband's death 12 years ago, Mrs. Conway was visiting her daughter, Miss Lillian M. Conway, 3100 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

She leaves one son, Earl Conway, and three daughters, Lillian Conway, Mrs. Mamie I. Butt and Mrs. Nellie L. Flather. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Playing in Rain Sends Her to Doctor

PAULETTE GODDARD, film beauty, was recuperating in a Santa Monica, Calif., hospital today from influenza, brought about by acting in movie rain scenes. The actress faced the cameras for two days in the rain scenes, contracted a cold and was advised by her doctor to go to the hospital. She is expected to return to the studio in a few days.

Housing Here 'Well in Hand,' Expert Believes

No predictions can be made with "any degree of exactitude" on whether Washington will in this year confront the housing difficulties that arose in the war year 1917, and sharp differences in conditions should be kept in mind, the Washington Building Congress was told yesterday at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

In any consideration of the problem, Abner H. Ferguson, Federal Housing Administrator, told builders to remember that the 1940-41 defense program brings new people here gradually, while in 1917 there was an overnight influx.

Citing building figures and the city's expansion into the adjoining States, Maryland and Virginia, the administrator said, "We have no positive indication that the situation at present is not well in hand, although there may possibly develop a need for more low-priced rental accommodations in the District."

He expressed confidence that the present building program of some developers, particularly in the $2,500 to $3,000 price range, would encourage others to enter the field "in which there is always a real need. This will relieve somewhat the rental problem."

"Another reason for confidence in the adequacy of Washington residential construction to meet the coming need exists in the fact that 120 subdivisions (here) and in nearby Maryland and Virginia were approved by our District of Columbia office in 1940, whereas there were only 170 subdivisions approved over the preceding six-year period," he said.

Discussing low-priced homes, Ferguson said the builders should "study them with an eye to your own future operations as there is great room for expansion of this special field here . . . Whatever can be accomplished by private capital for a normal market relieves by that much what the Government might have to do directly of a temporary nature.

"Some Government expenditure for housing is unavoidable," he said, "but no one wants it to be higher than absolutely essential. Nor do we want to lose all balance and let adequate and proper housing become subject to abnormal and unhealthy conditions."

Concerning any parallel between 1917 and 1940 conditions, Ferguson reminded that in 1917 residential construction was on the decline and foreclosures were increasing. In 1940, he pointed out, foreclosures are steadily declining and residential construction, particularly of small individual homes for sale, on the increase.

"Furthermore, these homes of today are better homes because they are constructed better," he asserted.

The meeting was presided over by Leon Chatelain, jr., vice president of the congress.

Mrs. Neil Grant, Of Rockville, Is Dead at 73

Mrs. Leonie C. Grant, 73, wife of Neil Grant, of Rockville, Md., died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Flora M. Harpine, 402 New Roadway, Maryland Park, Md.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia Avenue Northwest, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Grant was born in Accient, Switzerland, and later lived in Scotland and England before coming to this country in 1912. She lived in various sections of Virginia for many years before moving to Rockville.

Surviving besides her husband and Mrs. Harpine are two other daughters, Mrs. H. B. Shepherd, of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Anna J. Daniel, of Washington.

Mrs. Roosevelt Quits Spanish Relief Group

Objects to Organization Because 'It Isn't Under Good Auspices'

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has withdrawn her sponsorship from the American Rescue Ship Mission because "it is not under good auspices," it was learned today. The mission is a relief organization raising funds to take Spanish Loyalists from France to Mexico.

Mrs. Roosevelt's resignation was preceded by that of John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church and chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union, who charged that the Communist Party was "at the bottom" of the organization and used it to pursue the interests of the party and the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Dr. Holmes lent their sposorship to the organization, it was learned today, after they heard that Miss Helen Keller was its honorary chairman. On December 21 Mrs. Roosevelt wrote: "Since giving my name I have found out that the committee Miss Keller asked me to join is not under good auspices and have resigned."

Dr. Holmes in an interview today said, "it has become a practice of the Communists to form relief societies and attract prominent persons into them. They use the names of these persons to gather funds which they spend for their own aims, or else they worm their way into existing groups, where they quickly become a majority. The end justifies the means for them."

Dr. Holmes said he joined the group late in November, but after a thorough investigation resigned on December 6. "I am sorry for the people who have contributed funds to it," he said.

Officers of the organization in New York were silent today concerning the charges made against it, but Mrs. Marie Coleman, secretary of the Washington committee, said that Mrs. Roosevelt had withdrawn because "other organizations performed the same service." She denied that the Rescue Ship Mission was a Communist organization and remarked that all Spanish Liberals often have been labeled Communists.

The American Rescue Ship Mission, administered by the United American Spainish Aid Committee, was formed last spring when its founders broke away from the older Spainish refugee relief committee, headed by the Rev. Dr. Herman F. Reissig. Dr. Reissig said today that two leaders of the mission had been dismissed from his group because they tried to use it ft "for political purposes."

"We knew all along of their political views," he said, "and we felt uneasy about their campaign to raise $300,000 to send a rescue ship to Marseille, where many Loyalist Spaniards were trapped. It was evident to us that no private organization could raise enough money for such an undertaking. But we did not want to give publicity to the doings of the rescue ship mission, even if they threatened to do us harm."

Helen R. Bryan, executive secretary of the mission, announced today a Nation-wide contest for a poster depicting the plight of the Spanish refugees in concentration camps. Among the sponsors mentioned by Miss Bryan was Miss Lynn Fontanne, the actress.

Miss Fontanne's representative, William Fields, said today that Miss Fontanne "once donated $100 to some Spanish causes and thus got her name on all sorts of letterheads, one of which seems to be that of the American Rescue Ship Mission." He added that on December 20 Miss Fontanne learned that the mission was using her name and asked that it be removed from the letterheads.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Craven

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Nolen Craven, 94, who died Sunday at her home, 2922 Upton Street Northwest, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today at her home. Mass will be said at 10 a. m. at the Shrine of the Most Blessed Sacrament, Western Avenue and Quesada Street Northwest, with interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Craven was a resident of Washington since early childhood. She was born July 4, 1846, in Alexandria, Va., and was married to the late Timothy Craven in old St. Matthew's Church in 1864.

Surviving are seven children, Cecelia Craven, Mrs. Joseph McReynolds, James F. Craven, Joseph T. Craven, Mrs. John C. Spencer, Leo A. Craven and Mrs. Boyce R. Bolton. She also leaves 22 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren. Her six oldest grandsons will act as pallbearers.

George U. Small's Funeral Today

Services will be held today at 2 p. m. in the Lee funeral home, Fourth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast, for George U. Small, 64, who died Sunday at his home, 634 A Street Northeast, after an illness of two years. Burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg, Md.

A native of Gaithersburg, Mr. Small, a carpenter, also lived in Newport News, Va., before coming to Washington 33 years ago. Surviving are his wife, Mary, and eight children, Mrs. T. U. Heeter, Russell, Leonard, Mary, John, Ruth, Patricia and Betty Small.

Sex Evidence Stricken Out In 'I Am' Trial

Judge Rules Broken Homes Irrelevant To Fraud Charge

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Jan. 6.—Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich ruled today that even if the nine "I Am" movement leaders on trial charged with using the mails to defraud had "caused a million homes to be broken up, it still wouldn't be mail fraud."

He granted a defense motion to strike all testimony by Government witnesses that the "I Am" leaders taught sex abstinence and that this had broken up many homes.

First defense testimony by A. G. Grant, of Shasta City, Calif., that he had met the late Guy Ballard, founder of the "I Am" movement on Mount Shasta in 1930, was overshadowed by the numerous other motions granted to strike testimony.

The Government had sought to cast doubt as to whether Ballard ever had conferred with the "ascended master" St. Germain on Mount Shasta, as he related in his writings. Grant testified he knew Ballard had been to the mountain.

Judge Yankwich told the jurors they were not to consider the following testimony by Government witnesses:

Regarding a special investigator "K-17" who was supposed to have led to the "dissolving" of three submarines bent on destroying the Panama Canal.

That "I Am" followers had been led to let their insurance policies lapse because of predictions of "cataclysms" near at hand.

That many of movement's discourses and decrees represented by Ballard and his wife, Edna, as being divine dictations, actually were plagiarisms.

Seeking to show Ballard had defied space and time in making the travels he told about.

That the movement forbade blood transfusions.

That followers were not permitted to show affection for dogs or other pets.

Former Slave Who Served U. S. 30 Years Dies at 101 of First Illness in Four Decades

Frank U. Whitted Saw Boys March Off To Four Wars

Four wars, slavery, the Reconstruction, and more than 30 years of Government service—these were some of the things Frank U. Whitted lived through for 101 years.

Yesterday Mr. Whitted was dead. He died late Sunday after an illness of one day—his first ailment in 40 years. It was the third time he had been sick in a life so long that he became the second oldest pensioner on the Government rolls and received a testimonial from the Civil Service Commission because of it.

Born a slave on January 1, 1840, the grandson of a full-blooded Cherokee Indian and an African chieftain, Whitted used to tell that he remembered seeing the boys march away for the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and the World War.

Self-Styled Pacifist

But he was a self-styled pacifist, though in an interview on his 100th birthday he admitted that "war sometimes does good. War freed me partially, but the Constitution really freed me."

Not that Whitted was anxious to be freed at the time. When his master and his master's son were killed in the Civil War, leaving his mistress and five daughters at their Hillsboro, N. C., home, the young slave protected their valuables from the Northern troops.

In later years Whitted took great pleasure in recounting the story of how he buried the gold, silver, china "and all the hams, too," in nearby fields to keep them from the Yankees.

Few slaves could read and write. After the Civil War, Whitted taught himself laboriously and became a school teacher in Hillsboro. After some years he was appointed Justice of the Peace by the Governor of North Carolina.

But the activities of the Ku Klux Klan forced him to leave Hillsboro to save his life. He moved to Tarboro, N. C., where a large colored population provided security, and taught school again. A few years later he was named Justice of the Peace there for six years.

Knights of Labor Organize

He became an organizer for the Knights of Labor after this term and a stint as county commissioner. He organized a colored lodge of the Knights in every voting precinct and helped elect H. P. Cheatham as a colored member of Congress from the Second District of North Carolina. Cheatham got him a post in the Treasury Department.

After several years he entered the Government Printing Office as a watchman and remained there for 28 years, until 1922.

His wife, who died last summer at the age of 79, was hairdresser for Mrs. Herbert Hoover. He is survived by a younger brother and two younger sisters, one of whom, Mrs. Joanna Dixon, lives in Washington. He was a trustee of the Berean Baptist Church for 15 years.

Funeral service will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the church. Burial will be in Harmony Cemetery.

John B. Duley, Retired Potomac Farmer, Dies

John Barton Duley, 84, retired farmer and lifelong resident of the Potomac neighborhood, died Sunday at his home near Potomac following a week's illness.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hattie A. Duley, of Martinsburg, Md., and the following children by a former marriage: Lloyd Duley, Mrs. Upton Riley and Miss Ruby Duley, all of Washington, and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, of Virginia. He also leaves a brother, Earl Duley, of near Potomac.

The funeral will take place at 11 a. m. Wednesday in the Potomac Methodist Church, burial to be in the church cemetery. The Rev. Elgar C. Soper, pastor of the church, will conduct the services.

Secret Service Men Hear Talk By Dr. Souder

U. S. Leads World In Crime Detection, Scientist Declares

In secret sessions of their five-day conference here, United States Secret Service operatives yesterday were told that this Nation has the "best crime-detection laboratories in the world."

The speaker, Dr. D. William Souder, Bureau of Standards scientist, has visited police laboratories throughout Europe and used his observations as a basis for comparisons. American methods, he asserted, are far in advance of any in Europe.

The agents were given a report of their activities during 1940, showing that 1,487 offenders against the counterfeiting and forgery laws were committed to prison or jail. The number of convicted defendants in this category, however, was 2,312.

There were, during last year, 3,047 Narcotic Drug Act convictions and 2,250 commitments to prison; 24 convictions for gold-hoarding and 6 commitments to prison; 185 convictions of Customs Act violators and 51 commitments; 42 convictions of Firearms Act violators and 23 commitments to prison.

The figures, said the report, indicate that Treasury-law cases formed 59.9 per cent of the total defendants convicted in the Federal District Courts, and that Treasury-law cases comprised 60.3 per cent of the sentenced prisoners committed to institutions.

A demonstration of the Keeler polygraph (lie detector) is scheduled for 9 a. m. today. Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, will speak at 2:30 p. m. "Education as a Weapon to Fight Crime" will be discussed by Dr. M. M. Proffitt, of the United States Commissioner of Education's office, at 3 p. m.

Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Bureau of the Mint, and Dr. Leland Howard, assistant director, will speak at the morning program tomorrow.

Havre Bridge Toll Rate Cut Seen Feasible

Residents in Area To Benefit; Parley Set Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—A proposal to cut local toll charges for round trip passage over the new Susquehanna River toll bridge 5 or 6 cents per round trip was studied today by the Maryland Roads Commission.

Maj. Ezra B. Whitman, commission chairman, said no definite rate would be announced until after a conference with Mayor Robert Lawder of Havre de Grace, who has asked for a conference Wednesday.

The present charge for local round trip traffic is 30 cents, while the regular fee to nonlocal residents is 40 cents for round trips.

"The bridge has been much more profitable than originally expected," Whitman asserted, "and I am delighted about the possibility of doing something in the way of reducing tolls for the people of Perryville and Havre de Grace."

Whitman said he had been advised that "many persons have ceased to shop in stores on the opposite side of the river and that the toll charge for those accustomed to use the former free brdige in frequent business and social visits has been burdensome."

The chairman observed, however, that consulting engineers named in the indenture when bonds were sold to build the bridge would have to be consulted before the proposed new rate could be changed.

Chester A. Waters, Commerce Dept. Attorney, Dies

Chester Arthur Waters, 58, Washington lawyer for whom President Chester A. Arthur acted as godfather, died yesterday in Mount Alto Hospital.

A native New Yorker, Mr. Waters came to the District 14 years ago, and for the last decade had been employed in the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, Department of Commerce. His residence was at 2014 Pierce Mill Road Northwest.

Mr. Waters was the son of Robert L. Waters, one-time city engineer of New York City. He was educated in New York public schools, at the City College of New York and at National University here. He was a member of the District of Columbia Bar.

He also belonged to the Holy Name Society of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart and of Sigma Delta Kappa Legal Fraternity.

Funeral services will be conducted at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow at the residence. A mass will be said at 9 o'clock in Sacred Heart Church. Interment will be in St. Raymond's Cemetery, New York.

Herman J. Volker Dies at 82; Served In Indian Wars

Funeral services for Hermann J. Volker, 82, retired chief of the verification section of the Weather Bureau, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Wright funeral home, 1337 Tenth Street Northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Volker died yesterday at Soldiers' Home Hospital.

He was born in Lehrte, Germany, and came to this country at the age of 22. He served with the Army fighting Indians in the Dakotas and surrounding territory from 1881 to 1884.

In 1890 Mr. Volker was appointed to the Weather Bureau, and in 1902 he completed tables which have been used at the bureau in compilation work ever since. He retired in 1922.

His wife, Mrs. Anna Louise Volker, died a year ago. Surviving are a daughter, Miss Anna Volker, a son, H. L. Volker, both of Arlington; a brother, Bernard W. Volker, of Klamath Falls, Oreg., and a sister, Mrs. John H. Ehrnst, of Beardsley, Minn.

Solution Sought By Negotiation In Radio Dispute

While the radio-ASCAP music feud continued unabated yesterday, negotiations that may lead to agreement by two major networks and Broadcast Music, Inc., to refrain from practices which the Government holds violate antitrust laws were reported under way.

The Justice Department recently announced its intention to launch antitrust proceedings against the National Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System, BMI and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP).

Negotiations with ASCAP looking toward a consent decree broke down December 23, but a department spokesman said there was a good prospect for successful conclusion of similar negotiations with the networks and BMI. He said the department hoped such an agreement might later lead to a similar conclusion of proceedings against ASCAP.

Meanwhile, ASCAP, considering a proposal to license the use of its music on network programs of five national advertisers, announced tonight that more than 200 individual radio stations had contracted for the use of music it controls.

Arrows Or Planes, Fire Power Still Wins Wars, Says Expert

This is the first of four articles looking into Britain's military campaign from the behind-the-scenes vantage point of an on-the-spot Associated Press correspondent versed in military science—and now unhampered by censorship. The writer, Taylor Henry, a native of Palestine, Tex., and a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, has just arrived from covering the assault on England since its start, and before that covered the conflict in France.

By H. Taylor Henry
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 6.—Military experts are agreed after Germany's eight-month-long blitz against France and England that the basic principles of strategy stand unchanged despite modern mechanized warfare.

Just as in the days of Napoleon or Caesar or Alexander, the way to win wars today is to concentrate more fire power at any given point than your enemy.

It doesn't matter whether you are fighting with bows and arrows or dive bombers and 60-ton tanks—the army that can lay down the heaviest volume of fire is the one that is going to win.

It was fire power represented by overwhelming superiority of tanks and planes and machine guns that won the Battle of France for Germany; it will be the same concentration of shells and bombs that will win the Battle of Britain for either Germany or England.

The underlying difference between the Battle of France and the Battle of Britain is the English Channel—forming a difficult No Man's Land between the German and British armies.

The outcome of the present battle depends primarily on crossing that watery No Man's Land and bringing the two armies into physical contact. Here again the answer is in concentration of fire power.

Nazis Need "Beach Head"

Reduced to words of one syllable, if the Germans can concentrate enough fire power in the shape of dive bombers and airplanes to clear what is technically known as a "beach head" on the British coast to land their still overwhelmingly superior numbers of well-armed men and fire-spurting tanks for a direct attack against the British army, they are conceded by military observers to have a good chance of winning the war.

If the British can prevent this concentration by equalizing the German effort with their fighter planes and battle fleet, the Nazi war machine will be stymied.

If the British can build up their air force and mechanized army to the point where they can successfully invade the German-occupied continent, military experts concede they have a reasonable chance of giving Germany a knockout blow.

If neither can concentrate enough fire power to overwhelm the other, observers are convinced the war will be a stalemate and will settle down to a war of attrition which is just another way military men have of describing wholesale murder.

The last war was fought—speaking in general terms—with artillery, cavalry and foot infantry; this war is being fought with bombing planes, tanks and motorized infantry.

The only difference is that strategical principles have to be applied ten times as fast because today's fast mechanized armies move ten times as fast.

Modern Jeb Stuarts

The dive bombers which I saw turn northern France into a flaming hell, and long-range, high-altitude bombers with which the Germans are trying to destroy Britain are nothing more than artillery which for the first time in history has combined the two basic tactical elements of preparation and surprise.

Panzer divisions of 400 and 500 tanks are only the modern equivalent of J. E. B. Stuart's Civil War cavalry or the helmeted German Uhlans which raced through Belgium in 1914.

And infantry is still infantry whether it marches 3 miles an hour on its own feet or whether it rolls along at 30 miles an hour in rubber-tired trucks.

It was the appreciation of this fact by the German general staff that brought France to its knees. The best proof is that the conquest of France was carried out in detail according to the famous Schlieffen plan which was drafted for the German general staff before the last war.

The Germans failed in the last war because they were never able to concentrate a sufficient superiority of fire power to overwhelm the Allies; they succeeded against France in this war because they massed their tanks and airplanes against small sectors of the front while the French divided theirs up amongst all their long line of troops from the Channel to the Mediterranean.

Where individual French generals took the red tape in their own hands and massed their own concentrations, they were able to meet the Germans on an even footing.

Delattre Held Germans

Take the French General Delattre for example. The perfect type of classical French aristocrat, with an analytical brain that worked almost with the precision of the machines which he admired so much, Delattre was quick to realize the only means of stopping the German advance was to give them a dose of their own medicine.

I was with Delattre's division in front of Rethel, one of the key bridgeheads across the Aisne and the gateway to Rheims and the Marne Valley. Delattre held his position for three weeks against repeated German assaults.

His method was simplicity itself. He borrowed or stole the four tanks from the two divisions on either side of his position, took four captured German tanks and added them to his own company of four tanks to make a concentrated tank unit which, while still outnumbered by the Germans, was able to meet them on a sufficiently even footing to prevent the Germans crossing the river.

Charles de Gaulle, outstanding French expert on mechanization and now leader of the Free French forces, did the same thing at Abbeville. He took a tank division and raided behind the German lines so successfully that the French had a breathing spell to reorganize their thin positions along the Somme.

But when the Germans really turned loose their full force, neither Delattre nor De Gaulle were able to stem their advance.

They did not have the equipment with which to offset the German fire superiority.

I was with Gen. Corap's ninth army when it collapsed along the Meuse and opened the gap which gave Germany the north of France.

Fox Holes vs. Tanks

I was with the French advance outpost jutting out into No Man's Land on the Chiers River where the French northern positions pivoted back from the Maginot Line when the Nazis swarmed over in the final attack starting June 5.

The French who had just taken up their advanced positions were barely entrenched in fox holes scooped out of the hard earth. Against these positions the Germans launched wave after wave of dive-bombers which screeched out of the air from 4,000 feet down to 50 feet, bombing and machine-gunning the French troops who had little more than rifles with which to defend themselves.

As the planes turned from one narrow sector to another, the Panzer Divisions, their 400 tanks locked almost caterpillar-tread to tread, rumbled over, their flame throwers spouting fire 100 feet ahead and their automatic weapons hurling cannon shells and bullets.

Behind them came fast motorcycle troops machine-gunning the French troops that remained; and behind those came the trucks carrying the infantry to hold the ground.

There were no French planes in the sky; their tanks were outmoded; their automatic weapons were scattered over a wide position. It was a case of run or be killed on the spot.

That may read like ancient history now, but it is in the analysis of the battle for France that the significance of the German bombing of Britain and the British bombing of Germany appears.

Both sides are attempting to prevent the other from manufacturing airplanes and munitions in sufficient quantities to gain fire superiority.

Every time Germany knocks out a British airplane factory or demolishes a tank depot, every time the R. A. F. smashes a German oil storage tank or blasts the Krupp munitions works the other's bid for the vital element of overwhelming fire power has been reduced just that much.

Soldier Regrets He Hasn't 2 Lives For 2 Countries

Elyria, Ohio, Jan. 6 (INS).—Private R. C. Daly, of the Canadian Kent regiment, tonight faced a dilemma. He has no wish to desert from the Canadian army, into which he volunteered, but he has been drafted into the United States Army and ordered to report at a training camp by January 31.

Daly returned home for Christmas, on furlough, and obeyed the proviso that an American must register for the draft within five days of his return from a foreign country.

A few days later he learned that his draft number was a low one, and was informed by his local draft board that he could not be exempted on the grounds he presented—that he was already a Canadian soldier.

Daly put his problem up to Gilson D. Light, State Selective Service director at Columbus, who has not yet rendered a decision.

2 Army Fliers Die, 1 Critically Hurt In Plane Collisions

Shreveport, La., Jan. 6 (INS).—Lieut. H. G. Strachan was killed and Lieut E. A. Sanders was critically injured late today in a landing crash involving two United States Army pursuit planes at Barksdale Field.

Strachan had already landed when Sanders, apparently blinded by the airfield lights and by rain, landed 00 feet behind him. Sanders' plane crasned into Strachan's ship, and Strachan was slashed to death. Sanders was rushed to a hospital.

One Killed in Hawaii

Honolulu, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Second Lieut. James J. Weigel, 22, of the Air Corps Reserve, was killed today when two Army pursuit planes collided over Wheeler Field. Second Lieut. Horace A. Hanes, 24, of Armington, Ill., bailed out from the second plane safely.

Button Tricks for Old and New Frocks

Here are two kinds of button tricks in keeping with American designs, also a basic dress given a new lift by button trim. Buttons Useful In Brightening Simple Dress

Buttons are a new-old trick for brightening a simple basic dress. Like the horse and the bicycle, they suffered a temporary eclipse when zippers came in. But now that we are reverting to the past again, they are coming back in a big way.

With zippers and other gadgets supplying the utilitarian angle, buttons are now adorning costumes for their original purpose of ornamentation and decoration.

Since the first appearance of buttons in the seventeenth century in France, on through to the nineteenth century in English costume history, the sole purpose for using buttons has been for ornamentation. Steel buttons—elaborate silver, gilt or precious metals studded with gems—were quite the mode of the day for bodice fastenings.

The history of buttons is so interesting that many women are collecting them as a hobby. State societies are even being formed by button collectors.

Now is a good time to take advantage of the button vogue and revive your winter dress. The "one" good dress of your wardrobe that has seen wear can be made to look like new. An inexpensive frock, too, might appear to be a couturier's model by adding clever, imaginative buttons, either bought or made by hand.

'Garage Door Wall'

An overhead garage door type of wall for a living room is a practical fancy of one of the most spectacular decorators in the country. The point of it is that the living room can thus be thrown open to the garden in fine weather. As he worked it out, such doors were used across one entire end of the room.

Landlady Spends Sleepless Nights, Worrying About Conduct of Her Paying Guests—Two Government Girls Whose Beaux Stay 'All Hours'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The problem I am about to present has caused me considerable worry and many sleepless hours. Having great confidence in your ability and willingness to "see the right,"—I am asking your opinions. I have recently taken into my home two girls, who are Government clerks. One of them, 20 years old, comes from an extreme Northern State. The other, 25 years old, comes from an extreme Southern State.

It has been their custom, which they have continued under my roof, to allow their boy friends (including new acquaintances) to spend the evening alone with them in the living room until 2, 3 and sometimes 4 o'clock in the morning, taking for granted that I approve.

I have confidence in the moral standards of these girls, but I am also convinced that a good deal of lovemaking goes on. Knowing the dangers of such behavior, I am sure I would be most unhappy if I had daughters who were living away from home and inviting such risks. I am not able to relax or rest completely until all is quiet for the night. And, allowing two nights each for the two girls, there aren't enough nights left in the week to catch up on lost sleep.

I am old-fashioned enough to think that 12 o'clock should be the habitual curfew hour; and, also, to think that a girl should never entertain a man in her room. The latter point, however, has not come up with regard to these girls. But just in case it should, I want to know what stand to take. If I am "narrow minded," I wish to know. I would be willing to adjust myself to their "night owl" program, if I could be convinced that such conduct is proper, healthy and normal.

I feel I could profit from your opinions. If possible, I would like also to have the views of young men on this problem; as well as the opinions of your young readers generally. The girls, by the way, have "the run of the house," as our family is small, and I want them to be happy and comfortable. But while I want to be intelligently "broad minded" and fair to them, I also wish to maintain "right standards" in my home. I shall thank you for an early reply. Sincerely,

HOUSE MOTHER.

Young Modern's View Of 'Bohemian' Behavior

DEAR H. M.: "Is it customary," I asked a young-woman-about-town, "for girls living away from home to spend certain evenings in the landlady's living room, with a beau who lingers on until 2, 3 and sometimes 4 o'clock in the morning?"

"What an idea!" the young woman retorted. "How vulgar! How stupid! A girl couldn't do that and expect the man to have any respect for her! A house gets a bad name if men visitors are seen leaving around 3 o'clock in the morning. One o'clock is plenty late enough for a beau to stay—and I say that as one who has learned from experience how stupid it is to let a man think he can stay all hours!"

"That isn't the sort of thing any girl would do, or that any man would expect, if she were living at home with her parents," she said, warming to the subject. "It's in very poor taste, conventionally speaking, as everybody knows. And a girl who thinks she can get away with it, away from home, without paying in one way or another, is just a fool."

"Of course," she said reflectively, "there are girls who deliberately go in for the 'Bohemian Life,' on getting away from home. But they've made a choice. They know what they want, or think they know. Usually, however, they have failed to reckon the possible price of defying the conventions. They don't realize you've got to be super-smart or super-rich to get away with it. They're the girls who think they 'want to live, in a big way.' It isn't their ambition, as it is with most girls, to be popular and respected and socially accepted; and finally to fall in love with some nice man and get married and settle down to a pleasant existence and 'a place in the community.'

"But I have noticed," she summed up, rather dryly, "that even the girl who goes in for the 'Bohemian Life;' who 'takes love where she finds it'—yes, I've known a few such girls—wears an aspect of relief on her emancipated brow when the man-of-her-choice finally makes her his Missus. And I've seen her plenty distracted when he showed no such intentions."

"Every normal girl," she concluded, "wants to get married, whether or not she realizes or admits it. And the code of free-and-easy behavior, as the 'emancipated' live to learn, just isn't the smartest way to go about it. Tell your correspondent to make the curfew 1 o'clock, at the latest, for these two 'foolish virgins;' and if they just can't keep it, to ask them to move, for her own peace of mind. As has been said, 'Experience keeps a dear school; but fools will learn in no other.' And the shock of being 'turned out,' for their nonconformist behavior, may be the bracer these girls need, to bring them to their senses."

Here, my dear correspondent, you have a faithful report of a modern-minded young woman's "viewpoint" on your problem. In my opinion, it should give you the perspective you need for taking a firm stand against excessive "night life" in your home. I believe that nothing I might say would improve upon the essential shrewdness and wisdom of this girl's estimate of the situation.

Aim Exercise Directly at Lazy Muscles

Science of Kinesiology Emphasizes Line Of Pull to Right Spot: Right Position Of Body Should Be Maintained

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU are looking for an easy way to streamline your curves, it's just common science. There's a six-syllable word for it—kinesiology—but all it amounts to is using your head when you exercise.

Since you don't want to waste any time or effort in slimming down, it will pay you to learn how to direct the line of pull to the exact set of lazy muscles that needs putting to work.

Once you know which positions and movements use certain muscle groups to best advantage, you will know you are wasting your time unless you start each exercise from the correct position, maintain a certain position of the body throughout, and put precision in all your movements.

TO BEAUTIFY UPPER ARMS AND SHOULDERS

POSITION: Arms out at sides shoulder-level, or in front chest-level. Do not hunch the shoulders.

MOVEMENTS: A thrust with the arms as in striking a punching bag, or circling with arms held out at the sides. Any exercise which makes use of these positions and involves action at the shoulders will beautify the arms and shoulders.

FOR THAT SPARE-RIB LOOK

POSITION: An upward stretch with the pull focused on the area between waist and wishbone.

FOR A WILLOW WAIST

MOVEMENT: An increase in the up-stretch, as in a backward bend from a standing, sitting or prone position on the floor.

POSITION: Stretched through the midriff as in above exercise.

MOVEMENTS: Bend sideward or twist with hips held still.

FOR SLIM HIPS

POSITION: Either standing or lying on mat.

MOVEMENTS: Swing or kick legs from hips against muscular resistance to reduce hipline; roll on fat pads to smooth this measurement and have a svelte figure.

SmoothManners Keep Friends

AN OPPORTUNITY, his invitation to dine with socially prominent acquaintances! But he's missed his chance to make a good impression by his slips in table etiquette.

How shocked his smart companion is when he pushes aside his plate at the end of the meal with a crude "No more, thanks, I'm through!"

The well-posted young man would know that you never push aside a dish—any more than you'd start "stacking" dishes. You wait for the maid or whoever is serving to take the dish away. To refuse another helping, you merely say "No, thank you."

In brief social contacts people haven't time to get to know you. If your manners are poor their whole opinion of you suffers. That's why it's so important to be sure of little things like when to use spoon, fork or fingers.

Correct to take the first few tastes of coffee or tea with the spoon, but drink the rest. Eat gooey cakes with a fork, cookies and plain cake with your fingers. Never use a spoon or fork to remove bones or seeds from your mouth. Drop the object into your cupped hand. Nor will you screen the act with a napkin—that's conspicuous!

Inspired by Music, Washington Woman Wins National Award

Washington women are especially alert to opportunities. In almost any list of winners in national contests it is not unusual to see a Washington winner listed. Sometimes it is the appreciation of good food that inspires the contestant to send in a favored recipe, or a certain soap that has pleased her fancy, and many other products that have given satisfaction.

It was the love of music that inspired Mrs. Robert M. Muller, 2520 Tenth Street Northeast, to be one of the 200,000 entrants in the contest sponsored by R. Wallace & Sons Manufacturing Co. The Mozart pattern of their silver suggested the theme for the 25 words that won for her the first prize. This was an exquisite $700 sterling silver tea service of five pieces—teapot, sugar and creamer, waste bowl and tray, in the Rosepoint pattern. The service was presented to Mrs. Muller yesterday in the Silver Rooom of Woodward & Lothrop's on behalf of the Wallace company.

The 25 words that resulted in giving Mrs. Muller the grand prize was: "I choose Mozart design because: 'It effectively captures in enduring silver the fleeting loveliness of Mozart music. Exquisite symmetry—sparkling ornament—courtly grace—distinguish this masterpiece of the silversmith's art.'"

Gay Color Flashes Furnish Augury Of Spring Styles

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Harbingers of spring are the new style flashes of decorating tidbits—the camellia pinks and green, the moss rose, the Pan-American palette, the red-white-and-blues, all bidding fair to take the color honors in the coming season.

Furniture novelties include coffee tables in the designs of desks, grand piano and chests scaled down in size. While in the wake of mother-and-daughter fashions have come mother-and-daughter chairs, which are boudoir styles in a big and little size. The same idea is being developed in father-and-mother chairs, easy chairs that are alike except for size.

Versatile finishes for incidental furniture will bring new life into traditional rooms. Among these are marbleized effects and other finishes made to look like malachite, porphory, lapis lazuli and such. Plaster and gilded metal are smart for occasional tables, while various new compositions and plastics are stunning for accent furniture. Some of these new compositions are made to look like stone. Bleached woods will continue to be seen but they will be brought up to date with details of brass trim and mirror insets.

As for styles to be stressed during the coming season, Regency will remain the conversation piece, and in its best interpretations it has a fine classic restraint that will merit its popularity. But it probably won't take the place of the great Georgian styles—not for a great while at least; but will be used more as a refreshing accent with them. For the very swish fillip, there will be Venetian baroque of ultra-ultra elegance.

Metallic accents will be more important than ever. They'll turn up in fabrics, in accessories, in furniture trim. Metallic foil paper for lamp shades is still going to be seen, along with many tall brass lamp bases.

Norse Princess, First Lady and Envoys' Wives Make Dazzling Assembly as Congress Opens

'Women Have Taken Over the Place,' Says Correspondent as New Session Is Begun; Cabinet, Supreme Court Hostesses on Hand

By Hope Ridings Miller

"LOOKS LIKE the women have taken over the place," snorted a burly newspaper correspondent yesterday as he stepped into the press gallery shortly before the President delivered his message on Capitol Hill.

Certainly, the ladies had their share of the seats and plenty of attention, as the joint Congressional session got under way in a blaze of klieg lights. To mention but a few of the strictly feminine angles:

For the first time in history a Crown Princess, accompanying a First Lady, viewed the proceedings from the executive gallery.

Arriving with Mrs. Roosevelt was the largest crowd of guests—mostly women—that she has ever brought to a joint session.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth sat on the floor of the House instead of taking her accustomed place in the Speaker's gallery.

Almost as many women as men were in the jammed diplomatic section.

A record number of Supreme Court and Cabinet hostesses arrived early to find their places in the executive gallery, and wives of Senate and House members had choice seats in other galleries.

Lady legislators, coming in well ahead of the opening gong, moved from group to group, shaking hands right and left and treating the whole thing very much like an old-home-week gathering. Later, they found places near the front of the chamber, while women from Congressional office staffs were very much in evidence in the throng that rimmed the House floor.

AMONG THE EARLIEST arrivals and the most interested spectators was Miss Lucinda Rayburn, sister of the Speaker of the House, who was accompanied by Mrs. Jack Beall, of Dallas, Tex. Witnessing a joint session for the first time, "Miss Lou"—as she is known down in Texas—frankly admitted she was thrilled. Here to stay until after the inauguration, Miss Rayburn has a host of friends in Washington who already are urging her to remain on through the season. Small and streamlined, with dark hair and an engaging smile, she had chosen for yesterday's session a plum-colored frock with a black, fox-collared coat, and a snappy black sailor, trimmed with a pattern of jet braid on the narrow brim.

"Who's that woman with Mrs. Roosevelt?" was the question that rippled up one row and down the other, as the First Lady was preceded down the steps of the executive gallery by a regal, fur-clad figure. The latter turned out to be Crown Princess Martha of Norway, who took a front row seat by Mrs. Roosevelt and watched proceedings with wide-eyed interest. Wearing a plum-colored coat and matching hat, with a sable scarf around her shoulders, the First Lady leaned over innumerable times to chat with the Crown Princess, and obviously was explaining to her some points of procedure in a joint session.

A NUMBER OF Cabinet wives were in their seats when Mrs. Roosevelt and her party arrived. Mrs. Robert H. Jackson was there, also Mrs. Frank Walker, Mrs. Claude Wickard, Mrs. Henry Stimson and Mrs. Frank Knox, the latter of whom was the first to come in.

Others in the same section were Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Miss Stella Frankfurter, sister of Justice Frankfurter; Mrs. Owen J. Roberts and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor. Coming in with Mrs. Roosevelt and Crown Princess Martha were Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, newly appointed head of the women's division, same committee; Mrs. F. S. Greene, of Warrenton, Va.; Miss Mayris Chaney, Miss Marguerite Le Hand, Miss Malvina Thompson, Mrs. James Helm, Miss Lorena Hickok and several others, enough anyway to fill the gallery completely, down to the final inch of space on the aisle steps.

EQUALLY CROWDED was the adjoining gallery, reserved for members of the Diplomatic Corps. More than half an hour before the President arrived, all 11 seats were taken, and by the time the speech began not an inch of standing room was available.

Shortly after 12 o'clock, the Argentine Ambassador, Felipe Espil, came in and took a front seat. An hour later, he was joined by his wife, whose becoming ensemble was a symphony in brown. Swathed in silver fox, Mrs. Ralph William Close, accompanied by her husband, the Minister of South Africa, was the next woman to arrive, and shortly afterward, the Minister of Portugal and Mme. Bianchi, who rarely miss a joint session, arrived and took their seats.

BY THE TIME 2 o'clock rolled around, representatives of all major powers, with the exception of Germany, Italy and Japan, were on hand to hear the President's speech. The British Charge d'Affaires and Mrs. Nevile Butler were seated near the front, the former finding a place on the steps. The Sovet Ambassador and Mme. Oumansky were there; also, the Greek Minister, Cimon Diamantopoulos, whose arrival was heralded with a burst of camera bulbs; the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom; the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, and the Netherlands Minister - Counselor, Baron van Boetzelaer.

Crown Princess Martha of Norway and Crown Prince Olav were guests of Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday at the Capitol, where they listened to the President address the joint session of Congress

Still others in the diplomatic gallery were Norwegian Minister, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne; the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Gallais; the Colombian Ambassador, Dr. Gabriel Turbay; the Rumanian Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Coste, and the Minister of Finland, Hjalmar Procope, a sartorial success in striped trousers and black coat.

AS THUNDERS of applause (from the Democratic contingent, at least) punctuated the President's speech, clapping in the diplomatic gallery was politely restrained. Mme. Bruggmann, wife of the Swiss Minister, and sister of Vice President-elect Wallace, was the only one who applauded with regularity.

Meanwhile, down on the House floor, Mrs. Longworth—never once taking her eyes from the President—refrained from evincing any response at all. Seated with her was her daughter, Paulina, who listened with rapt attention. A few seats away was Representative Frances Bolton, and a few rows back was another gray-haired lady legislator, Jeannette Rankin, whose hand-clapping was more polite than enthusiastic.

LOOKING OVER the feminine contingent of the House and Senate I had the impression that the black ensemble, either with touches of white or an orchid corsage is to be the favored attire for women on Capitol Hill this season. Jessie Sumners and Margaret Smith were turned out in black crepe frock, trimmed in white. A three-strand pearl necklace and a white gardenia corsage accented Edith Nourse Rogers' corsage. Unrelieved black was Senator Hattie Caraway's choice (as usual), while Mary T. Norton brightened her black frock with an orchid corsage. Mrs. Bolton and Miss Rankin, however, stepped out in frocks that did not feature the black motif. The former wore slate gray and the latter, a soft shade of blue.

Looking down from the galleries were a number of well-known women, including Mrs. Robert Taft, Mrs. Millard Tydings, whose black hat, trimmed in red feathers, was one of the prettiest I saw; Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Fritz Lanham and Mrs. Warren Austin, telling friends her husband was "to answer Wheeler" on the radio last night.

New Ambassador From Panama Is G. W. U. Man

When Dr. Carlos Brin, new Ambassador of Panama, arrives in Washington tomorrow or Thursday he will be returning to the city where he completed his studies. The envoy, who is a full-fledged M. D., is a graduate of George Washington University Medical School.

A leading surgeon, Dr. Brin was in charge of St. Thomas' Hospital in Panama. He has held one diplomatic post before, in the legation of his country in London. He was also named to represent his government at the coronation of King George VI in 1937.

Senora de Brin, like her husband, speaks perfect English. They were met, on arriving in New York Saturday, by the Charge d'Affaires of the Embassy, Dr. Juan Ehrman.

Men Abound At Party Given By Mrs. Smith

Reception Tendered For Peggy Lansdowne At Grasslands Club

Anyone who thinks Washington is a hard place to find enough men to go around should consult Mrs. Horace Smith. At the party which she and Lieut. Col. Smith gave yesterday for Miss Peggy Lansdowne, there were so many young men that they stood in large groups in the corners.

The party was held at Grasslands, the club on Nebraska Avenue which has been the scene of so many of the holiday festivities. A light blinking off and on showed guests where to turn in on Nebraska Avenue.

The hostess and her young guest of honor received together in the drawing room. Mrs. Smith wore a frock of black velvet, the jacket of which was ornamented with gold nailheads. Miss Lansdowne chose rust-colored crepe with a girdle of gold beads to match her necklace. Lieut. Col. Smith was here, there and everywhere seeing that the guests had a good itme.

Glimpsed here and there: George T. Summerlin, Chief of Protocol of the State Department, chatting with Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, who was in pale blue with a pink hat . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, coming on from the party given by Mme. Espil for the Assistant Naval Attache of the French Embassy and the Marquise de Levis-Mirepoix . . . Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, the latter wearing an orchid pinned to her fur coat . . . Mrs. George Garrett in a green wool suit trimmed with fur.

Glen Abbey, of the State Department, was among the guests. Others included Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Bonsal, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, jr., Clarence Hewes, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, in black with three fresh white carnations pinned to her shoulder; the Misses Patten, and dozens more.

Ugo Carusis On Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Ugo Carusi, now honeymooning through New England and Canada, will be at home on their return in their new house at 3720 Fordham Street in Spring Valley.

The former Miss Anita Catherine Sheaffer, daughter of Mrs. James A. Sheaffer and the late Mr. Sheaffer, and Mr. Carusi, son of Mrs. Eugene Carusi and the late Mr. Carusi, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Martin's rectory with the Rev. Louis R. Miltonberger officiating.

The bride wore a street length frock of topaz crepe with brown accessories and a corsage of white orchids. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. James Small, who wore an ensemble of dusty blue with accessories to match and a gardenia corsage. Eugene Carusi was best man for his brother.

The bride has for some years been secretary to Clyde Tolson, assistant to the director of the FBI. Mr. Carusi is executive assistant to the Attorney General and is also a professor of law at National University Law School.

Davises Announce Birth of Son

Sending out announcements with a photograph of their baby at the age of 6 hours, and with a copy of the infant's footprint, Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison Davis, jr., have made known that they are the parents of a son. The child was born at Doctors Hospital and has been named John Harrison Davis 3d.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis reside at 4103 Davis Place. The child is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weller, of Youngstown, Ohio, who have arrived in Washington to make his acquaintance.

Capital's Tension Fails to Dampen Enthusiasm for Townsend Concert

Mrs. Roosevelt Heads Distinguished Listeners Present

EVEN THE tenseness of present-day Washington, in which huge social functions have been pared to a minimum, hasn't diminished the enthusiasm of officials and the mink-and-orchid contingent of Washington society for Mrs. Townsend's musical Mondays. This was evident at the first of the winter's series yesterday, when every seat in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower was taken.

Mrs. Roosevelt headed the list of distinguished listeners at the 119th in Mrs. Townsend's music series. She arrived with Mrs. F. S. Green and Mayris Chaney, the dancer, who has for several years been a close friend. The First Lady wore a wine-red coat with a perky felt hat of matching shade and a scarf of sables.

Reads Telegram From Mr. Crooks

The polite whispering and laughing of the audience came to a stop at 11:15, when Mrs. Townsend appeared on the platform. Regal in blue lace, with a turban of blue gold, she said, "I've just received some bad news which I hope you will take as I am trying to." There was a rustle of "What in the world?"

It seemed that Richard Crooks, Metropolitan Opera tenor, who was to have shared the program with Mme. Jarmila Novotna, was down with flu. Mrs. Townsend waved a telegram she had just received, saying how grieved the singer was, but that "in the ten years I have appeared on your programs, this is the first time I have had to disappoint you."

In his place Mr. Crooks sent as a personable young pinch-hitter, Charles Kullman, also of the Metropolitan. Mrs. Townsend told how Mr. Kullman studied at Yale, was in the choir there and, after a career abroad, opened at the Metropolitan.

"The house was filled with Yale classmates who came to hear him" she said. "They kept yelling 'Attaboy,' until finally the manager had to beg them to restrain their enthusiasm."

Hurbans in Townsend Box

The audience was interested to learn that Mr. Kullman had made his debut in Budapest several years ago, singing "La Boheme" with none other than Mme. Novotna. The beautiful young Czech soprano was greeted with "oh's" and "ah's" when she appeared on the platform with Mr. Kullman. Tall, slender, with eyes set wide apart, she wore a flame-colored gown of heavy crepe, cut low in front, and a close fitting, off-the-face head covering (hardly a hat) of pale blue faille.

Beaming over the success of their compatriot were the Minister of Czecho-Slovakia and Mme. Hurban. They sat in Mrs. Townsend's box and were the ranking guests at the luncheon which she always gives after her concerts.

Mrs. Roosevelt had in her box, besides Mrs. Green and Miss Chaney, the wives of three foreign envoys: Mme. Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, whose frock and fur jacket were topped off by a perky sailor; Mme. Oumansky, wife of the Soviet Ambassador, and Mme. Ertegun of Turkey.

Well before the appointed hour the long hall outside the ballroom buzzed with several hundred well-dressed people, mostly women. Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, in brown with a fur neckpiece, was an early arrival. Mrs. Paul V. McNutt looked like the ideal complement for a "best-dressed" husband in a mink coat with a jeweled ornament pinned to the lapel, and a simple green felt hat. Also mink-coated was Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, whose tiny black velvet cap was embroidered in gold.

Several Family Groups There

Mrs. Warren Austin was among the Senatorial ladies present. Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, was a guest of

Richard Crooks, Ill Of Flu, Unable To Keep Booking

Mme. Emmanuel Lombard, who had Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson's box for the concert. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, who is in and out of town these days, was smart in severe black.

Several family groups were noted. Mrs. Hiram Bingham arrived with her daughter, Mrs. Alexander Phillips. Mrs. Bingham occupied Mrs. Sumner Welles' box, along with Mrs. Stanley Reed and Mrs. Eldridge Jordan.

Mrs. George T. Pettingill was accompanied by her niece, Miss Peggy Wagner, and Arthur Bradley Campbell had on either side of him his cousins, the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser. Mrs. Harry Flood and daughter, Eleanor, were a smart couple, and Mrs. Effingham Townsend and Miss Peggy Townsend were present arriving separately.

One of the most beautiful women there was Mrs. Patrick Hurley. With her long mink coat she wore a close-fitting, brimless hat of white feathers, with a graceful white plume trailing behind.

Many Notables Seen in Audience

The audience also included Mrs. Edwin Watson, Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Lady Lewis, Mrs. Clifton Phillips, stunning in pale gray with a matching veiled hat; Mrs. Charles Maddox and Miss Muriel Maddox, Miss Angelica Remey, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Eugene B. Roberts, Mrs. Ernest Van Fossan and Mrs. William Morgan.

In addition to M. and Mme. Hurban, Mrs. Townsend had as her luncheon guests the last United States Envoy to Czecho-Slovakia and Mrs. Wilbur Carr. Others in the company were Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Ellery Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Garrett, Arthur Bradley Campbell, Mrs. Thomas Richard Cowell, Robert Coe, Mrs. M. J. Whittall, Rastko Petrovic, Stuart Ross, John Magruder, Mrs. C. C. Jerome, Meade Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Townsend, George Williams, Mrs. J. Butler Wright, Mrs. Hurley, Mason Terry, Eben Comins, Mrs. Catherine Tenney, Pendleton Turner, Mme. van Kaathoven, Clarence Hewes and the guest artists.

After the luncheon Mrs. Townsend and her guests adjourned to the Pan American Room of the Mayflower to listen to President Roosevelt's message to the joint session of Congress.

Another hostess at luncheon after the concert was Mrs. Frank E. Kaufman, of Chevy Chase, Md. She will give a similar party following the concert next Monday.

Young Gradys Play Host

At a "you-can't-get-rid-of-us-even-if-the-family-are-leaving" party yesterday afternoon, Miss Patricia Grady and her brother Reginald, tried out their wings on the host and hostess roles they will be playing for their family when their father and mother, the retiring Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry F. Grady leave for the West Coast, where Mr. Grady will assume his duties as new president of the American President Lines.

It was truly a "young folks" party, with all arrangements being made by Miss Grady, due to the fact that Mrs. Grady has been put on the sick list for a rest cure, by physician's orders, for the next week or so.

Generally assisting the young host and hostess were Mrs. Frank Waring, Mrs. Loyle Morrison and Miss Louise McNutt, daughter of Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt.

Noted during the afternoon were William Stanley, jr., and his sister, Miss Mary Jane Stanley; James Dickey, Lieut. Comdr. Bradford Bartlett, Miss Sybella Clayton, Miss Peggy Essary, Miss Ruth Quinn, Senorita Elena Castro, daughter of the Minister of El Salvador, and Senora de Castro; Ray Millard, Mr. and Mrs. Victor 'Kwong, Miss Achsah Bowie Dorsey; G. B. ("Frisky") Seibold, Miss Carolyn Ihrie Pou Wadden, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lawrence, Miss Anita Cajigas, Miss Janet Clapper and Harry Conover.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON, between those very social hours of 5 and 7, found many Washingtonians engaged in a favorite form of exercise, springing from one pary to another. The agile ones motored out to Grasslands, where Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Horace Smith were hosts at a very gay party for Miss Peggy Lansdowne. Then there was Mme. Espil's tea in honor of the Assistant Naval Attache of the French Embassy and the Marquise de Levis-Mirepoix. Many of the same faces were seen at both, and there was a constant shuttling back and forth between Grasslands and the Argentine Embassy.

There was absolutely nothing official about the Espil affair, unusual for an embassy function. Nary a Senator nor Representative was to be seen—instead, mostly young people whom Mme. de Espil thought the honor guests would enjoy meeting. Lieut. and the Marquise de Levis-Mirepoix were married only a few weeks ago. She has a French father and an Argetnine mother, and since the war and until her marriage resided with her parents in Buenos Aires.

THE INVITATIONS read "small tea," but evidently if you live in an embassy, you see big. For there were at least 150 guests milling about the living room of the big stone house on New Hampshire Avenue.

Mme. de Espil, her daughter, Miss Louise Stillwell, and Mme. de Levis-Mirepoix received in the hall at the head of the wide staircase. The hostess wore a long dress of gray with a short scarlet jacket. Miss Stillwell was in black with a red bow in her hair and Mme. de Levis-Mirepoix also chose black, a short dress of velvet, with a white flower hat.

SEEN HERE and there: The Ambassador, Senor Espil, coming in late after working in the chancery downstairs all day . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, en route to the Smiths' party for Mrs. Caswell's daughter . . . Mrs. Mondell Gregg, in black with a bright colored hat . . . Charles Lucet and Etienne des Roziers of the French Embassy . . . Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Peet, on their way to an evening at the skating rink.

Mary and Edith Wright, daughters of Mrs. J. Butler Wright, were early arrivals . . . Senor and Senora de Scilingo and Ricardo Siri were among members of the embassy staff on hand.

OTHERS: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark and the latter's brother, Harry Covington . . . Mrs. George Howe, in black and hatless . . . Paul Daniels from the State Department and Mrs. Daniels . . . Clarence Hewes, Arthur Bradley Campbell, and the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser . . . Mrs. Emmons Smith, in gray with a silver fox cape, chatting with Griffith Warfield . . . Roberto Mendoza introducing a friend from Cuba . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Page, the latter in bright green, Mrs. Waggaman Pulver, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bonsal, who had just come on from "Wibbie" Smith's very successful party for Miss Lansdowne.

The French Ambassador, Gaston Henri-Haye, missed the President's speech to Congress yesterday, because he was 20 minutes late. At that time there wasn't a single inch left in the diplomatic gallery, even for an Ambassador.

Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent Installs Officers

Banquet Becomes Birthday Party For Mrs. Anna Baden, Widow Of Captain in Union Army

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor

The installation banquet of Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans, held at the Willard Hotel last night, was in the nature of a birthday party for one of the guests of honor, Mrs. Anna Baden, who was observing her ninety-ninth birthday.

Mrs. Baden, a native of Alexandria, is not the daughter but the widow of a Union veteran. Her husband was a captain in the Union Army at the time of their marriage. Although she is not a member of the D. of U. V. she takes an interest in its activities and also has the distinction of being the oldest member of the Women's Relief Corps. She helped organize the W. R. C. here and belongs to the Lincoln unit. Mrs. Baden was born January 6, 1842.

Other honor guests at the banquet were Mrs. John M. Ryan, widow of Senior Vice Comdr. Ryan of the Department of the Potomac G. A. R.; Miss Grace Hurd, past national president and now national secretary of the Daughters of Union Veterans, and Mrs. Blanche Covert, department president of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Miss Hurd acted as installing officer, conducting the installation of the new officers, headed by Mrs. Amelia A. Yoder. She was assisted by Mrs. Hermione Sutton as installing chaplain, and Miss Katie Guiton, installing guide. All the officers were dressed in white and entered to music played by the Marine Band Orchestra.

Officers, in addition to Mrs. Yoder, who were installed included Mrs. Mildred Poore, senior vice president; Mrs. Anna Hausman, junior vice president; Mrs. Carrie Doyle, chaplain; Mrs. Kathryn C. Rahn, treasurer; Mrs. Mary E. Kerr, Miss Jennie Hamilton and Miss Jessie M. Lewis, council members; Mrs. Edith Bugbee, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Anna McElroy, secretary; Mrs. Alice Roberts Koch, press correspondent; Miss Blanche Kerr, guide; Mrs. Mary E. Ruebsam, guard; Mrs. Theodosia Bell, assistant guard; Mrs. May Parker, musician; Mrs. Esther Lippold, Mrs. Cora Dorsey, Miss Sadie Stockmar, and Miss Alice Lippold, color bearers.

Mrs. Alice Roberts Koch was general chairman of the banquet, assisted by Miss Blanche Kerr, Mrs. Anna McElroy, Mrs. Sylvia MacLaughlin, Mrs. Alice Burke, Mrs. Kathryn Rahn, and Miss Lavina Bashford.

W. C. Taylor Addresses Y.W.C.A. Unit

Only 500,000 Refugees Remain in Unoccupied France, He Reports

Unoccupied France has been cleared of all but half a million of the 5,000,000 refugees who poured into that area at the time of the German invasion, Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne Chatfield Taylor, former representative of the American Red Cross in Central Europe, said yesterday.

Addressing the International Outlook section of the Twentieth Century Club at the Y. W. C. A., Mr. Taylor quoted these figures, which he received only yesterday in a report as of November 20. A large percentage of the people who have left the unoccupied area of France have gone back to the districts from which they came, he said. Only a comparative few have made their way to England or America. The Germans have facilitated the return of the refugee population, he said, as it is to their interest as well as that of the refugees and the people of unoccupied France to have them dispersed. There is certain prohibited territory, strategic from a military standpoint or kept clear for troop movements, from which the former populace is barred, he added.

Questioned as to the food situation, he said Europe as a whole did not face starvation this winter but that he could not speak for individual localities where transportation was bad and food supplies were depleted. He repeated the statement he has made before that the situation for the children is more serious because of their need for milk and vitamin concentrates.

Supplies reach Great Britain with slight loss, he said, and are sent as part of other cargoes on British or British controlled ships.

G.O.P. League Hears Founder

"There is no occasion to change our politics. The old party is still great and under its rule America has grown great," Mrs. Virginia White Speel, founder and former president of the League of Republican Women, told its members yesterday.

Mrs. Speel, who is also Republican National Committeewoman for the District, spoke at the January meeting of the league, of which Mrs. Edward Everett Gann is now president. She reviewed the history of the organization which she founded in 1912 and declared that many of the women in it had been examples of party loyalty not only when the party was in power but also when it was in the shadow. She urged the members to carry on now, to find work they could do for the party and the country and to live up to the privileges they enjoyed as American citizens.

The league, she said, was the oldest purely Republican women's club in the United States and held the first political school ever conducted, in 1924, with 600 women attending from all parts of the country.

Takoma Park Club Today

Hans Jacob, former official of the German government who went to France and took out French citizenship after the rise of Hitler, will address the Takoma Park Women's Club at its meeting today, telling of his recent experiences in France. Both he and his wife will be honor guests at the club's luncheon at Town Hall. Mrs. Paul Burk, the president, will preside.

City Club Will Hear Plea for Aid To Young Britons

A meeting in the interests of needy children in Great Britain and the wartime effort of the Save the Children Federation in cooperation with its sister organization, the British Save the Children Fund in London, will be held at the Women's City Club tonight at 8:30.

Dr. John R. Voris, president and executive director of the Save the Children Federation, and Lady Mayer, who is assisting the agency in its overseas work, will attend. Lady Mayer, the wife of Sir Robert Mayer, who is thoroughly conversant with the work in Great Britain and has participated in it will be the principal speaker.

The invitation, sent to a large number of social, civic and official leaders in Washington, was issued by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, who will preside.

Pen Women Story Winners Named

Winners in the Christmas story contest, held by the fiction group of the District of Columbia Branch, National League of American Pen Women, were announced at the January workshop meeting Friday evening in the league's studio in the Grafton Hotel. Mrs. Eva Grant Marshall, chairman of the group, had asked for stories with a theme directed toward "the effect of war on Christmas—or of Christmas on war."

Mrs. Florence Hamilton Wallace received first prize for her story, "And on Earth," and Mrs. Rose Myrtle Richards was given second place for "Not Even Bread Alone."

Rowena Farrar, popular author of short stories and one of the new members of the branch, spoke to the group on "The Technique of the Love Story."

Job Clinic Will Hold Eighth Meeting Tonight

The Women's Occupational Council announces the eighth meeting of the Women's Job Clinic at George Washington University in room 203 of Building D, on G Street between Twentieth and Twenty-first Streets, at 7:30 tonight.

Dr. Mitchell Dreese, professor of educational psychology, has made arrangements at the university for a larger room for the clinic at which there is now a weekly attendance of 70.

Dr. Marjorie Shearon, president of the council, will preside at the clinic and will begin a series of short lectures, to be given weekly, on "Jobs for Mature Women."

Toys Not for Children Alone—Witness Newly Formed Society of Doll Collectors

ONCE UPON A TIME dolls were playthings for little girls and toy trains for little boys. Now the little girls' mothers, their big sisters and their aunts have doll collections and the small boys' fathers, their big brothers and their uncles buy them electric trains for Christmas so they (the elders) can enjoy them after the children have been tucked safely in bed.

Far be it from me to set forth an opinion as to whether or not times have changed or whether people are just more honest these days about the fact that they have never really grown up in the first place. The fact remains that toys are coming into their own so far as adult appreciation is concerned.

The International Educational Doll Club formed at a meeting Saturday at the Grafton Hotel is an indication that dolls will soon be running close competition to stamps as a hobby.

Mrs. Virginia Woodin, of Arlington, who, with Miss Josephine Garrison, was responsible for calling together the doll fanciers to discuss organization, has probably the largest collection hereabout, with 1,500 dolls of all sizes, kinds and colors.

Her entire recreation room downstairs in her home has been given over to it. She started the collection five years ago with the purchase of interesting Dutch dolls while visiting Holland. Later she made a world tour and gathered quantities more, representing people of all nations. These are arranged now about an illuminated, revolving globe as a center of interest in the display at her home.

Among the dolls there is also a group of 16 in authentic costumes, representing the coronation of King George VI of England, and sent to her soon after the coronation by an English friend.

Miss Garrison has several hundred dolls in her collection, among them a group of early American ladies and gentlemen, with Martha Washington the most distinguished of the company.

There are many other collectors here, among those whose collections are best known being Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, of Alexandria, the author; Mrs. Harry W Frantz and Mrs. Laura Waters.

The success of the doll teas of the Council of Church Women, planned by Miss Etta Mai Russell, juvenile court worker, for the council last fall, is another indication of the place that dolls hold in the interest of grown-ups.

Mrs. Woodin is president of the new club; Mrs. Laura Waters, vice president; Miss Kathryn Rodgers, secretary, and Miss Garrison, treasurer.

Some of the objectives Mrs. Woodin has outlined for the organization are: "To make the acquaintance of other doll collectors; to have the privilege of viewing doll collections, to promote and sustain interest in the hobby, to get dolls out of attics and boxes and have them where they may be enjoyed by their owners and friends, to make a study of dolls as an educational medium and to encourage friendships in other countries through dolls."

Among charter members of the club are Mrs. Harry Warner Frantz, Mrs. William B. Garrison, Miss Garrison, Mrs. Herbert M. Bratter, Miss Junia Bratter, Mrs. Al. Dornblatt, Miss Anita Dornblatt, Miss Zartman, Miss Rodgers, Miss Evelyn G. Durnbaugh, Mrs. R. D. Marsden, Miss Frances Tew, Mrs. William F. Meggers, Miss Bett Jane Meggers, Mrs. Florence M. Mears, Mrs. Waters, Mrs. Ralph Richards, Miss H. M. Hickerson and Mrs. E. E. Estes.

2 Clubs Join In Installation In Arlington

Soroptimists, Venture Ceremonies Are Held At Double Banquet

Mrs. Jean Bennett, president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs and a member of the local organization, last night installed the officers of the Arlington County Club at a joint installation banquet held by the Arlington Soroptimist and Venture Clubs, with Judge Lucy Somerville Howarth as guest speaker. Miss Jeanne Meara, past president of the Washington Venture Club, installed the Venture officers.

The affair at which Arlington County officials, representatives of the county service clubs and presidents of the Soroptimist clubs of the South Atlantic region were guests, was held at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Mrs. Helen Sharpe, of the Washington Club, was guest soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Martha Hunton, and Bernard Bury, accordionist, provided the dinner music. Mrs. Pearl W. Sharpe, retiring president, presided.

New officers of the Soroptimist Club, headed by Miss Elizabeth Hewston, as president, are: vice president, Mrs. Frances C. Bell; recording secretary, Miss Lena M. Wolfe; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Neta H. Broaddus; treasurer, Mrs. Mabel R. Davis.

Directors, Mrs. Pearl W. Sharpe, Mrs. Katharine Winston, Mrs. Nellie Spencer McIntosh.

The new officers of the Venture Club include, President, Miss France Graninger; vice president, Mrs. Marjorie Billard; secretary, Miss Dorothy Kines; treasurer, Miss Dorothy Corkery.

The great strength of the United States is not its billions of gold, its tons of metal or its giant industrial capacity. It is the native mechanical skill and inventive power of its people.
In a crisis, this democracy always gives us the men and the ideas the nation needs.
Usually, we imagine that these ideas come from the scientific laboratories or from the drawing boards of engineers. Many do. But just as many and just as great ideas come from the men at the machines of industry.
For scientists, there is the Nobel Prize. For engineers, a score of awards. But there is no award for the gifted men now working at the lathes, forges and work benches of industry.
As a contribution to our national security, Revere Copper and Brass Incorporated is establishing such an award—a Nobel Prize for the workmen in America's metal working industries.

Revere Copper and Brass Incorporated

The REVERE AWARD

for Wage Earners in America's Metal Working Industries

THE Revere Award is made by Revere Copper and Brass Incorporated to help speed national defense by encouraging the mechanical genius and inventive talent of American wage earners.

The Revere Award totals $10,000.00 divided as follows:

1st Award	$5,000.00
2nd Award	2,500.00
3rd Award	1,000.00
4th to 9th Awards	250.00 each

The Revere Award is open to all wage earners (foremen and workingmen) in the metal and metal-working industries and to all machine maintenance men.

Each entry remains the property of the sender.

Selection will be made by an impartial Jury of Award consisting of men high in science, labor, the Army, the Navy and industry. The decision of the Jury of Award will be final.

Winners will be chosen for the inventions, devices, improvements or ideas which, in the Jury's opinion, contribute most to speeding up America's Defense Program.

It is desired that all entries be placed at the command of the Defense Advisory Council at Washington, D. C., subject to the entrant's own written consent.

Two or more men may cooperate in any entry.

The Defense Advisory Council would appreciate the cooperation of men in industry—from top to bottom—in bringing the Revere Award to the attention of all men who might be interested.

To help you do this, the following aids have been prepared and are available, free.

- POSTER FOR INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYEES BULLETIN BOARDS.
- BOOKLET GIVING COMPLETE DETAILS OF THE REVERE AWARD.
- ENTRY BLANKS.

Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard loves to be referred to as a "dirt farmer," which, after all, is what he really is. He has tried to portray the "common man" and he has been careful not to allow his official position to turn his head. Dirt farmers don't have valets, a fact that had a lot to do with the demotion of Edward Crockett, 52-year-old colored man who has pressed the pants and dusted off every Secretary of Agriculture since 1914.

Edward has been attached to the Secretary's office so long that he's referred to among his own people as "Mr. Secretary." Edward was sort of an official greeter for the Secretary. He knows all the great and near-great. For years he had a private cubby-hole adjoining the Secretary's office which was covered with autographed pictures. His picture gallery was one of the best and it was one of the main attractions at the department. Autographed pictures of President Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover, and Roosevelt were among his famed collection.

On occasions Edward would go to the Secretary's home to put that certain little twist on the boss' white tie when the President entertained. He spent his own time tending to former Secretary Henry Wallace's wardrobe. Edward insisted that Wallace was as "well-dressed as President Roosevelt" when the former Secretary was accused of dressing "shabbily" some time ago.

Now Edward is just another messenger in the huge department. Secretary Wickard opens the door to his office himself. He wipes off his own desk and brushes off his own clothes. Smiling Edward no longer greets the Secretary's callers. All of which is probably just a bit inconvenient to Wickard, but he must consider it smart politics.

Lots of stories are told about Edward. One of the best concerns his part to eliminate agricultural surpluses. A group of low-paid Agriculture employes, the story goes, lived in a boarding house where powdered milk and oleomargerine were served. Edward heard about it and phoned the landlady, introducing himself as "this is the Secretary of Agriculture's office calling." He told the boarding house operator of the huge surpluses of fresh milk and butter and explained that it was necessary that department employes be fed proper foods to reduce the over-supply. The next morning the landlady, believing she had talked to the Secretary of Agriculture, began to serve fresh milk and butter.

Safety First Note: Forty Park Police were sent back to school yesterday to learn how to handle gas and bombs. A course on public relations and courtesy also is being taught at the squad room at 15th and C Streets Southwest . . . Mary Barry, secretary in Interior's information office, is laid up at her Pennsylvania home with a broken shoulder . . . Bill Forsyth, former A. P. photographer, now is taking pictures for Agriculture . . . O. M. Reed has been appointed chief of the Dairy Division of the Surplus Marketing Administration . . . Dr. H. R. Cox, Public Health Service bacteriologist, will be given the Theobald Smith award in medical science.

Two prominent Puerto Rican attorneys are here trying to stop what they said was an attempt by Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes to inflict a "carpetbag appointment" on the island's Supreme Court. The attorneys, Benicio Sanchez and Enrique Campos del Torro, believe that Ickes is trying to get Henry A. Hirshberg, a Texan who is an Interior employe, appointed to the court. Interior officials say Hirshberg is being considered along with "50 others."

Robin Edgerton Spencer, Weather Bureau official, yesterday returned from New York where he saw the opening of the play dramatized from his book, "The Lady Who Came to Stay." He liked it and he hopes others will too. The book was published in 1931 and Spencer had no idea it was stage material. Guthrie McClintic is producing it . . . Polly Pettner, FHA stenographer, will give sample stenographer and typist tests for men Wednesday at 7:05 p. m. over WINX. Civil Service needs male stenographers and typists.

2 Men Killed In Auto Crash At Merrifield

3 Others Injured; Driver Is Charged In Pedestrian's Death

Two men were dead yesterday as the result of a collision between two automobiles at Merrifield, Va., on Lee Highway, which caused injury to three other occupants of the vehicles.

HERRELL

The fatalities were Millard F. Herrell, 21, of Falls Church, and David F. Tewald, 40, of Woodstock, Va. Herrell was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital, and Tewald died several hours later at Georgetown Hospital.

In the car with Herrell was Joseph Butler, 19, of Merrifield, while Howard Cline, 45, and John Holsinger, 56, both of Woodstock, were passengers in the second car. All three escaped with minor injuries and were treated on the scene by Dr. F. B. Schultz, of Falls Church.

Police said the two cars sideswiped.

Herrell was employed as a clerk with a chain store. Services will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Columbia Baptist Church, Falls Church, with burial in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church.

In Washington, a coroner's jury yesterday found a 26-year-old colored man responsible in the death of Benjamin Luckett, 51, colored, of 609 O'Neal Court Southwest, a pedestrian, who was struck Saturday night at Fourth and G Streets Southwest.

Alfred D. Warwick, of Anacostia, was charged with negligent homicide and held for Police Court action.

Police and Firemen Called to Bonfire

Neighbors unduly alarmed at the sight of smoke and flames yesterday led police and firemen to a futile chase in the 5430 block of Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

Firemen arrived to find a crew of workmen on an apartment house construction project comfortably squatted around a bonfire and eating their lunches.

When the firemen left without extinguishing the blaze neighbors called police to the scene. A scout car arrived. Two policemen warmed their hands momentarily, then left, also declining to put out the fire.

Toys Don't Bring Joys When Used in Streets

Children, be careful with your Christmas roller skates, sleds and bikes. And, motorists, don't let those holiday gifts lead youngsters to injury, or death.

This plea was made yesterday by the Keystone Automobile Club spokesmen.

"Motorists should be doubly watchful for unexpected forays of children on the streets at this season," said Edward P. Curran, club safety director. "Youngsters unskilled in the use of skates or bikes are an especial hazard. Their safety will depend in great measure on the careful operation of motor vehicles."

Urban League Studies Racial Cooperation

Better interracial understanding, as a part of the national defense program, was the theme of a meeting held last night under auspices of the Urban League, in the Interior Department Auditorium. Dr. Waldron Faulkner, league president, explained measures of racial cooperation which constitute the basic purpose of the organization.

The stake of the colored citizen in perpetuation of genuine democracy was outlined by George Goodman, league secretary.

Procedure in focusing public opinion on neglected areas to prepare them for total participation in national defense, was discussed by Jesse O. Thomas, league field director. He pointed out the impracticability of development of total defense so long as there are large areas neglected in social culture.

Wider employment opportunities for colored citizens in Federal services here, Dr. Robert C. Weaver, assistant to Sidney Hillman, indicated, should be attained before the Government seeks to enforce such wider employment on contracts throughout the Nation.

The meeting launched a program for the raising of $10,000 for league purposes here.

500 Attend Rally Against Aid to Britain

Resolutions condemning aid to Britain and calling for democracy first at home were adopted here last night by a mass meeting of approximately 500, sponsored by the Washington Peace Mobilization.

The keynote of an enthusiastic session was struck by Herbert Biberman, Hollywood producer, playwright and chairman of the American Peace Crusade of California, who declared:

"We are the only fighters of Hitlerism extant, and we will not acknowledge for one second that Mr. Roosevelt is . . . nor Mr. Churchill."

He and other speakers declared proponents of all-out aid to England were leading the United States into the war. They called on "the common people" for a fight for democracy here, "not democracy somewhere else."

Morris Watson, vice president of the American Newspaper Guild, during a speech on "Labor's Stake in Peace," made sarcastic reference to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's attendance of a recent Washington Newspaper Guild meeting.

"I have no respect," he said, "for those in high places who by some technicality join a union . . . who in a time of crisis like this bring their knitting and vote for every reactionary motion."

In addition to adopting resolutions demanding "no further aid to Britain," condemning the Dies Committee and calling on Congress and the President to protect civil liberties in America, most of the audience wrote postcards to Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, commending him on his isolationist stand.

They also heard Hudson Wells, chairman of the Washington Peace Mobilization, ask them to telephone local radio stations today and urge that the organization be allowed to buy time on the air.

Other speakers were A. J. Isserman, labor lawyer and executive board member of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties; Thelma Dale, president of the Washington Negro Youth Foundation; Sarah V. Montgomery, secretary-treasurer of the Washington Peace Mobilization, and Goldie Erwin, secretary of the Philadelphia Council of the National Negro Congress.

Invite Problem Child to Home, Civilize Him, Parents Advised

The thing to do with the small boy in your neighborhood who throws stones at cats, breaks windows and teaches Junior bad language, is to invite him into your home and civilize him, parents at the Washington City Church of the Brethren learned yesterday.

Speaking at the concluding session of the church's three-day "Living in the Christian Family" institute, Dr. Garry Cleveland Myers explained that it does no good to ostracize the "neighborhood nuisance" because children will associate with each other in spite of parental decrees.

Children should be encouraged to mix with all types and social life for the timid child can be developed by inviting other youngsters into the home, he added.

"A bad playmate is better than no playmate at all," Dr. Myers pointed out, adding that the problem of the lonely child is increasing with a growing number of one-child families. "Adults who cannot get along with other people were once children who did not have enough social contacts."

In schools as well as at home, children should be encouraged to work with a group instead of performing individually, the editor of Children's Activities Magazine asserted. Sympathetic treatment also helps to overcome self-consciousness.

Don't laugh at your children's mistakes, Dr. Myers warned. Psychosos and other fears come from just such ridicule at home and at school, he said.

A meeting of more than 200 parents last night concluded the institute, with Dr. Myers speaking on "Our Children and the Church." He stressed the importance of parents developing a "good, practical religion" so that children will decide for themselves to practice church teachings.

Seal Terms Taxes in D.C. Inequitable

Former Corporation Counsel Says Capital Relies Too Heavily On Income Levies

The District's tax setup was criticized by Elwood Seal, former corporation counsel for Washington, as relying too heavily on real estate taxes and including inequitable income tax provisions, at a meeting yesterday of the Dupont Circle Citizens Association.

Seal called the chances of decreasing the city's tax rate "very slim." To lower substantially the District's present $40,000,000 annual budget, cuts would have to be made in some of the five items which total three-fourths of the expenditures: Schools, welfare, police, fire protection and health.

With the growth of the city, each of these items annually requires more money, he observed.

Attorney Seal urged rewording of the income tax law to include those earning their living here but maintaining legal residences elsewhere. Specific exemptions should be made for members of Congress, he said, as they would be unlikely to pass a bill which taxes themselves.

Congress Hts. Progressive

A civic victory was reported last night at the meeting of Congress Heights Progressive Citizens Association, when President Edward E. Richardson told members of the recent land purchase by the District for a playground in their Southeast area.

The plaground will be located on Alabama Avenue between Randle Place and Eighth Street Southeast. The association urged that equipment be bought for use there in the spring.

Other resolutions backed the improvement of the Fort Drive, which runs through the Congress Heights area; opposed a by-pass for rerouting trucks around the District through Congress Heights; and asked for a sidewalk for Waclark Street Southeast.

Kenilworth

Approval of the federation's investigation of liquor issues in the District, now being conducted by a special committee, was voted by the Kenilworth association.

Members moved to thank Capt. Hugh Groves, of No. 11 Police Precinct, for "very commendable" police protection for students at Kenilworth schools.

They also approved action of the Southeast Federation in investigating the cost of fuel oil in the District, postponed a scheduled election of officers until the next meeting, and inducted Mrs. Maud Boswell, 4401 Ord Street Northeast, as a new member.

Progressive-Georgetown

The Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown last night urged that the sale of liquor be prohibited within 300 feet of a church or school.

The association declared that the present restriction of 400 feet was not sufficient. The resolution also urged restrictions upon the size of liquor signs and urged that it be declared illegal for liquor signs to be lighted when the stores are closed.

The association heard Traffic Judge Walter J. Casey call for another traffic judge to keep the docket clear. Casey said that there were 27,890 cases handled in traffic court last year, in addition to 600 jury trials.

Forest Hills

The complete development of Soapstone Valley Park between Connecticut Avenue and Broad Branch Road south of Albemarle Street Northwest was recommended last night by the Forest Hills Citizens Association at its regular meeting held at the Ben Murch School, Thirty-sixth and Davenport Streets Northwest.

Closing of Van Ness Street west from Connecticut Avenue to Reno Road was opposed by the organization. It was pointed out that the Bureau of Standards sought to close the through way since it acquired property for development on both sides of the street.

Senator King was made an honorary life member of the association in recognition of his services to the District. The association indorsed the plan of a cross-town bus line connecting northeast and northwest sections of the city.

Metropolis View

George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets for the District, discussed methods of safeguarding buyers against unfair practices at the regular meeting of the Metropolis View Citizens Association last night. More than 35 persons attended the meeting at the Crosby S. Noyes School, Tenth and Franklin Streets Northeast.

Capital News in Brief

2 D. C. Greeks Victorious, Too— Win Battle With Footpads

STOUT-HEARTED, TOO—Nick (left), 26, and Teddy Smyrnas, 28, were scarred but unbowed after their battle

Two Washington brothers last night proved to scores of passersby and window-watchers that not all the stout-hearted Greeks are fighting in Albania.

The brothers, Nick Smyrnas, 26, and Teddy, 28, of 1335 Spring Road Northwest, exchanged blows with two armed bandits for more than 10 minutes in the 1300 block Girard Street Northwest.

By the time police reinforcements reached the scene, the colored thugs had fled, and the Smyrnas brothers held the field, and some $45 between them which they had refused to turn over to the bandits, despite being beaten over the head with gun-butts.

The gunmen attacked as the Smyrnas, who work in a market, had gotten into their auto to drive home. Without hesitating, the small but husky brothers pitched in, and gave the Greeks another victory.

Dog Vanishes, Boy Mourns

Smokey was 1 year old yesterday, but he didn't get to celebrate.

In fact, Smokey was lost.

A dog belonging to 11-year-old Emmett Norris, of 268 Fifteenth Street Southeast, he disappeared Friday and has had the whole neighborhood looking ever since.

He is half spitz, half collie and all black, and has been in the Norris household since he was two days old. Emmett, who is in the fifth grade at Buchanan School, values him "more than my bicycle."

Wherever Smokey is, his master says he hopes he had a good time on his birthday and "hasn't been hurt, so he can come home soon."

Christmas Tree Fire Nearly Razes Garage

Like old razor blades, old Christmas trees are something of a problem to get rid of.

A group of boys thought they had solved the problem yesterday, but it proved to be a rather expensive method. They stacked a dozen or so of the trees against a garage in the rear of 417 Emerson Street Northwest and touched them off with a match.

That got rid of the trees very well, but it nearly got rid of the garage as well. Firemen extinguished both.

Public Library Opens In Southwest Area

Southwest Washington's first public library was opened yesterday in its branch library wing of the new Jefferson Memorial Junior High School, Seventh and H Streets Southwest.

Dedicated with formal ceremonies last Friday, the new library opened with 17,800 volumes and 92 magazines in its built-in shelves.

Miss Virginia McLaughlin, librarian of the Southwest branch, began in the afternoon to register all of the Jefferson Junior High students.

Bethesda Doctor Robbed of $87

Dr. F. A. Martinez, of Bethesda, Md., gave up $87 to a gunman last night as he left an apartment house at 814 Seventeenth Street Northwest after visiting a patient there.

The robber accosted him in the hallway, he reported to police.

Detective Shimon Passes Cigars Around

Detective Sergt. Joseph Shimon, assistant to the District attorney, wandered around police headquarters last night with a big grin and a box of cigars.

The reason was a 7-pound daughter, Elizabeth Hale Shimon, born to Mrs. Shimon at Georgetown Hospital Sunday morning. Mrs. Shimon is the former Elizabeth M. Keys, of Washington. The couple's home is in Arlington.

Road Union Asks Safety Legislation

Four Workers Killed In District Tunnel Accidents in Year, Arnheim Charges

A demand for District safety legislation was coupled with charges last night that at least four workers were killed and 50 others suffered broken bones in tunnel construction accidents here last year.

Willy Arnheim, business agent for the Road, Highway, and Heavy Construction Laborers Union, made the demand and charges before a meeting of the Central Labor Union, council of American Federaiton of Labor affiliates in the city.

Arnheim asserted that there were no laws in the District providing adequate protection for tunnel workers, and urged the Central Labor Union to seek either an amendment to the building code or direct legislation to cut down the accidents.

It was pointed out that two persons have been killed in the past three weeks by rock-slide accidents in the Rock Creek Park sewage tunnel project.

A meeting of the laborers' union will be held tomorrow night to determine what measures the union will take. Arnheim indicated that if other means failed, a strike might be called.

Officials of the Lombardi Construction Co., which is blasting out the tunnel, could not be reached last night for comment.

All officers of the Central Labor Union were unanimously renominated. They are John Locher, president; Charles B. McClosky, vice president; Frank J. Coleman, recording secretary; Robert C. Lester, financial secretary; James A. Holden, treasurer; Michael Tozzolo, sergeant at arms; Frank W. Lee, Harry J. Thompson, and D. C. Dow, trustees.

C. I. O. Unions Assail Lifting of 8-Hour Day

The Industrial Union Council last night condemned the action of President Roosevelt in rescinding the eight-hour day for workers on the new naval bases, because it was viewed as a precedent and threat to the eight-hour day in the United States.

At the same time the council, composed of unions affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, called attention to the "hardship" caused by the drafting of married men in the District, although, the resolution stated, an unofficial impression had been given that married men would be deferred.

Cecil Owen, council president, who is also a member of the Selective Service Appeals Board, charged that some of the selection boards here were guilty of "fanatical diligence" in carrying out the provisions of the selective service act.

'Wrong Shot' Bulla Wins Los Angeles Open

5,000 Watch Youngster Record 281

High-Priced Golf Ball Manufacturers Are Horrified as Johnny Shoots Cheap Pellet

By Henry McLemore,
United Press Sports Writer.

Los Angeles, Jan. 6.—Johnny Bulla thrilled 5,000 spectators and horrified the Nation's high-priced golf ball manufacturers today when he won the $10,000 Los Angeles Open Championship playing a three-for-a-dollar drugstore ball.

The big Greensboro, N. C., boy, playing the last nine holes in a cold drizzle, shaved two stroke off par with a 69 for a 72-hole total of 281. It was Bulla's first big tournament win and he richly deserved it. Had he not been penalized two strokes yesterday for playing the wrong ball off the first fairway, he would have won in a walk with five strokes under par for the four rounds over the long Riviera Country Club course.

Plays 35-Cent Ball

Bulla's victory was popular with the crowd but not with the manufacturers' agents on hand, because Bulla, under contract to a nationally known drug store chain, plays a ball that sells for 35 cents instead of the usual 75 cents.

Bulla's win, which was hailed by the customers as a victory for the common people, brought him $3,500. Second money of $1,700 went to Craig Wood, the long hitter from New York, whose three under par 68 gave him 283, vaulting him over five rivals who started the final round in a more advantageous position.

Ben Hogan, the little Texan who hits 'em a mile, and Clayton Heafner, the former candy maker from North Carolina, tied for third place with 284 and dragged down $1,000 each.

Thomson, Goggin Tie

Behind them, at 285, and sharing $1,200, were Jimmy Thomson and Willie Goggin. Thomson, world's longest hitter, went into the final round with a one-stroke lead over Bulla, but lost his touch and was fortunate to escape with a 74. Goggin had a final round of 72.

Others who shared in the $10,000 prize money, and the cash they collected were Horton Smith, 286, $350; Denny Shute, 287, $200; Lawson Little, 288, $150; Lloyd Mangrum, 290, $130; Harold McSpaden and Fred Wood, 291, $95; E. J. Harrison, Emerlek Kocsis, Vic Ghezzi and Al Krueger, 292, $45.

Bulla, whose nearest approach to fame until today was at Philadelphia three years ago when he led the National Open field at the finish of 63 holes only to crack up, showed no signs of faltering today. He went out in 34, one under par, and at the end of 63 holes had overhauled Thomson, who needed a 36 for his first nine. Bulla eliminated Thomson as a contender on the sixty-fourth hole when he bagged a birdie 3 to Thomson's 6.

Bulla birdied the eleventh when he laid his approach dead to the pin for a four, but bogied the twelfth

National League Signs 6 College Grid Officials

Storck Moves to Fight Eastern College Ruling To Bar Officials From Work in Pro Ranks; 'Fifth-Down' Friesell Among Those Signed

By Al Hailey.

The National Professional Football League struck back at the collegiate ruling that no Eastern officials working college games will be permitted to officiate in the pro circuits in 1941.

Six of the East's leading officials were signed by the National League to work professional games next fall at salaries League President Carl L. Storck chose not to divulge in making the announcement in Dayton, Ohio. They will work in the league's Eastern division.

He informed Redskin owners here, however, that other prominent college officials will be signed from time to time, and that effective with the 1941 season officials will work on a rotating system—in a different city each week.

The six officials signed to one-year contracts yesterday were William (Red) Friesell, of Princeton; Tommy Hughitt, of Michigan, both referees; Charlie Berry, of Lafayette, head linesman; E. E. (Shorty) Miller, of Penn State, field judge, and Larry Conover, of Penn State, Miller, of Penn State, field judge; Larry Conover, of Penn State, head linesman, and Harry G. Robb, of Penn State, umpire.

Prominent Figures

All six were prominent figures last fall in the officiating at leading college and professional football games in the East.

Friesell, of the Cornell-Dartmouth game's "fifth-down" fame, was referee for the Army-Navy game, and he also worked both Redskin-Chicago Bear games.

The league's action was taken, it was said here, to insure the pro-

Harry Jeffra Beats Speary In Baltimore

Featherweight Champ Wins 12-Round Verdict In Close Battle

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—Harry Jeffra, recognized in Maryland as the featherweight champion, won a unanimous 12-round decision tonight over Billy Speary, of Nanticoke, Pa.

Three times he had the Pennsylvanian on the canvas for nine counts, but the latter rallied each time and the champion had his hands full all evening.

It was the first defeat in the professional ring for Speary who had won 12 straight fights before tonight's battle.

Speary went down in the fourth, fifth and twelfth rounds. Although he defeated Jeffra in a fight last November in Wilkes-Barre, Speary's punches lacked power tonight and he never had his man near a knockdown.

Jeffra, ordinarily a right-handed puncher, followed instructions and shifted to his left to good effect, rocking Speary repeatedly with a short-choppy left hook to the head. It was a swinging right that sent Speary down for the first time, however. A left uppercut set him down in the fifth and another did the trick in the twelfth.

Jeffra had his man on the verge of a knockout in the fifth, but the courageous Speary, bobbing and weaving while still too groggy to throw a punch, outmaneuvered the champion and came back to win the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds.

Jeffra weighed 127½ and Speary 127. It was a nontitle bout.

Chicago Upsets Princeton Five In Overtime, 32-31

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Chicago's Maroons completed their warmup schedule for the Big Ten race tonight with a rousing overtime victory over Princeton University, 32 to 31.

A Princeton rally in the closing seconds tied the score at 29-all, two field goals by Charles Munda bringing the Tigers even with the Maroons. In the overtime Joe Stampf sent Chicago ahead with a free throw, but Princeton retaliated with two points by Dick Mayo.

Mike McMahon then connected with a long field goal to bring the Maroons victory, Chicago stalling the final two minutes to preserve its lead.

Minnesota Five Defeats Wisconsin

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Jan. 6.—Minnesota's basketball team held Wisconsin without a single field goal during the entire second half to romp to a 44-27 victory in the opening Western Conference game for both teams here tonight.

Wisconsin used most of its scoring punch during the first half and was behind by only a 21-19 margin at half-time, but after the intermission found its offensive efforts gone awry before a stubborn Gopher defense.

Harold Thune, guard, and Don Carlson, forward, paced Minnesota to its victory, with 11 and 10 points, respectively, while Frederick Rehm, guard, was high for Wisconsin with five points.

After the score was tied, 3-3, early in the game, Wisconsin held a small lead during most of the first period. Behind 13-14, Minnesota counted two field goals by Thune and a free throw by Bill Lind, center, and went into an 18-14 lead.

Ex-British Olympic Champ Killed in Flight

London, Jan. 6.—Wing Commander A. W. Sweeney, 32 years of age, British Olympic sprinter, was killed recently in a flying accident, it was announced today. Sweeney won 100 and 200-yard events at the Empire games in London in 1934. He also won the 100-meter race in a match between Britain and Germany in 1936. He had a high reputation also as a squash player.

Alice Marble Scores In Pro Tennis Debut

Mary Hardwick Beaten in Straight Sets, 8–6, 8–6, in Madison Square Garden; Loser Holds 4–0 Lead in First Set

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 6.—"Queen Alice" Marble bowed into professional tennis tonight by easily conquering Mary Hardwick, the English champion, 8—6, 8—6, before a good-sized crowd in Madison Square Garden.

Making the first appearance in a tour which will take her to more than 50 cities in the United States, Cuba, Canada, and the Bahamas—and will net her at least $25,000—the blonde Californian got off to a ragged start, but went on without too much trouble.

Miss Hardwick, who had been defeated six times by Miss Marble in amateur tennis, fought doggedly to the finish, but just didn't have enough to do any more. She held a 4-0 lead in the first set, and staved off match point three times in the second before bowing out.

Miss Marble Trails

Alice started out as though she didn't know how to operate on the green canvas court. She lost the first four games, mostly on lack of control, as her forehand showed a tendency toward unnecessary length. Then she found the range and deadlocked the score at 4-all, breaking through the English girl's service on the eighth game. Miss Hardwick proceeded to fall apart momentarily there, and Alice had 6-5 and match point before her control left her again. Finally in the fourteenth game, Miss Marble forced Mary into four errors to take the set.

In the second set, service followed through 13 games, but Miss Marble, except for recurrent moments of ragged control, just continued to wear the Briton down.

In the thirteenth game, Miss Hardwick threatened momentarily to take the upper hand, when she got the advantage after deuce on a fine passing shot. But Alice held service and then went on to break through in the fourteenth game as Miss Hardwick committed four errors, bunting a short one into the net for the final point.

The return of pro tennis to the Garden brought out a crowd of 12,371.

Budge Beats Tilden

The feminine stars were supported in the program by Donald Budge and Big Bill Tilden and in the singles match between these two, Budge simply had too much youth for the 47-year-old ace of a past decade.

Their match was cut to two sets in order to speed up the program and Budge bagged both with ease, 6—3, 6—4.

Tilden as usual captured the fancy of the crowd with his service and his antics over missed shots, and took a 3—0 lead in the second set.

Miss Marble and Tilden came through with a hard-fought 6—2, 5—7, 6—3 victory in the mixed doubles over Budge and Miss Hardwick.

The official gross gate receipts were announced as $25,814.50. While neither the financial figure nor the official crowd of 12,371 came near the record totals for the first Tilden-Ellsworth Vines match some years ago, tonight's turnout was hardly a disappointment. As late as this afternoon, officials of the tour weren't certain they would draw 10,000 through the turnstiles.

Temple Bows To Spartans In Cage Upset

37-35 Victory Take In Overtime; N. Carolina Loses by 42-41

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—Michigan State ended Temple's six-game winning streak tonight by beating the Owls, 37 to 35, in an extra period game that was the feature of a double-header basketball program at Convention Hall. St. Joseph's defeated North Carolina, 42 to 41, in the first game.

Bob Phillips' field goal in the overtime period gave the Spartans victory in a seesaw game. Michigan State took a 10-1 lead and then had to come from behind to tie the score at 34-34 at the end of the regulation time. Michigan State led, 19-15, at the half.

The Spartans, upset victors over Long Island an Saturday, were behind by 34-33 with only 15 seconds to play when Carl Petroski made good from the foul line to force the game overtime. Petroski was fouled again with five seconds to go, but he missed both free tosses.

Max Hindman put the Spartans ahead with a free throw in the overtime, then Phillips took a pass from Pete Basich for a hook shot that won the game.

It was Temple's first defeat.

Beaten by a similar score by Fordham in New York Saturday, the Tarheels ran up a 13-5 edge in the first half before the Hawks, recent upset victor over Colorado, found the range to lead by 24-17 at intermission.

Led by Larry Kenney the Hawks pulled out far in front in the second half before the Southerners started their closing rally.

Points by George Glamack, Bob Rose, Bob Gersten pulled the Tarheels up to 38-35. Field goals by George Senesky and Don Stahl, with Glamack scoring 4 points, made it 42-39 with 20 seconds to play. Just before the gun Glamack tapped in a rebound.

Marshall Five Wins Over Tennessee, 33-29

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Marshall spurted to take a lead over the University of Tennessee in the second half of their basketball game tonight, then matched the Volunteers basket for basket to win, 33-29.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

'S help us if college basket ball hasn't found a place to light in Washington. After years of nomadry from one ill-suited gymnasium to another, during which the game was bounced around almost until death, it has found pasture and profit at Riverside Stadium.

POVICH

That's where Georgetown and George Washington Universities will clash tomorrow night and it will be comparatively wonderful, after all that college basketball has gone through in Washington. They'll be playing at a place ten minutes from downtown Washington, seats to the number of 5,300 will be available, it won't be a midget court and each customer will have a seat all to himself.

For too many years, Washington has been the little match girl of college basektball—on the outside looking in with envy at the spacious gymnasiums of the hick college towns. Big time basket ball passed the Capital by because here there was no place to play the game at the guarantees to which it was accustomed.

Georgetown has been playing one of the better brands of college basketball for years, but its Ryan Gymnasium on the Hilltop was a joke. After the substitutes were properly seated, the capacity of the place was virtually halved. Georgetown was forced to play its big games out of town.

A dozen seasons ago, George Washington threw up its H Street gymnasium in an attempt to launch itself on a basketball career. It would have been a great place for the Lilliputs. The court was undersized, and when more than 1,000 fans reported for the evening's fun, it was a contest to get into the place. And another strenuous contest to get out. The H Street gym was promptly and properly dubbed the Tin Tabernacle. One visiting coach entered the place and remarked, "a nice ante-room, which way is the gym?"

Washington's higher institutions of learning tried a few years ago to make a go of college basketball at Tech High School, but that venture flopped like an Italian invasion of some place. At Tech, the court was nice enough and the 3,000 seats were inviting, but it required a Magellan or other first-class navigator to locate the corner of First and T Streets, in the maze of Northeast Washington. Getting to Tech High was enough to discourage the casual fan, and by the time the dyed-in-the-wool basketball bug had plowed his way through 9 miles of corridors to get to the gym, he was in a mood to demand more entertainment than he usually got.

But Riverside—ah, it's wun'nerful. There the place is a block off Constitution Avenue, where they keep the traffic moving, and you're inside the place ten seconds after you leave the sidewalk. It's wonderful, too, for such as George Washington U. which can now see its way clear to offering the guarantees that are necessary to fetch the better basketball teams here.

No Big Ten or Metropolitan team with any sort of a reputation would come to Washington for less than a $500 guarantee, and George Washington University could never count on taking in that much at the gate until it discovered Riverside. An offer of $500 with an option of 50 per cent of the gate receipts already has brought to Riverside this season such teams as the Oklahoma Aggies, Kansas State and Minnesota, and on each venture G. W. U. showed a profit.

Washington has been in the perfect spot to bring the name teams here. Most of 'em play in Madison Square Garden anyway, and would not be averse to stopping in Washington at little added expense, if given a moderate guarantee. The Garden games pay most of the freight for the Eastern trips of the Western teams, offering guarantees ranging from $1,000 to $1,500 to each Midwestern college. Notre Dame and Stanford are the top dogs among Madison Square Garden invitees. They have commanded as high as $2,000 guarantees.

There isn't much doubt that Washington basketball fans like Riverside. Three thousand saw the game between G. W. U. and the Oklahoma Aggies, and 3,500 were attracted by the Minnesota game. For the first time in history, advance sales were made for a college basketball game here when scores of fans, making their exit from the Minnesota, G. W. U. game paused to buy seats to the Colonials' battle with Georgetown, which was more than two weeks distant.

In case you hadn't heard, George Washington and Georgetown probably rate among the better basketball teams of the Nation. Each has lost only one game this season, and in Bill Reinhart and Elmer Ripley they boast coaches of more than local fame. Reinhardt's teams at the University of Oregon three times won titles in the Northern division of the Pacific Conference. He is batting .750 in his six years with G. W. teams. If you don't know of Ripley, you don't know your basketball. He's the same Elmer Ripley who was one-fifth of the Original New York Celtics for a dozen years. There, now, we had promised ourselves we would write a piece explaining everything about college basketball, and how it is played.

Nachasalaboff Sine Fruncia, Says Lew, and He Means It

No, Pal, They're Not Typographical Errors—Just a Bit of Double Talk From the Iventor

Whitney Martin
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Jan. 6.—Lew Raymond settled his round figure more comfortably in the chair and folded stubby hands over the field cover he used as a weskit. His voice came from somewhere behind a vicious smoke screen.

"And fourthermore," he said, "sine fruncia blooghy grudly schpen especially this town."

"Huh?" we blurted.

"Why, nachasalaboof grumpf gloosepha in New Orleans," he explained candidly.

Then we realized we were being widded by the real inventor of double talk; the guy who can give lessons to all the rest of the double talkers, if they can understand him.

Lew went to New Orleans about two years ago after promoting fights everywhere from Manhattan to Mulberry Creek. Boxing had been dead there, and the Auditorium Boxing Association was formed to revive it. Lew was induced to toss out his anchor and stay around as promoter.

Lew Starts to Work

They gave him an office, but he was never in it. He pulled a chair out on the stoop, took off his coat, cocked his sailor straw on one side, planked himself down and was open for business. Every few minutes he would pull a pair of scissors from his pocket, clip off the end of a cigar which was beginning to look like a forkful of spinach. Meanwhile, he exchanges greetings with passersby. He might have been an Uncle Abner killing time on Main Street on a steamy August day.

For a while the good citizens of New Orleans looked at him with some alarm when he started double talking, but they're used to it now, and just say "that's right" when he remarks that "this weather rumbolissi quassim oodomphi squimph and everything."

He invented double talk about 35 years ago, he says. He was an actor at the time, and business was not so good. He and a pal went into a restaurant in New York, and

Ford Frick Picks Reds As Nat'l League Club to Beat

President Forecasts Close Race in 1941; Expects Cubs to Perk Up Under Wilson

(This is another of a series written for the Associated Press by the country's sports leaders.)

By Ford Frick
President, National Baseball League

New York, Jan. 6.—At this New Year season in this country, the outlook for every enterprise scheduled for the coming year is more closely bound up with the outlook of the Nation as a whole than ever before. We in the National League are preparing for an active season. Our clubs have on their rosters a remarkably promising array of new men. Every indication is for a hotly contested pennant race.

How this outlook will be modified by the events of the weeks and months to come, no man can foresee. Baseball has its place in the program of a Nation preparing for national defense, just as in a land at peace and engaged in the industries of normal civilized times. That place will be defined as events shape themselves. The National League will be prepared at all times to do its part.

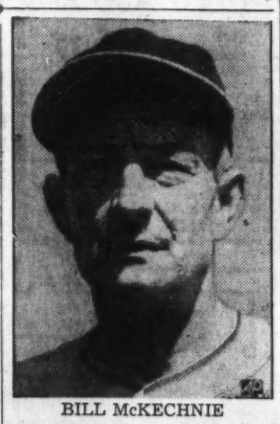
Last year this time, Bill McKechnie, manager of the 1939 pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds, said something to the effect that in spite of glowing reports from other cities, the Reds were still champions, and at least as strong a club as the previous year. Here and now, that's still a pretty good starting point for any discussion of pennant chances.

The Reds now are world champions. A glance at their lineup, with its reinforcements as of this winter's transactions, tells me that the Reds will step into this year's race in championship stride. They are the No. 1 team the rest will have to beat.

How much of this championship spirit Jimmy Wilson will transfer to the Chicago Cubs as the new manager is a consideration which should make the Cubs one of the most interesting teams in the National League this year. Wilson's designation by the vote of sports editors as the outstanding comeback hero of the sports field of 1940 may be a token of things to come in Cubland in 1941.

A comeback by the Cubs to their form of 1938 and 1935 would make things very interesting along the western front of our league, especially in the light of the fine performances of Pittsburgh and St. Louis in the latter half of the past season.

That was a memorable winning streak the Cardinals staged in August, nine straight, tying the season's record set by Brooklyn in April and not surpassed until the Reds came along to win 11 straight in September. Pittsburgh's feat in finishing fourth after occupying last place from May 6 to June 6 foretells a flying start in '41 for Frank Frisch's fiery crew.



BILL McKECHNIE

Many things about the coming year are uncertain. One certainty is that the National League is strengthened all along the line and has the making of a mighty fine pennant race.

Brooklyn's acquisition of Kirby Higbe makes the runners-up of 1940 even more dangerous. The Giants, with Bill Jurges back in the lineup, are certain to rebound off their disappointing 1940 campaign. Boston, with its rising regiment of young players developed by the genius and enterprise of Bob Quinn, Casey Stengel and their associates, had the highest winning percentage in our league for the month of August. This indicates that Boston will be a factor to be reckoned with, even if not an actual flag contender.

Philadelphia's new players from the minors collectively are the strongest group the Phillies have added for many years. Improved scoring power should make the Phillies an all-around better ball club this year, too.

1940 Is Over, Denny Shute Hopes

Wrist Operation, Appendectomy Hurt Golf Pro Last Year

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Jan. 6.—Literally speaking, Golf Master Denny Shute is kicking the ball around on a comeback to links fame.

The two-time winner of the Professional Golf Association Championship, beset by hard luck and two operations in 1940, is driving the ball with the aid of a "new right wrist" in which a piece of his own shin bone, about the size and shape of a silver dollar, was grafted.

Kept out of action for six months by the wrist operation last year, the Cleveland-born professional got back on his game by midsummer in time to qualify with a 36-hole score of 151 for the P. G. A. tournament.

"But it looked like Denny wasn't supposed to play in that tournament," related his attractive young wife, a former Ohio State College coed, "because the night he qualified found him on the operating table at Hershey for an appendectomy.

"The year before, you remember, they tried to keep Denny out of the P. G. A. championship because his entry card was a day late."

Remember? Most every golf fan in the country remembers the furor raised when the P. G. A. front office sternly banned Denny from playing, and then yielded when Shute's fellow pros banded together and threatened a "strike" if he wasn't permitted to compete.

DENNY SHUTE

2-Time P.G.A. Champ Playing With Bone Grafted to Wrist

Denny was just about to tee off today in the final round of the Los Angeles Open when Mrs. Shute was reviewing her husband's golf career.

The two were married soon after Denny won this same Los Angeles tournament in 1930. They have a home in Coral Gables, Fla., and spend the entire year traveling around the country.

"Denny is something of an ambassador of good will for golf," Mrs. Shute continued.

Shute is the last American to win the British Open, a feat he turned in 1933. In 1936 and 1937 he captured the P. G. A. crown. Rated one of the best putters in the business, the quiet, even-tempered Shute has been a name-golfer for many of his 36 years.

"Yes, I'm darn glad 1940 is over and I hope it never comes back," he smiled. "This is a new year. I hope it's a good one."

He did start it off well. His sensational round of 66 put him toward the top and he went into the last round of the present tournament a bare two strokes off the pace, but slumped at the end for a 287 total and $200.

Harmon Misses Touchdown Dinner; Suffridge Scorns Pros

Vols Star, Evashevski In Spotlight

Harmon's Plane Fails To Get Through; Tennessean Says He Won't Join Steelers

By Jack Munhall

With Tommy Harmon absent after his plane was turned back westward at Salt Lake City, it remained for Bob Suffridge, Tennessee's All-America guard, to cause the biggest sensation of the annual Touchdown Club banquet last night with his flat announcement that he would not play professional football.

Suffridge, attending the dinner party at Willard Hotel to receive the Touchdown Club's award for the outstanding college linesman of 1940, declared he would not play with the Pittsburgh Steelers who drafted him for service in the National Professional League.

Reminded that senior college football stars almost invariably say they will not turn pro only to be persuaded to do so by a lucrative bonus, Suffridge stated that he did not believe the Steelers could possibly offer him enough money to continue in the game.

May Join FBI

"I have had one college coaching offer," he explained, "and I'm working on another. I would like to coach, but if I cannot obtain what I want in that line, then maybe I can get a job with the Government."

Suffridge, a 6-foot, 200-pound black-haired youngster, was in conference yesterday with Representatives John Jennings and Estes Kefauver, of Tennessee, and it was understood that he was interested in a job with the FBI here.

Suffridge, who was to have taken a secondary role to Harmon, Michigan's great halfback, found himself the cynosure of all eyes as a capacity crowd attended the fifth annual banquet.

Harmon, in whose honor the dinner was planned, had not communicated with Touchdown Club officials late last night after an Associated Press report said that the plane carrying him here from California had been turned back at Salt Lake City because of unfavorable weather.

Evashevski Shares Honors

Sharing honors with Suffridge as outstanding grid heroes of the occasion were Forest Evashevski, Michigan quarterback whose deadly blocking made possible many of Harmon's spectacular runs; Augie Lio, Georgetown's All-America guard, and the five local players chosen as most valuable to their respective teams.

Evashevski, who closely resembles Suffridge in build and facial appearance, said he was not sure that he would accept an offer to play with the Redskins who picked him first in the draft.

"I was talking with Redskins' officials today," Evashevski said, "but we talked about everything but my playing pro football. Just now my main worry is finishing my course at Michigan. I am supposed to graduate in February, but I have fallen behind in my studies. After graduation I'll be prepared to talk about it."

The banquet itself proved a great success, highlighted by a philosophical address by Maj. John Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Big Ten and the evening's featured speaker, and a series of humorous stories by Gus Welch, the old Carlisle Indian player.

College Game Here to Stay

Maj. Griffith, a quiet but very effective speaker, was emphatic in his belief that college football is destined to not only endure but to continue making rapid strides.

"They've been crying . . . 40 years now that the end of college football is near," said the major, "but each year has seen the sport grow in prestige and spectator appeal. And I believe it will continue to grow."

Suffridge received the Knute Rockne Memorial Trophy as the year's outstanding lineman, with A. J. (Dutch) Bergman, head football coach of Catholic University and a former close friend of the late Rockne, making the presentation.

Lio, the husky Italian who this season became Georgetown's second All-America football player in history, was given the Arch McDonald-WJSV Trophy as the outstanding college gridder in the Washington area. McDonald, "The Old Pine Tree," made the award.

Redskin Awards

J. Leighton Cornwell, of the Touchdown Club, presented Washington Redskins awards, to the five District college players adjudged by their teammates or coach as most valuable to their teams. Those honored were Jules Koshlap, Georgetown halfback; Bob Smith, Maryland center; Sam Babich, George Washington quarterback; Hugo (Dutch) Schulze, American University tackle, and Pete Sachon, Catholic University quarterback.

A suprise award was made to Coach Jack Hagerty of Georgetown who received a combination radio-phonograph cabinet from Dr. David J. Fitzgibbons in behalf of alumni and friends of Georgetown.

Another surprise was the unscheduled appearance of Franklin P. Adams, of the radio program, "Information, Please."

The distinguished guest list was headed by Jesse Jones, newly appointed Secretary of Commerce; Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who received the biggest ovation of the night; L. W. (Chip) Robert, former Democratic National Committee chairman; Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission; Senator Tom Connally, of Texas.

Dr. C. H. Marvin, president of George Washington University; Senator Prentiss M. Brown, of Michigan; Fritz Crisler, recently appointed coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and Maj. Swede Larsen, head football coach of the Naval Academy.

Senator Brown and Evashevski were widely photographed as the Michigan player is engaged to the Congressman's daughter, Ruth.

Music for the banquet was furnished by Leon Brusiloff and his band. There was entertainment by talent from local theaters. Football highlights of the season were filmed as a climax to the affair.

Colonial-Hoya Game Rated Toss-up Tomorrow Night

There will be little to choose in either height or experience when the four-game winning streaks of Georgetown and George Washington Universities clash tomorrow night at Riverside Stadium in the all-local college court attraction of the young season. Game time is 8:30 p. m.

The probable starting line-up for Coach Elmer Ripley's Hoyas will average just short of 6-feet-1 with Bill Bornheimer, the sophomore center who has earned unexpected attention thus far this year, the tallest at 6-feet-4, while Buddy O'Grady and Jim Kiernan are both 5-11.

For Bill Reinhart, George Washington mentor; Joe Comer and Charley Jones are both 6-foot-3 and the shortest man on the floor will bs Lou Veltri, the 5-feet-9 guard who may lack the approved height of a courtman but none of the ability. The average height of the Colonials is just a fraction of an inch short of their rivals.

Hoyas Taller

The Hoyas hold a slight height advantage in reserves.

Both starting line-ups will contain three juniors with the Hoyas surrounding their second-year men with a senior, Irving Rizzi, and Sophomore Bornheimer, while two seniors, Comer and Veltri, are sure starters for the G. W.'s.

The G. U. juniors are Jim Giebel, O'Grady and Kiernan, while Bobby Gilham, Matt Zunic and Charley Jones are the G. W. juniors.

It would be virtually impossible to find two more evenly matched squads, either in years of service, physically, ability or past performances. There is nothing to be desired in the coaching line, either, as Reinhart has a .750 average in five years at G. W., and a fine record in his previous service at Oregon, while Ripley, master player of his time, transferred his knowledge to coaching and commands great respect for his results at Yale and Georgetown.

Georgetown's four consecutive victories have been scored over Western Maryland, American, Loyola of Chicago and Canisius, after an opening game close to Loyola of Baltimore. Three of G. U.'s opponents have scored 35 points and one 36.

George Washington has marched over a little stiffer opposition, boasting four in a row over Clemson, Duke, Kansas State and Minnesota. The Colonials won two, over Washington and Lee and Davidson, before losing in an overtime to Oklahoma A. and M.

Due to the poor years now facing the squads at Catholic and Maryland, and Georgetown's victory over American, there is no team in town to challenge either the Hoyas or Colonials and thus the game, the first of two between the rivals, will go a long way toward settling the mythical metropolitan area title.

Tomorrow night's supporting game is befitting the varsity tilt. Unbeaten and unextended freshman squads of the schools will meet in a preliminary at 7:15. Georgetown's band will provide music.

Henrythe Goon On Arena Mat Card

A 6-foot, 250-pounder, Jim (Goon) Henry by name, will make his bow on Thursday night's wrestling show featuring Ernie Dusek and Joe Cox at Turner's Arena. The Goon's opponent will be Milo Steinborn, the Memphis Blacksmith.

Henry has ben headlining shows around Texas the last nine months. He hails from Fort Worth. Promoter Turner picked no soft touch for the Texan, for Steinborn is undefeated in ten matches.

Jacobs Silent On Charges Of Monopoly

Cleveland Promoters' Plea for Investigation Called 'Silly' by Aide

By International News Service

New York, Jan. 6.—Promoter Mike Jacobs tonight withheld comment on the action of Cleveland fight promoters, Robert Brickman and Ben Goetz, who are seeking a Congressional investigation of Jacobs' so-called monopoly on boxing.

The two promoters asked United States Senator Harold H. Burton, of Ohio, to institute a Congressional investigation of what they claimed was "a monopoly on boxing held by Promoter Jacobs in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Law."

A source close to Jacobs, however, termed the whole thing as "silly."

Brickman and Goetz are promoting a 15-round title fight between Melio Bettina, of Beacon, N. Y., and Anton Christoforidis, a Greek boxer, for the "light-heavyweight championship."

Jacobs said that Billy Conn, current 175-pound king, will file a suit for damages against the promoters, if they continue to advertise the Bettina-Christoforidis battle for the "light-heavyweight championship." Jacobs declared that Conn will also file suit against Joe Triner, president of the National Boxing Association, because the latter has declared the title to be vacant.

Conn, according to Jacobs, has not renounced his title and has agreed to fight the winner of the Jimmy Webb-Tommy Tucker bout, scheduled for New York, February 28.

Conn already has signed a contract with Jacobs to fight Joe Louis for the heavyweight crown in June, Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, was expected to issue a statement upon his arrival in New York from Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Ambassador Pool Ceremony Tonight

The Ambassador swimming pool, it was announced last night, will reopen tonight with special ceremonies beginning at 8 o'clock. Water stars of the District, including diving champions Bert Williams and Bill Tarbett, will assist in the program.

Public High Cage Season Opens Today

Roosevelt-Central, Eastern-Anacostia Games Start Series

After few preliminaries, and with little advance drum-beating, basketball squads of four of Washington's public high schools today inaugurate an annual interhigh series that may prove one of the best in years.

The 1939-40 champion and runner-up both see action in the year's first games, and both stay at home. Roosevelt entertains a Central five which loudly boasts it is the "team to beat," and Eastern entertains an Anacostia club that nobody, including its new coach, Zip Lehr, knows anything about. In each case hostilities get under way at 3:30.

The remaining three schools which will be under fire—Woodrow Wilson, McKinley and Western—are down to engage in the first night double bill at Tech gym Friday, giving everyone a chance to play the first week.

See Cofavorites

That Roosevelt is the defending champion seems not to have had the least effect on preseries dopesters, who name Western and Eastern cofavorites to cop the title. The Rough Riders are no more than a third-place choice, with either Tech, Wilson or Central conceded a fine chance of stealing even that position from them.

Its 1940 championship was Roosevelt's only one in more than 20 years of competition, thus accounting for the little thought given it. Eastern, on the other hand, has nearly always been on top or close behind when the final game of the season was over.

Eight cage crowns and a tie for another in the last 20 years have gone to the White Tide of Eastern, and the school on East Capitol Street is the only one in town that can claim three victories in a row—in 1934, 1935 and 1936. Western has won only one championship in two decades, that of 1937, but the Red Raiders have become the "second-place Sadies" of the series. Seven times they wound up as runners-up and another time they split that honor with Roosevelt.

Five Lettermen

Both Central and Tech have done better than Roosevelt in years past, and the probability is that they'll do it again. The Vikings own four titles and two deadlocks for first in the modern series, while Tech can look back on four outright championships, the last in 1930

Going into its initial title defense, Roosevelt today will send out five lettermen to battle Central. Hymie Perlo, Tom and George Robertson, Dick Goodman and Frank Ciango will probably be the starters, but Coach Herman Littman has little or no reserve strength. Central will counter with veterans Sam Di Biasi, Charley Kligman, Teddy Thomaides and Zello Lagos, and a fifth player selected from among novices Gibbons, Lawler, Rock, Citrenbaum or Valanos.

Over at Eastern the defenders' lineup will include lettermen Moe Schulman, George Piggott and Neil Craig, and such fine prospects as Mike Lieb, Ritchie Poston and Capone. Except for towering Elmer Leukhardt, Coach Lehr has had to build his Anacostia team from scratch, but much hope is being based on the play of Knott, Benner, Peterson, Penn and Adams.

Rounding out today's afternoon schoolboy schedule are invasions of Gonzaga by Greenbelt, Sherwood by Rockville, G. W. High by St. John's and Briarley M. A. by Coolidge. Wilson plays a preliminary to the Wilson Teachers-Johns Hopkins game at College Park tonight and Bethesda-Chevy Chase tangles with Washington-Lee in Arlington.

3,000 to See Arena Fights Tonight

Webb Favorite to KO Stephany; Phil Furr, Molnar on Star Card

Along about the fourth round of a fight scheduled to go eight rounds tonight at Turner's Arena, there should be a scene involving.

A thud resulting from the meeting of a 175-pound body and the canvas-covered flooring of the boxing ring and,

A ceremony in which the hand of Irish Jimmy Webb will be raised in recognition of his knockout victory over Al Stephany, New York colored light-heavyweight.

A capacity crowd of 3,000 is expected to be on hand to see Promoter Joe Turner's All-Star show which includes four 8-round fights, and while knockouts are what the crowd likes, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez was not a happy man yesterday.

Gabe's in a Quandry

"I feel like Mother Hubbard," Gabriel began.

"Whaddaya mean, Mother Hubbard," we parried.

"You know, the old lady who had so many kids she didn't know what to do," Gabriel brooded.

"You mean the Old Woman in Shoe," we exulted.

"Yeah, that's me. I know just how she felt. I got so many headline fights here tonight I don't know which one to put in the top spot. Figure it out yourself:

"There's Webb and Stephany. Then we got Phil Furr fighting this Gene Molnar, Bill McDowell fighting Joey Spangler. Both of those fights are gonna be real wars and, what's more, we got Billy Banks a real fight in this Pedro Hernandez.

Can't Lose—He Hopes

"Now, you see what I mean. Who're you gonna give the top billing to?" Gabriel inquired: "We could take any one of these fights and put it in a headline spot by itself. Instead, we got 'em all on the same card, and if we lose money tonight, I for one will be at a loss to know what the fight public wants.

"I got it. Mother Hubbard. Cupboard. If we lose money tonight you can start calling me Mother Hubbard," Gabe finished.

And so, as we sail away from this picture of changing identity, we'd like to run over a few scores for tonight.

Webb, the 22-year-old youngster who Mike Jacobs has selected as a party to New York's solution of the current mix-up as to just who is the 175-pound champion, is an odds-on favorite to knock out Stephany.

Furr in Spotlight

Webb has won 41 of his 48 fights, 32 by knockouts, and is a stand-up fighter who has a knockout punch in both hands. Stephany, on the other hand, is unknown in Washington, and his main recommendation lies in the fact he held Hank Pottsaway, Gene Tunney's colored protege, to a draw.

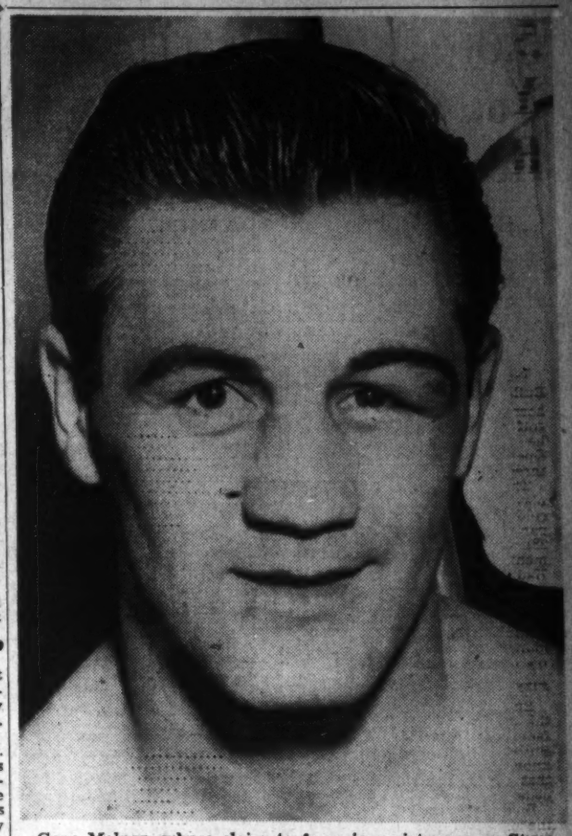
Thus, it appears that Furr's welterweight battle with Molnar, Detroit welterweight, will be the "main event."

Furr, at 30, is making his 1941 comeback against a fighter whose style resembles that of Steve Mamakos, whom Fearless Philbert chilled in a bloody fight here last summer. It will be Phil's first fight since he was knocked out by Henry Armstrong.

McDowell, the erratic Texan who twice defeated Furr, and Richmond's 150-pounder, Spangler, promise to provide entertainment of the wild and weird variety in their 8-rounder.

Banks, whose featherweight title march was temporarily halted by Joey Archibald, will get a chance for a little more sharpshooting practice against the Puerto Rican 127-pounder, Hernandez.

"On paper," as Menendez likes to say, the fight card looks like a natural, and the demand for tickets has been terrific. Incidentally, Ray Landis, Furr's lightweight protege, meets Richmond's Elwood Harris in a 6-round preliminary starting at 8:30 p. m.



Gene Molnar, whose claim to fame is a victory over Steve Belloise, will make his debut tonight at Turner's Arena in an eight-round match against Phil Furr, Washington welterweight. Molnar has beaten among others Vic Dellicurti and Walter Franklin, and is said to be a strong hitter. Three other eights are on the card

Mythical King, Longshot, Takes Tropical's Dania Purse

Topee Loses To 7-1 Shot In Heavy Mud

Seabo Rides Claro To Victory in 1st Race, Paying Mutuel Of $29.90 for Two

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., Jan. 6.—B. F. Whitaker's one-time stakes performer, Mythical King, which recently returned to winning form at this track, repeated that score here today when he eked out a head triumph in the mile and 70 yards of the Dania Purse. The veteran rallied in time to beat out Tallyho Stable's Topee and return $15.50 for $2. The gelding covered the sloppy going in 1:45 under Ronnie Nash.

Joseph Pepp's No Sir, favorite in the field of six, finished third, a half length behind and well in advance of the sluggish starting Plowshare, on which Wayne Wright accepted his first mount of the meeting.

It rained heavily during the night and part of the morning, but sunshine appeared before the program got under way, and a good-sized crowd was on hand for the next to last card of the 16-day Gables session.

Footing Doubtful

There was some doubt as to whether Mythical King would like the footing today, which probably accounts for the liberal odds against his chances. Nash bided his time in fourth place until leaving the far side. Mythical King then gained on the leaders, charged up on the outside in the drive home and made the grade just as he hit the finish line. Topee, moving up from a successful claiming campaign, first wore down the lightly rigged Two O Two. He gained a narrow lead before bowing to Mythical King. No Sir was in the thick of the fight all the way.

Claro, a $29.90-for-$2 chance from Paul Codd's barn, sent the long shot brigade away to a flying start in the 6-furlong curtain raiser. Improving his position at each pole under the veteran George Seabo, Claro registered a handy length and a half score over the forward running Sir Quest. Hard Biscuit, unable to hold a wide early lead, barely saved third money, two lengths behind. The latter filly ruled favorite.

Starkee Victor

Three-year-old platers stepped 6 furlongs in the third, the winner turning up in Starkee, an 8-to-1 hazard piloted by Warren Yarberry. It was a two-horse issue all the way. Starkee took the running from Orcus after 2 furlongs. They raced side by side to the wire, with Starkee proving the better. The strongly backed Red Burr lost second position by three lengths.

Attracting brought favorite players their initial score of the new week when she lasted, despite bearing out, to take the fourth purse by a half-length. White Hope was a game-finishing second, a length before Peanut Lady. Attracting was in some difficulty during the running but gained the lead in the stretch and stuck it out to return $6.20. Office Hour stepped to fourth place after leading by daylight to the home lane.

Eddie Arcaro accounted for his first winner of the season in the sixth contest when he guided the $5.30 for $2 choice, John's Heir, to a three-lengths decision over Remarkable. The latter headed Highscope for the place. Remarkable set the pace as expected. John's Heir joined the leader around the final turn, appeared to collide with the tiring Remarkable, then drew clear, making the smart time of 1:12 1-5 for the six furlongs.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLARO, $29.90, $25.10, $9.60; SIR QUEST, $9.30, $5.80; HARD BISCUIT, $3.60.

CLARO gradually bettered his position on the outside in the final 3 furlongs, wore the leaders down through the stretch and won going away. SIR QUEST, a forward contender, took a brief lead entering the stretch, but could not withstand the winner's bid. HARD BISCUIT drew clear rounding the turn and faltered in the stretch run.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ATTRACTING, $6.20, $4.60, $3.40; WHITE HOPE, $11.00, $6.80; PEANUT LADY, $6.70.

ATTRACTING, eased off the pace in the run down the backstretch, moved up on the inside rapidly rounding the lower turn, assumed the lead, but bore out in the stretch run and was ridden out briskly to maintain her lead. WHITE HOPE saved much ground the last half mile and finished gamely to outlast PEANUT LADY. The latter also saved ground in the later stages of the race, but could not overhaul the leaders.

FIFTH RACE—The Diana. One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward; allowances. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:00½. Off at 4:01. Winner, B. F. Whitaker's b. g. (6), by Pharamond II—Gay O'Mar. Trained by J. Boyes. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MYTHICAL KING, $15.50, $5.90, $3.60; TOPEE, $4.60, $3.00; NO SIR, $2.70.

MYTHICAL KING, rated off the pace until well around the last turn, moved up with deterimination on the outside and wore TOPEE down in the final drive. TOPEE, taken around the field leaving the backstretch, took command, held on gamely in the drive, but was unable to withstand the winner's bid. NO SIR was wretchedly ridden and finished stoutly on his own courage.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:30½. Winner, Mrs. L. Lazare's b. g. (5), by John—Guerande. Trained by W. O. Hicks. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOHN'S HEIR, $5.30, $3.10, $2.40; REMARKABLE, $4.20, $2.80 HIGHSCOPE, $2.70.

JOHN'S HEIR gradually bettered hit position while saving ground rounding the turn and easily disposed of REMARKABLE in the last furlong. REMARKABLE set a swift pace in the going, faltered and bumped the winner approaching the furlong pole. HIGHSCOPE, a forward contender all the way, closed stoutly along the rail.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:57½. Off at 4:58. Winner, P. J. Buchanan's ch. g. (4), by Chimney Sweep—Alicia W. Trained by J. W. Healy. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:45⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TONYPANDY, $4.60, $2.60, $2.40; COMMENDADOR II, $3.50, $2.80; CHANCE RAY, $3.70.

TONYPANDY held his opposition safe for speed and, rated in front, always held sway. COMMENDADOR II moved up stoutly leaving the backstretch while under steadying restraint, but then flattened out when placed to a drive. CHANCE RAY, going evenly the entire trip, was lightly urged to hold third place.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:25½. Off at 5:26. Winner, Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' b. g. (8), by Sting—Jackstones. Trained by J. Jacobs. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:48⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JACK STING, $4.40, $3.40, $2.90; POLINA, $14.90, $8.80; HIGH BLAME, $4.90.

JACK STING, pinched back going to the first turn, moved into contention rapidly when clear and raced BLACKY BEE into defeat. He then drew off into a commanding lead at his leisure. POLINA gradually improved her position to wear HIGH BLAME down for the place. The latter saved much ground and had no excuses.

Selections at Tropical Park

Dear Al:

I have a request for the breeding of the Greentree Stable's Hash. He is by Questionnaire and out of the dam Delicacy, all of which makes his name most appropriate. The racing fans laughed when they first heard his name, but he is a pretty fair horse now. Beat Challedon last summer. Here's something interesting about the filly Salaminia, owned by Hal Price Headley. When Maj. Louis Beard was making up his Christmas list in 1935 he made a notation opposite Headley's name. It read: "One unused service to Man O'War." Headley obtained a mare and took advantage of the unique Christmas present. Salaminia resulted from the union and she has won $36,430 for Headley. Challedon has won $322,860, so he will have to do more than win the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap this year if he means to pass Seabiscuit as the leading all-time, money-winner. Seabiscuit went back to the stud with $437,730 to his credit. And what's more, if Challedon passes Seabiscuit's mark, don't be surprised if Seabiscuit is brought back to the races. The Howard forces did it last year when they won the Santa Anita Handicap. Speaking of Santa Anita, it is the best track for a motorist in the country. I haven't been there for two years, but I was amazed at how easy the cars came and went at the California track. Now, I understand, two new roads have been built. There isn't a track around Maryland that isn't a nightmare as far as getting the cars in and out of is concerned. The trouble is that Maryland's plants were built in horse-and-buggy days. Both Hialeah and Tropical Park are the same distance from Flagler Street, the main drag in Miami. However, they are in opposite directions. Now for the winners. BILL.

First race—War Declared appears to be best in this field. Has the speed of the party and I see no reason for mistakes. Alseleda has worked well and promises to be in the thick of contention. Sir Brookside should take care of the others.

Second race—Hunting Home belongs in a field of this caliber and will be right in there knocking. Comes from a good stable and promises to do a lot of running. Gold Mesh is not overmatched and will be a keen contender. Fair Time promises to make a money appearance.

Third race—Lewistown shapes up nicely in company of this brand. Likes the track and has shown speed in trials. Boredom will be ready to make a bold bid and will take it all if the top one makes mistakes. Miss Sokolo should be no worse than third.

Fourth race—Isolde has an edge on the kind gathered for this event. Seems to have the right conditions and I see no reason for mistakes. Red Mantilla is better than generally rated and should not be far out of it. Tex Hygro gets the third call.

Fifth race—Flying Lill is as good as anything in this rather open affair. Packs plenty of stretch wallop and should take the main money. Williamstown has speed enough to take care of the place award. Hi Gold probably will squeeze into third position.

Sixth race—Merrily Son is a fair sort. This company suits and I'm going to string along. Orinoco is in good form and will be well backed, but I believe I have the right one on top. Pick Out will be hard to keep out of the pay circle.

Seventh race—This looks like a spot for Grand Duke. Likes the weight and the route and I'm going to take my chances. Mill River is a threat when lined up with such as these. Calumet Red is ready for the best, but third appears right.

Eighth race—Dizzy B. is as good as anything in the day's finale. Seems to have all the earmarks of a winner. Bailiwick will be in the thick of contention and is dangerous. Hallie probably will take a portion of the purse.

Best bet—Isolde.

C.U. Gridder Name Error on Bowl Card

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Harry Howren, promoter of the Norfolk All-Star team which defeated Richmond, 16-2, in the New Year's Smoke Bowl game, said today Julius Stanges, of Catholic University, who was listed in the starting line-up in the official program, did not play.

Howren said Frank Ribar, of Duke, took Stanges' left tackle assignment and that the latter did not play because he did not wish to jeopardize his right of participating in other Catholic U. sports.

E. D. Cottrell, cocharman of the event, said Stanges' name was given him for the program and that he did not realize until today that the listing was incorrect.

C. Van Dusen Soon Returns As Lead Pony

Winner of '29 Derby Will 'Teach' Horses Of Mayer's Stable

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 6.—Clyde Van Dusen, the Man o' War gelding which galloped to a muddy victory in the 1929 Kentucky Derby, soon will return to the races in the humble but important role of lead pony.

Dan B. Midkiff, manager of Louis B. Mayer's turf interests, said today the Derby winner is to reunite in California with his namesake and trainer, Clyde Van Dusen, who is currenlty training Mayer's racing stable there.

Horse Van Dusen brought man Van Dusen wreaths of glory in 1929 by churning through the mud at Churchill Downs to capture the Derby and $53,950. In doing so, the horse defeated Blue Larkspur, Col. E. R. Bradley's winter book favorite.

During his career, the Man o' War —Uncle's Lassie chestnut earned $122,402.

In 1921, horse Van Dusen retired to his trainer's Few Acres Farm in the company of Pony Bill, the lead horse that escorted him to all his races. Recently Pony Bill died, leaving Clyde Van Dusen friendless on the little farm.

When news of the death of Pony Bill reached Trainer Van Dusen in California, he decided to bring his old pet to the West and attempt to break him into the role of a leader.

"Most every stable has a lead pony —or horse—that is ridden by the trainer and accompanies racers to and from the track for their morning workouts. The lead pony is usually tactful and instructive, showing the racers exactly what to do.

A number of thoroughbreds are used as lead ponies, but none quite so distinguished as Clyde Van Dusen.

Assets Mount To 13 Millions, Blanz Reports

American Bldg. Ass'n Resources Increase $1,000,000 in Year

Assets of the American Building Association, Washington, increased nearly $1,000,000 during the past year and now total more than $13,000,000, Secretary W. H. Blanz declared in the annual report to shareholders.

Blanz added that active demand for loans continued throughout 1940, making it "one of the most successful years in the history of this home lending organization."

Shareholders reelected Charles H. Kindle as president, and other officers were reelected as follows: Milton H. Prosperi, chairman of the board; Arthur C. Balser, vice president; Wilfred H. Blanz, secretary, and Howard B. Kramer, treasurer.

Shareholders also named the present directorate to succeed themselves, consisting of John Mergner, Chatham M. Towers, Bernard J. Coyle, Thomas S. Sergeon, Charles A. Rossiter, W. Dudley Spicknall, and Dr. William C. Farmer.

Advertising Leaps 22 Per Cent

Retail newspaper linage showed the largest gain of the year during the week ended December 21, when volume was 22.1 per cent greater than during the corresponding week of 1939, Advertising Age reported yesterday.

The newspapers of the 82 major cities upon which the figures are based printed a total of 30,802,721 lines during the seven-day period ended December 21, compared with 25,224,632 lines for the corresponding week of last year. This was an increase of 5,578,089 lines, or 22.1 per cent.

Compared with the pre-Christmas week of 1938, when 23,924,047 lines were carried in the newspapers of the same cities, the 1940 figure shows an increase of 28.7 per cent.

P. C. A. Sets Record

Gains of 72 per cent in revenue passenger traffic and 77 per cent in revenue passenger miles during 1940 were reported yesterday by Pennsylvania Central Air Lines, which described the year as its "most successful" one.

The company said 210,436 revenue passengers were carried during 1940 as compared to 122,303 in 1939 and 37,579,164 revenue passenger miles were flown last year against 21,192,745 in the preceding year.

P. C. A. operates extensively in the Washington area.

Baltimore Traders Elect

The Baltimore Security Traders Association recently elected the following officers:

President, William H. Boggs, of Frank B. Cahn & Co.; vice president, John T. Baldwin, of Alex. Brown & Sons; secretary, William C. Roberts, jr., of Colonial Bond & Share Corporation; treasurer, James C. Corkran, of Baker, Watts & Co.

The association will hold its fifth annual winter dinner at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Friday. A number of traders from Washington will attend.

Deposits Up Sharply

Deposits of the Citizens Bank of Takoma Park advanced about $500,000 during the past year, President L. V. Lampson reported yesterday. On December 31, deposits totaled $1,729,323 as compared with $1,280,269 on the same 1939 date. Assets increased to $1,840,999 from $1,379,358 during the year just ended.

Steel Output In Week Rises To New Record

97.2 Per Cent Level Compares With 86.2 In 1940 Period

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 6.—Steel operations this week will rise to 97.2 per cent of capacity, which will represent new record high production, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today. This compared with 95.9 per cent last week and 96.9, the previous high, in the week of December 2.

A month ago output was at 96 per cent of capacity and a year ago 86.1 per cent.

The Institute said the percentage was based on the industry's capacity at the end of 1939. Based on present facilities, it was explained, the percentage would be lower because of steel plant expansion in 1940.

Montgomery Ward Sales Set Record In December

By the Associated Press

Montgomery Ward & Co., today reported December sales amounted to $70,850,185, largest of any month in the company's history and an increase of 7.31 per cent compared with a year ago.

For the 11 months ended December 31 sales totaled $512,514,216, an increase of 8.62 per cent compared with the corresponding 1939 period. This was a new 11 months' record for the company.

Lehman Corp. Reports Rise in Asset Value

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Lehman Corporation, an investing concern, today reported an asset value of $29.64 a share as of December 31, compared with $29.20 on September 30 and $27.46 on June 30.

The company's portfolio disclosed that in the last quarter some additions were made to holdings of bank, food and beverage, merchandising and manufacturing common stocks. Decreases were selected issues in the automotive and rubber, building material and .extile groups.

Zinc Smelting Firm Expands Capacity

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Addition of 2,400 tons a month to the Nation's zinc smelting capacity was forecast today by an announcement of restoration of the American Smelting & Refining Co. plant at Amarillo, Tex., to its predepression size.

The company is spending about $200,000, said an official, to restore three "blocks," each with a monthly capacity of 800 tons, which have been unused for years. At present, five "blocks" are in operation.

Kroger Sales Gain 5% in Four Weeks

Cincinnati, Jan. 6 (AP).—Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. today reported a 5 per cent gain in sales of the last four-week period of 1940 over sales for the 1939 period. Sales for the period ended December 28 were $21,414,118 against $20,419,121 for the corresponding 1939 period.

Cumulative sales for the 13 periods last year amounted to $258,111,609, a 6 per cent increase over 1939 sales of $243,356,605.

Brokers Polled On Proposed Hour Changes

Opinion Is Sought On Extending Trade, Saturday Closings

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 6.—The New York Stock Exchange formally queried its 1,359 members today in an attempt to determine their sentiment in regard to recent proposals to lengthen the trading day.

Present trading hours are from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. the first five days of the week and ten to noon on Saturdays.

Most important recent suggestion was a petition, said to have the signature of 200 members, to extend the closing hour, Mondays through Fridays, to 4 p. m. Members were also queried regarding the possibility of a 3:30 closing hour, and on proposals to close on Saturdays, either in the summer or throughout the year.

Suggestions have been made repeatedly in recent years to lengthen hours, in the hope that additional business might be developed. Turnover on the exchange has been restricted during the last decade compared with the boom years of the late 'twenties, and several stock exchange memberships recently sold at the lowest price since 1899.

The special committee studying trading hours, in its questionnaire to members today, said:

"Realizing that changes in our hours . . . may deeply affect the conduct of your business, and that of other organizations, such as the banks and the press, we are hopeful that in expressing your opinion on these proposals consideration will be given to the convenience of your customers, operating costs, and the impact of the change of allied organizations."

Previous moves to lengthen business hours on the exchange have been shelved as a result, at least in part, of protests from newspapers, several hundred of which carry daily the quotations of all securities traded.

Bank Loans Continue Rise For 14th Week

Credit in 101 Cities Expands $7,000,000 In Latest Period

By the Associated Press

Bank lending under the stimulus of the defense program extended gains in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans into the fourteenth straight week.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that in the week ended December 31, these loans in 101 leading cities were $7,000,000 higher than in the preceding week. At the turn of the year, for these cities, business loans totaled $5,018,000,000, or $665,000,000 more than a year ago.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on December 31 together with changes for the week and with the same week last year, in millions of dollars:

$19,300,000 In New Issues Put on Market

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Two securities issues totaling $19,300,000 were offered to the public today.

One was an offer of $4,300,000 of 1½ per cent and 3 per cent bonds of the City of San Diego, Calif.

The other, made by an underwriting group headed by First Boston Corporation, was a new issue of $15,000,000 in serial notes of Phillips Petroleum Co., maturing semi-annually from July 1, 1941, to January 1, 1951. The notes are priced at par with annual interest rates ranging from .25 of 1 per cent to 1.9 per cent.

Within a few days, Phillips Petroleum also will offer to stockholders of January 3 record rights to subscribe to a new issue of $20,000,000 convertible 1¾ per cent debentures at the rate of $4.50 principal amount of debentures for each share of common stock held.

Sugar Futures

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures moved against the trend in most other commodities today and closed uniformly one point lower on sales of 12,700 tons.

The world list ended ½ lower to ½ higher on turnover of only 2,200 tons; March, .71 bid; July, .77 bid.

Raw offerings were limited to a cargo of February shipment Cubas and 12,100 tons of Philippines ranging from January 31 arrival to January-February shipment, all at 2.95 cents a pound.

Refined locally remained at 4.40. A Southern refinery announced it would accept 30-day business at 4.35 cents, after previously selling on a prompt basis at this price.

London Stocks

London, Jan. 6 (AP).—All groups in the securities market advanced today under the stimulus of British Empire successes in Africa.

Gains in British Government bonds ranging to ¼ point provided a spearhead for the general improvement. The silt-edged list finished at the session's top levels.

Industrial favorites, under leadership of brewery and building stocks, scored further gains after a midday breathing spell.

In the foreign bond market Egyptian loans improved.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP).—Gains of almost a cent a bushel were tacked on to wheat prices in the final hour of trading today. May contracts rising to 86¼, highest since last November. Corn, rye and soybeans prices were bid up to the best levels in a month or more, while oats came within fractions of the peaks reached last week.

Brokers attributed part of the market's strength to traders' interpretation of the President's message. A rise in selected securities issues and reports of moderate flour business, together with downward revision of the Canadian crop estimate were constructive factors.

Wheat closed slightly below the day's best level, but final prices were ⅜ to ⅝ higher than Saturday; May, 86⅜@86¼; July, 82¾@82¾. Corn was ¼ to ½ up; May, 63¼@63¾; July, 63. Oats, ¼ to ⅝ higher; soybeans, 2 to 2¾ higher; rye, 1 higher, and lard, 17 to 30 higher.

Some buying of wheat was attributed to mills and traders who have been taking the "short" side to supply commercial interests with offerings the past two or three sessions. Traders said the subnormal movement of cash grain to market and the tendency of spot premiums to advance indicated there is a close technical adjustment between supply and demand for the time being. A car of No. 1 hard sold here at 93¾, more than a dime above the loan rate and 5 cents over the May future.

Feeble Advance in Selected Stocks Reduced By Late Selling; Steel Issues Point Lower

By Frederick Gardner
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Jan. 6.—Selected stocks moved up in today's market for the third session in a row but the advance was without a great deal of vigor.

Steels, in front most of the day, slipped at the last, and early gains running to a point or more for other favorites were reduced or canceled in some instances at the close. Strength was displayed by assorted specialties.

Notwithstanding erratic tendencies here and there, the Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .2 of a point at 44.4 The market was considerably broader than on Saturday, 787 individual stocks being traded against 623.

There was a few lively intervals and transfers totaled 720,800 shares compared with 506,040 last Friday.

Brightening earnings prospects based on the huge rearmament program aided several shares but bullish inclinations generally were restrained by continued fears this country may become an actual participant in the European conflict. The President's message to Congress held the attention of boardrooms although it had scant price-making effect inasmuch as it was about in line with his recent "fireside chat."

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown Sheet finished behind small minus signs after being up the greater part of the time. A jump in this week's estimated mill operations to a new record peak apparently was ignored.

Bonds and stock of International Telephone strengthened on word the Treasury had approved sale of this company's Rumanian property to the Rumanian government. This was necessary because payment of the $13,800,000 involved would come out of funds of Rumania "frozen" in this country.

Touching new tops for the past year were Jones & Laughlin preferred, Mack Truck, Savage Arms and General Theaters Equipment.

Others retaining modest improvement were General Motors, Yellow Truck, Woolworth, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, National Steel, Western Union, Cerre de Pasco, Westinghouse, U. S. Gypsum, Santa Fe and Union Pacific.

Backward were Chrysler, Anaconda, Electric Boat, N. Y. Central, Boeing, J. C. Penney and U. S. Rubber.

Commodities did better. Wheat at Chicago was up ⅝ to ⅝ of a cent a bushel and corn ¾ to ½. Cotton was 10 cents a bale advanced to off 15 cents.

Clinging to fair-sized gains in the Curb were N. J. Zinc, Brewster Aero, Sherwin Williams, Colts Patent Fire Arms, Lake Shore and National Container. Volume here was around 128,000 shares versus 102,000 in the preceding full session.

The bond market had a generally higher slant, with the rail group moving into new high ground for the past year and scattered strength showing in other sections. United States Governments were backward.

U. S. Governments backed down a full point in one case under light offerings against a few gainers of around 4-32s. Dealers said lack of bids rather than pressure of offerings caused the drop. After the close Secretary Morgenthau reported the Treasury was considering $500,000,000 of financing this month.

Foreign dollar loans generally were narrow. Italian loans exhibited steadiness in the face of adverse war news. Panama 5s bounded up 7¼ points on sale of two bonds.

The Associated Press average of 20 rail issues moved up .3 of a point to a new 1940-41 high at 61.7.

Total sales of $8,181,300, par value, compared with $6,657,500 last Friday.

Boston Wool

Boston, Jan. 6 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agri.).—Fine and half blood South American wools that have arrived at Boston were receiving a fair demand today at steady to firm prices. Domestic wools, however, were very quiet. A few bids were received on fine delaine and also on quarter-blood combing bright fleeces. Bids were around 42 cents, in the grease, for fine delaine as well as for quarter blood, but asking prices were mostly around 44@45 cents, in the grease, for wools of each grade.

Quotable Quotes

"The immediate job before us as we enter upon a new year is the capitalization of the coordinated efforts of industry to the end that in the shortest space of time our defense may be so strong and so effective as to place us in an impregnable position. Nothing should detract from that vital task."—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., General Motors chairman.

"While the rate of acceleration in home building witnessed during the past year may be reduced temporarily, facts indicate that any such cut will be of short duration so far as availability of materials is concerned."—Bror Dahlberg, president of the Celotex Corporation.

"About 30 points in the industrial price average reported by the most widely known industrial stock index is a rough measure of the toll being taken by higher taxes, the uncertainties of the war and the fear of eventual involvement of this country."—Financial World.

Gold Supply Of U. S. Passes 22-Billion Mark

Treasury Now Has About 80 Per Cent Of World's Stock

By the Associated Press

The Treasury's gold stock yesterday passed $22,000,000,000, roughly 80 per cent of all the monetary gold in the world.

Gold has been coming into New York so fast since the European war began that it was taxing the huge vault space there, and special armored trains are making secret trips to Fort Knox, Ky., to put some of it underground in the Treasury's special depository there.

The flow has been slowing up lately, but the previous speed was shown by the fact that when the Treasury reported yesterday that it had $22,020,700,446.22 worth of gold, it was exactly $4,323,455,418.97 more than on the same date last year.

Most of the gold has come from the British empire, and was sent both for safekeeping and to pay for purchases of airplanes and other war materials.

The Treasury's huge holdings, however, did not cover all the gold in this country, because foreign governments and central banks had $1,804,000,000 worth of the yellow metal deposited in their own names in the Federal Reserve banks.

Baseball Potpourri:

Red Sox Led Longer Than Champion Tigers, 1940 Review Shows; Birdie Makes a Boast

Reds Trusted Yanks On Pearson's Health; Dodgers' Food in Air

By George Kirksey
United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Jan. 6.—Henry Edwards, general publicity man of the American League, finally has come through with the news we've been waiting for ever since October—"the Boston Red Sox were in first place 37 days in 1940, 20 more days than Detroit, which won the pennant, and five more days than Cleveland, which finished second" . . . and then Henry spoils it all by adding, "but they pay off on the club that's first at the finish." . . . Having forecast the decline of the Yanks and picked the Red Sox as their successors, we at least were shooting in the general direction of the bulls eye . . . and outside the pitching box the Red Sox had the best club in the American League last year but, unfortunately in that important matter of chucking Joe Cronin's boys were close to the worst.

Watch Wilson

Here's a tip: Watch Jimmy Wilson work wonders with Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean of the Cubs. . . . Dizzy idolizes Wilson and if there's any pitching left in his right arm Wilson will get it out for the Cubs. . . . The Reds did not ask the Yankees for any physical reports on Monte Pearson before they bought the veteran righthander. . . . Ed Barrow told Warren Giles that Pearson was okay physically and Barrow's word was good enough for the Reds' boss. . . . Bill McKechnie has greatly admired Pearson since he pitched the two-hitter against the Reds in 1939 World Series and is confident he'll be a winner for Cincinnati.

Birdie Tebbetts, Tigers' catcher, says he can't recall ever having been struck out by Bob Feller, a statement he may regret. Dick Bartell said about the same thing once when he was with the Giants following a spring tour with the Indians. . . . Since then Bartell hasn't made many loud fouls off Bullet Bob. . . . Elmer Valo, rookie outfielder coming up to the Athletics from Wilmington, was born in Ribnik, Czecho-Slovakia . . . The U. of Richmond has four graduates in the American League, Herb Hash and George Lacy of the Red Sox, Porter Vaughan of the A's and Jack Sanford, of Washington.

BIRDIE TEBBETTS

Farley's Deal for N. Y. Held Up by Lack Of Sufficient Cash

Hal Trosky and Mel Harder are the only two Indians who were with Cleveland when Roger Peckinpaugh managed the club in 1933. . . . Outfielder Jim Mallory, signed by Washington as a free agent, is a former football star at North Caiolina . . . Dizzy Trout, Tiger's pitcher who wore spectacles last season, is now wearing the new contact lens which are adjusted to the eye-balls . . . If they prove a success it will mean a boon to players with weak eyes.

Miller Raised

Some of the wise boys are hinting that the Boston Bees might be a surprise package next season. . . . The fact that they've signed Eddie Miller to a new contract with a nice raise indicates that the brilliant shortstop is due to stay in Boston. . . . Washington's announced intention of batting Buddy Lewis in the clean-up spot is the tipoff on the Senator's woeful punch. . . . A New York scribe is buying and selling the Yankees periodically in print but the real facts are that Jim Farley hasn't been able to raise the $1,500,000 needed for the down payment and the prospects are getting gloomier instead of rosier.

The Dodgers may fly their own meat, vegetables and eggs to Havana during their training period in Cuba. . . . Ball players are funny about their food . . . Jim Gallagher, the Cubs' general manager, is said to have done a bit of pruning on some of the North Siders' fancy contracts . . . Although Buddy Myer, Washington second sacker, is a year past the conscription age he is thinking of giving up baseball to help construct Army camps . . . He is vice president of a construction company at Ellisville, Miss. . . . Connie Mack is talking about taking the Athletics to South America to train in 1942.

Sanderson's 164-390 Paces Navy Pinmen

Deaton and Parks Share Odd Fellows' Bowling Honors

Carl Sanderson was the individual star of the Navy loop at Arcadia with high game and set of 164-390, which sparked his Model Basin crew to high team game of 621. The Hydrographic had to roll a 1,762 high set in their struggle to win the odd game from Coast Guard boys. Signal Corps, A. and I., and Bureau of Ships whitewashed U. S. Engineers, Naval Air Station and Supplies and Accounts in all three games, respectively.

ODD FELLOWS.

Ray Deaton, Brightwood, and Ray Parks, Friendship No. 1, were the big pin knockers in the Odd Fellows meet at Brookland, the former getting a 143 count for high game as the latter had a 380 pinfall for set. Friendship No. 2 had a 594 high game, with Columbia No. 1 felling 1,688 sticks for set. Loyalty, the last-place team, took three straight from Metropolis.

SANITARY

In the Sanitary Grocery rolling at Convention Hall Buck Turner had high game of 167 but Gary was the real star with his 427 high set, a season record. Sanico Rye took the team game with 607 as Sanico Meats went on to capture the set after a 1,700 pinfall.

GEORGIA AVENUE

In the Georgia Avenue meet at Hugh Arbaugh's Silver Spring drives it was M. Brown, National Electric Machine, who took the high game with 152 which helped his team win the game after a 640 pinfall. Carl Humphries, Schrider Plumbing, won high set with 382. Sanford's was best on the set count, getting 1,728 to top the others.

ARROW CAB

Art Day, Gas Line, was the standout of the Arrow Cab meet at Northeast Temple with high game and set of 124-339, respectively, which boosted his team to top totals of 545 and 1,535. Gas Line is out in front with 30-9 with Mayflower the runner-up with 24-15. Mayflower took all three games from the Cruisers.

MEN'S FEDERAL

The Men's Federal loop at Arcadia stood back and watched as Ralph Kirsch, R. F. C., took the highs with 162-411, which sparked his team to near highs for the season of 679 for game and 1,850 for set.

KILOWATT

In the Kilowatt rolling at Penn the highs were rolled by Charles Arneson, Engineering, who had high game of 143 and Carl Rittenhouse, Station Engineering, who got a 398 count for the set. The Engineering boys were best as a team, rolling 618 for game and 1,711 for set.

All-American Cold

Ice Forms Here, but Police Chill Skaters' Hopes for Week

A thin layer of ice on the reflecting pool gave winter sport enthusiasts a ray of hope yesterday, but the Park Police quickly ended all anticipation last night by gloomily predicting "no skating for at least a week—even if the cold wave continues."

A 20-degree low temperature is expected just before sunrise today, and motorists have been warned to look to their engines. The Weather Bureau forecast for today was cloudy and cold with a maximum temperature of 40 degrees. Light rain or snow may be expected Wednesday.

The subnormal temperatures here yesterday were reported universal over the Nation. Lowest in the District was 23 degrees at 4 a. m., but Minot, N. Dak., reported 15 below zero, the national low.

The freezing weather was reported by the Associated Press to have extended as far south as Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, with temperatures as much as 25 degrees below normal. At Albuquerque, N. Mex., a snowstorm grounded westbound planes and slowed traffic on busy U. S. Highway 66 into Arizona.

Although snow fell in many States in the West, the East was reported clear nearly throughout. New York City recorded a high of only 32 degrees yesterday, but New England was reported near normal with temperatures ranging from 9 to 15.

Today's Sun and Tide Table

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau, Washington, Monday, Jan. 6—7:30 P. M. Forecasts

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Increasing cloudiness Tuesday, cloudy and not quite so cold Tuesday night; Wednesday light rain or snow; gentle to moderate northeast or east winds.

For Maryland and Virginia—Increasing cloudiness Tuesday; not quite so cold Tuesday night; Wednesday light rain and somewhat warmer on the coast, and light rain or snow in the interior.

Weather Conditions

The extensive anticyclone dominates the weather conditions over the eastern half of the United States and the temperature remains below normal in and generally east of the Rocky Mountains. The highest pressure at 7:30 p. m. was 1036.9 millibars (30.62 inches), at Detroit, Mich. A widespread disturbance is approaching the Pacific Coast, Newport, Oreg., 998.0 millibars (29.47 inches). The Far Western disturbance has caused general rains in the Pacific States, heavy in northern and central California, and precipitation, mostly light, has occurred in the Plateau region, the Plains States, Texas and upper Mississippi Valley, the lower Lake region and the northern Appalachian region.

Bernardo Segall to Play In Howard U. Series

Appearing in the Howard University concert series as a special added attraction, Bernardo Segall, South American pianist, will give a recital tonight in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. He made his New York debut last season as soloist with the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, and was pronounced by Olin Downes to be "a well-equipped virtuoso, with technique and fire."

His program is announced as follows: Variations, Op. 9 (Schumann-Brahms), Sonata, K 570 (Mozart), Ballade in G minor (Chopin), Choros No. 5 (Villa-Lobos), Conte (Medtner), Poeme (Skryabin), Etude (Stravinski), "Widmung" (Schumann-Liszt), "Mephisto Waltz" (Liszt).

Civitans Will Hear Dr. Dunner, Author

Dr. Josef Dunner, author and lecturer, whose recent book, "The End of Hitlerism," has just been published, will address a meeting of the Washington Civitan Club at the Mayflower Hotel today at 12:30 p. m.

Since his expulsion from Germany at the beginning of hostilities, Dr. Dunner has been in this country. He received an invitation from the University of Pennsylvania to continue his work in sociology and political science, and received a fellowship at Brookings Institution.

Gloves Finals Force Arena Enlargement

More Than 3,000 May See Friday's Card of 16 Bouts

The grand finale of the 1940-41 District Golden Gloves boxing tournament will be unreeled Friday night in Turner's Arena before a record-shattering crowd, according to the advance demand for tickets.

The enlarged arena last week was the scene of a record-breaking crowd of almost 3,000 who jammed the portals to see the semifinal rounds.

Mindful of the jam and the scramble for tickets in the lobby of the reformed garage, Promoter Joe Turner is revising the hall to take care of more than 3,000.

Bob Sullivan, 195-pound former Georgetown football player, and Phil Swantner, of the District National Guard team, will hold the spotlight Friday night in their senior heavyweight three-rounder.

Sullivan quit football early this season to devote his time to amateur boxing. Eight senior fights and eight novice fights are on the program, with winners in the senior division getting trips to New York to represent the Capital in Eastern finals.

Double Talker Airs His Views

when the waiter asked for his order Lew said:

The waiter finally called his boss, who gave up and told the waiter to bring in something or other, and told Lew that if he didn't like it he didn't have to pay for it.

That gave Lew and his friend an idea, and they made the rounds of restaurants with great success, always eating on the house when Lew complained that the food wasn't what he had ordered.

Lew insists double talking is an art, and it takes an actor to do it properly. He's probably right, at that, as we've never heard anyone who can even approach him in making this conversational hash.

He's dumb like a fox, is this keg-shaped guy. He gave away one of his business secrets, however. When dickering over the terms for a bout he gives in on 99 inconsequential items, but always holds out for the most important—the percentage. He gets his man in a stuffy room, puffs furiously at a cigar, calls in his publicity man, Broadway Johnny Cox. Cox likewise lays down a smoke screen.

"They begin to wipe their forehead and get a headache and are anxious to get away," Lew explains. "Then I hold out this watch and chain and say: 'These I will give you, but I can't take that percentage.' That convinces them—when they see that watch."

Lew says he plans to stay in New Orleans. In fact, he's quemph sloosmula imbrodisomlalla—oh heck, he likes it there.

Ohio State Whips Michigan, 49-39

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 6 (AP).—Ohio State's fast-breaking basketball team wore down Michigan in the second half tonight to defeat the Wolverines, 49 to 39, in the opening Western Conference game for both quintets.

The Bukeyes sank 15 free throws in 16 attempts in a powerful offensive attack led by Center Jack McLain and Forward Dick Fisher, who scored a total of 27 points. McLain got 12 of his 14 points in the second half after Michigan led at the intermission, 21 to 20.

With Center Jim Mandler leading the way with five field goals, Michigan stayed ahead of Ohio State for all but the opening minutes of the first half. With 15 minutes to play in the second half the teams were tied at 28, but the Buckeyes scored 7 points in five minutes and never were threatened thereafter.

7th Dixie Tennis Tourney Opening Delayed by Rain

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Rain today delayed until tomorrow the beginning of the seventeenth annual Dixie tennis tournament, in which National Champion Don McNeill was seeded No. 1 in men's singles.

Bitsy Grant, Atlanta veteran who won the Dixie championship three times and again was entered, believed Bobby Riggs, Nation's No. 2 ranking player from Chicago, would win this tournament.

"Riggs won the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament without trouble," Grant said. "He is playing his best tennis and McNeill is bound to be weary after his long trek home from South America. Anything can happen in a tourney with so many stars, but Bobby should come through the winner."

when he three-putted. After that he had nothing but pars.

Thomson was shaky from the start and had to make several remarkable recoveries to keep his score as low as he did. On the eighth or sixty-second hole he might easily have taken a six or a seven when he had to play his second shot through a 6-inch opening between two trees.

Wood, the perennial runner-up, made a stout bid with his 68. It was the lowest round of the day and earned him $100 in "lap" money. He was out in 34, getting a birdie on the fifth hole with a perfect approach. On the final nine Wood had three birdies. He knocked a long iron stiff at the twelfth, canned a long putt on the fourteenth, and ran down another long and curling one on the home green. His only lapse was on the fifteenth when he hooked his tee shot into the trees and dropped a stroke to par.

Recovery Assured Burned Princeton Football Player

By International News Service

Indianapolis, Jan. 6.—David Allerdice, jr., Princeton University All-Star football player who was burned yesterday in a heroic but futile attempt to save his mother and 7-year-old brother from flames, tonight was assured of recovery unless complications set in.

His burns were more painful than serious, physicians said. Some fear was expressed, however, that the gridiron star might contract pneumonia. He recently recovered from influenza.

David Allerdice, sr., whom the younger Allerdice managed to drag from their burning home before rushing back for the mother and brother, was in more serious condition from burns but was expected to recover.

The dead were Mrs. Cordelia Allerdice, 43, and her son, Anthony, 7.

Hoppe Wins First Block of Match

Chicago, Jan. 6 (INS).—Willie Hoppe, the 53-year-old billiard maestro from New York, today defeated Jake Schaefer, 60 to 28, in the first block of their 480-point match for the world three-cushion championship. The match will continue for three more days.

Hoppe, the defending champion, got a running start by knocking off eight billiards in the third frame. It was his high run for the afternoon. Schaefer went scoreless until the third inning, when he ran three. In the nineteenth inning, he ran four, his high run of the day.

Hoppe appeared to be in top form. On two occasions he scored in seven consecutive innings. From the eighteenth through the twenty-fourth inning, he marked up 20 billiards.

Owls' Strong Five Meets Johns Hopkins

3 Victories Behind Wilson Teachers as Game Occurs Tonight

Having chalked up three straight victories and fast earning a reputation as one of the best little college teams in this section, Wilson Teachers College quintet meets Johns Hopkins tonight, borrowing the University of Maryland Coliseum for the occasion.

The Owls and the Blue Jays clash at 8:30 p. m. following a preliminary between the Maryland freshmen and Woodrow Wilson High School.

The Wilson College five has scored successive triumphs over Gallaudet, Randolph Macon and Bridgewater after losing its first two games to strong opposition. Albright and the unbeaten University of Baltimore.

Johns Hopkins boasts victories over Gallaudet and Maryland to date.

Doc White will start his usual five, every man a potential high scorer—Hal Ifshin and Eddie Laake, forwards; Ernie Cole, center, and Ray Holben and Charley Clark, guards.

American University takes to the road today for a game tonight with Elizabethtown, Pa., tomorrow with Dickinson College and a Mason-Dixon Conference clash Thursday with the University of Delaware.

Catholic University and Maryland have final warm-up practices listed today for tomorrow's post-holiday openers, the Cardinals visiting Annapolis for Navy's opener at 4:30 p. m. while Maryland will help Penn open its season in Philadelphia.

The action was forced by Asa Bushnell, of the Eastern Collegiate Officials Association, in the ruling that any members of that body working professional football games next fall automatically will be barred from working colege contests.

Such a ruling already exists in the Big Ten and in the Pacific Coast Conference.

Evashevski Calls

General Manager Jack Espey, of the Redskins, said last night, however, that the National League will pay its officials stipulated salaries but will not object to their working any college game they so desire.

Meanwhile, Forest Evashevski, the Redskins' No. 1 1941 college draftee, called at Redskin offices yesterday for a conference with Owner George Marshall and expressed his appreciation for being drafted by the 1940 Eastern division champions.

Contract matters were not discussed, although Evashevski evidenced a desire to play pro football. He told Redskin bosses that all he is thinking about just now is completing his college career at Michigan. The great Wolverine blocking back who paved the way to so many of Tommy Harmon's touchdown runs was in town to attend the Touchdown Club's annual banquet last night at the Willard Hotel.

Red Rolfe in Hospital After Tonsillectomy

New York, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Paul Krichell, Yankee scout, returned today from Penacock, N. H., and reported that Red Rolfe, Yankee third baseman, is in the hospital recovering from a recent tonsillectomy and will go South with the Yankees.

Krichell said that Rolfe believed his tonsils poisoned his system and caused his slump last season. It had been reported that Rolfe was considering retiring from baseball, but Krichell, said that the third baseman was looking forward to retaining his third-base job.

Congressional Club Sale Is Reported

Trustees filed a report of the sale of the Congressional Country Club to a new organization, Congressional Club, Inc., yesterday in the Montgomery County Circuit Court in Rockville. The price was $270,000.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Administration, is head of the new corporation.

Unless cause to the contrary is shown in a 30-day period, the sale will be adjudged final.

The proposal by a group of the second-trust bondholders to submit another reorganization plan is scheduled for a hearing in the Federal Court in Baltimore on Friday. Federal Judge W. Calvin Chestnut signed an order there last week dissolving injunction proceedings brought by the bondholders against the club.

The club was sold at auction four months ago.

Colonial Frosh Beat FBI, 47 to 34

George Washington University's freshmen followed out the winning ways of their varsity last night at G. W. gymnasium by routing the Federal Bureau of Investigation five, 47 to 34. Johnny Schumacher led the Colonial attack with 11 points.

Hockey Luncheon Honors New Yorker

Al Frazin, publicity man of the New York Rovers and assistant to President Thomas Lockhart of the Eastern League, will fly to Washington today for tonight's match with the New York Rovers at Riverside Stadium.

Frazin will be guest of honor at a luncheon of the Ice Hockey Writers of Washington today at 12:30 o'clock.

In addition to the luncheon itself the Ice Hockey Writers are to elect a chairman to succeed Eddie Gilmore, who is en route to London, England, where he is to serve as a feature war correspondent for the Associated Press.

Bill Cowley Retains National Hockey Lead

Montreal, Jan. 6 (AP).—Boston's Bill Cowley remained at the head of the parade of National Hockey League point getters during the last week, but it was Phil Watson, of the New York Rangers, who made the big advance.

Four goals and an assist for 5 points moved Watson from fourth place into second spot with 23 points, four less than Cowley, who was out of the game for a week. Watson's splurge put him 1 point ahead of Toronto's Syl Apps, who added one goal to his previous total for 22 points.

Anglers Await Storm Effect On Fish Catch

By the United Press

Stuart, Fla., Jan. 6.—Anglers who had boated almost 1,500 sailfish in the Atlantic off here in the past nine days tonight waited to see what effect storm winds sweeping along the coast would have on the great concentration of fish.

Veteran fishermen believed the stormy weather might carry the run southward or break it up.

Today's fishing in the 8-mile area off St. Lucie inlet, which virtually was alive with sailfish, was curtailed by the unsettled weather. Returning anglers reported the great school of fish showed no signs of diminishing.

It was impossible to obtain an accurate check of daily catches, because of the scattered docking points of the boats. The week-end catch was estimated conservatively at almost 500.

The sailfish, apparently drawn from their habitat in the Gulf stream by large schools of food fish a few miles off St. Lucie inlet, were described as the greatest concentration of game fish ever seen.

Purdue's Champs Lose to Indiana

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 6 (AP).—Purdue's hopes of winning two Big Ten championships in a row received a severe jolt tonight when Illinois defeated the Boilermakers, 49 to 34, in the initial conference test for both teams.

The defending champions rolled along smoothly to a five-point lead in the first half, but then the Illini began showering the basket with goals. In the second half Purdue was able to count only 14 points while the Champaign quintet poured 34 points through the hoop to open the title campaign with a resounding upset.

Cleveland Keystone Combination Signed

Cleveland, Jan. 6 (AP).—Ray Mack, Cleveland second baseman, disclosed tonight that the Indians' keystone combination of Mack and Lou Boudreau have signed their 1941 contracts.

Jack Dempsey to Edit Liberty Sports Section

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Liberty Magazine announced today it had appointed former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey as sports editor of the publication.

The announcement said Dempsey would "write on timely sports topics and will supervise other sports stories for the magazine."

Buses to Carry Workers Direct To Meade Jobs

Through bus service from the District to points within Fort Meade, expected to effect an estimated 3 000 Washington workers on construction projects there, began last night after a conference of army officials and representatives of six bus companies yesterday.

Service from Washington to gates of the Maryland army post began last Tuesday (December 31) by Safeway Trails, Inc., but buses until yesterday's conference were not permitted entrance into the fort.

Daily schedules of ten trips, followed last week, will be doubled as of today, with buses running approximately every half an hour begining at 5:15 a. m., Safeway Manager L. B. Schnebly announced last night.

Additional service will be inaugurated to Fort Meade by the Greyhound Bus Co., today at 6:05 a. m., with eight scheduled daily trips each way at two-hour intervals, General Manager L. C. Major said.

Several hundred packers from all parts of the State are expected to attend the two-day annual Maryland Canning Crops School, sponsored by the University of Maryland horticulture department, opening today at College Park.

The opening session includes talks by Dr. C. H. Mahoney, head of the department and director of the school; Floyd Winter, of the Associated Seed Growers; and Dr. E. P. Walls, of the University of Maryland.

The delegates will be greeted by Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Maryland Extension Service, at luncheon, when a talk will also be delivered by Dr. R. B. Corbett, director of the Maryland Experiment Station.

County Operation Of Montgomery Incinerator Urged

County operation of the proposed incinerator for Montgomery County, Md., was urged in a resolution adopted by the Bethesda (Md.) Chamber of Commerce at a meeting last night in the Bethesda County Building.

The chamber went on record as favoring erection of an incinerator, or incinerators, for disposal of county trash and garbage and abolition of dumps but urged that the county commissioners retain control of the project rather than have the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission perform the function.

The chamber also went on record as favoring county collection of refuse if it can be done without increase in taxes. A tentative report by J. Phillip Schaefer, chairman of the Christmas Treasure Barrel celebration sponsored by the chamber, showed a profit of $200.

Arlington Clerk's Fees $12,994 Above Costs

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—Benjamin Laycock, clerk of Arlington County, has notified State Auditor McCarthy Downs that his office earned fees $12,944.33 in excess of the costs of office operation during 1940. Downs said this amount would be among the highest in the State. One-third of the excess in fees goes to the State's general fund and two-thirds reverts to the locality.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Frank H. Mitchell, 1626 K st. nw., plaintiff, vs. Suffern Co., Inc., a N. Y. corporation, and Ernest S. Suffern, 89 Lincoln st., Montclair, N. J., defendants. No. 8233, Civil. The object of this suit is to establish plaintiff's lawful right to personal property within the jurisdiction of this court pursuant to Sec. 105, D. C. Code, 1940, and to secure the appointment of a receiver to distribute the same. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 3d day of January, 1941, ordered that the defendants cause their appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. BOLITHA J. LAWS, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By C. B. COFLIN, Assistant Clerk. 7,14,21

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Notice of Limited Partnership: No. 119. Notice is hereby given that the partners hereinafter named, now being all of the general and special partners of a limited partnership formed pursuant to the laws of the State of New York, and desiring to continue to do business in the District of Columbia as a limited partnership, have filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court for the District of Columbia a certificate of limited partnership which contains the terms thereof. The name of the firm under which such partnership is to be conducted is SMITH, BARNEY & CO. The general nature of the business intended to be transacted is that of underwriters, distributors and custodians of, and brokers and dealers in, stocks, bonds and other securities and investments of every kind and character, including grain and other commodities. The names of all the general and special partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their respective places of residence are as follows: (General Partners) Henry E. Butler, P. O. Box 111, Red Bank, N. J.; Philemon Dickinson, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia County, Pa.; Edwin A. Fish, Locust Valley, L. I. N. Y.; John W. Castles, Convent, N. J.; (General Partners) Joseph R. Swan, 435 E. 52nd St., N. Y., N. Y.; Radcliffe Cheston, Jr., Oreland, Pa.; Charles S. Cheston, Skippack Pike, Whitemarsh, Pa.; J. Ford Johnson, Jr., Ambassador Hotel, Park Ave. and 51st St., N. Y., N. Y.; John W. Cutler, 58 E. 80th St., N. Y., N. Y.; Edwin A. Fish, Locust Valley, L. I., N. Y.; Burnett Walker, 1021 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y.; Charles B. Harding, Rumson, N. J.; Edward B. Smith, Jr., "Sweetwaters," Providence Rd., Edgemont, Pa.; Irving D. Fish, Fox Run Lane, Greenwich, Conn.; Fred E. Koechlein, 641 Union Ave., Elizabeth, N. J.; W. Edwin Williams, 900 Charlotte Rd., Plainfield, N. J.; Edward C. Sayers, Washington Lane, Meadowbrook, Pa.; Ralph B. Johnson, 50 E. 10th St., N. Y., N. Y.; Wm. Barclay Harding, Holmdel, N. J.; Harcourt Amory, Ipswich, Mass.; Ogden Phipps, Roslyn, L. I., N. Y.; J. Ritchie Kimball, R. F. D. No. 2, Morristown, N. J.; Karl Weisheit, 221 Blvd., Mt. Lakes, N. J.; Phillip W. Brown, Haddon Rd., Scarsdale, N. Y.; Sidney F. Tyler, Rydal, Montgomery County, Pa. The amount of capital which each special partner shall have contributed to the partnership is as follows: Henry E. Butler, $500,000; Philemon Dickinson, $400,000; Edwin A. Fish, $500,000; and John W. Castles, $200,000. The period at which the partnership is to commence and the period at which it is to terminate are as follows: The partnership formed as of the close of business on Dec. 31, 1937, shall continue from and after the close of business on Dec. 31, 1940, for the term of three years to and including Dec. 31, 1943, and its membership shall be constituted as set forth herein from and after Dec. 31, 1940, and shall continue to and including Dec. 31, 1943, subject to earlier termination upon certain contingencies set forth in the aforesaid certificate. Filing the certificate as aforesaid and this publication are occasioned by the retirement of Henry E. Butler and John W. Castles as general partners, and their admittance as special partners as of the close of business on Dec. 31, 1940.

Governors Island in New York harbor was known to the Indians as the "land where the nut trees grow."

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"At our last meeting we discussed the new discount rates, domestic bonds, the business index, freight car loadings, and how much it costs to clothe a wife these days!"

with Glynn

When the former Louise Hollinger, of Counsel Paul Porter's office at WJSV, was married on December 28 to Clayton Miller, of the Department of Agriculture, it was the second marriage among WJSV's feminine contingent in eight years.

In fact, there was talk among the young women about a WJSV jinx. But that Miss Hollinger's marriage definitely broke it has been pretty positively shown.

For within the few days since that event:

Miss Toni Poston, of Arch McDonald's office, has come in wearing a diamond ring, has announced her engagement to Ernest McIver, jr., member of the staff of the Fredericksburg Free Lance-Star.

Miss Carolyn Hardie, assistant to Mrs. Lucile Cohan, WJSV's Nancy Dixon, also bediamond-ringed, announced hers to Raymond F. Bloszies, co-pilot of Eastern Air Lines.

Robert Baker, assistant to John Heiney, WJSV's sales promotion director, has announced that he's to be married January 11 to Miss Helen Reindollar, of Baltimore, personnel directrix of Montgomery-Ward's there.

As WJSV's "Labor News Review" entered its eighth year last Saturday, Albert Dennis, its impresario, found himself right back where he started from in a way. Time of the oldest labor broadcast in the Nation has been shifted from 11:15 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., the same time he had way back in 1934.

Airport Pays WPA Labor Half Scale

Workmen Receive Twice Relief Rate From Contractors

Relief workers at the new National Airport are paid one-half as much as laborers employed by private contractors on the project, Federal officials admitted yesterday, but contended that the system employs nearly twice as many jobless men.

Officials of the United States Engineers Office, the Public Roads Administration and other Federal agencies responsible for construction of the airport explained that all contracts provided for the use of certain amounts of relief labor paid "security" wages of 40 cents an hour from WPA funds and under WPA regulations.

Relief workers, of which 3,000 are employed at the airport, are all common laborers. In order to employ as many relief workers as possible, within the limits of contract quotas, much of the work at the airport has been done by hand. More machines would have been used and fewer men employed, officials said, if contractors had been required to hire all labor used and to pay union rates of 80 cents an hour for unskilled hands.

Security Union Protests

Aside from the main purpose of providing the Capital with a suitable airport, the project was looked upon as a means of providing work for men on relief, it was explained. A large part of the construction funds came from the Works Projects Administration, and the law requires the bulk of WPA money to be used for labor, whereas funds of the Public Works Administration and other Federal agencies involved in the project can be applied to materials and contract costs.

Employment of WPA workers at the airport, side by side with workers for private contractors, but at half the latter's pay, was attacked yesterday by the American Security Union, WPA employes' organization headed by David Lasser.

The union charged a "most flagrant injustice." A national survey, the union declared in an article in the latest edition of its publication, lar wage differentials as prevalent Security News, has disclosed simithroughout the country where relief and contract laborers are employed on the same defense jobs.

Work 10 Hours Longer

"The situation cannot be defended by logic, justice, the interest of national defense or democracy," the article declared. "The American Security Union contends that because WPA workers have been drawn from relief rolls they are treated as second-class citizens in their wages, working conditions and rights as workers."

In addition to being paid at twice the rate of relief workers, common laborers hired by contractors are permitted to work a 40-hour week for total weekly wages of $32, plus pay for overtime, the union stated. The average relief worker is permitted a 30-hour week for a wage of $12, the union said.

A Public Roads Administration official stated that one of the airport projects cited by the union absorbed 18,000 man-hours of relief labor. Had private contract labor been used exclusively, less than 10,000 man-hours would have accomplished, with the aid of machines, the work performed by relief labor, he contended.

The union proposed scrapping WPA as a "relief program" and replacing it with a nonrelief "Defend America Works Program" to employ 3,000,000 jobless at "decent wages" on jobs needed for National defense.

Stravinsky, Here to Conduct, Likes His Music in Person

Radio All Right for Some Programs But Not for Symphony, He Says After Rehearsing District Orchestra

"I like to eat only fresh meat," said Igor Stravinsky, the Russian composer.

But music was the meat he referred to as he stood backstage at Constitution Hall with his wife after putting the National Symphony Orchestra through a rehearsal yesterday.

"So, radio is fine for war news, but it's terrible for music," he continued.

It was dinner time, and the synonyms of the diminutive man who is hailed as "the greatest of modern composers" were chiefly gastronomic.

At present Stravinsky's home is "a drawing room on the Santa Fe Railroad," but he hopes soon to have a permanent home in Los Angeles.

The movies?

Stravinsky blinked and smiled and shrugged. "Perhaps for money. But not with much appetite. Movie music is largely background music anyway."

His tours as a conductor have taken him to all sections of the country, but when he takes the conductor's stand with the National Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall tomorrow evening it will be the first time he has conducted before a Washington audience.

And audiences, naturally, interest him greatly. They're all different in this country, he says, but they're all "very sympathetic." Chicago audiences are probably the best, he believes.

Of his own work—such pieces as "Firebird," "Le Sacre du Printemps," "Scherzo Fantastique"—he says "I am not conservative. I have nothing to conserve."

Contemporary composers interest him even though he does not always agree with them. "I can't understand this music," he said, referring to Schonberg's compositions. "He has a very different kind of musical mentality from mine." One of his American favorites is Walter Piston, of Harvard.

His name may soon be added to those of other ASCAP composers, Stravinsky said. What does he think of that fight? He shrugged. "It's too complicated for me to understand."

Stravinsky doesn't argue, he composes. He's at work on a composition now. But that's a secret he won't share with the public.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend presents Jarmila Novotna, soprano (William Tarrasch, accompanist) and Charles Kullman, tenor (Stuart Ross, accompanist) in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom Monday morning. Program of duets and arias by Puccini, Mozart, Dvorak and Verdi, and songs by Martini, Respighi, Massenet, Rakhmaninov, Hegeman, Dobson and Dvorak.

Speaking yesterday to the large audience assembled in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel for the opening of her series of musicales, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend broke the disappointing news that Richard Crooks had been prevented by sudden illness from making his eleventh appearance here under her sponsorship. "In amends for his involuntary absence," she said, "he has sent his friend and colleague, Charles Kullman, to take his place. Inasmuch as Mr. Kullman made his European debut in 'La Boheme' with Jarmila Novotna, whom I have the honor and pleasure to introduce to Washington today, the occasion is a happy one for them, and I hope that the substitution will meet with your favorable acceptance."

It was in the closing scene from the first act of "La Boheme" that the Czech soprano and the American tenor began their joint recital, and they ended the program with the duets, "Un di, felice eternea" and "Parigi, o cara, noi lasceremo," from "La Traviata." The agreeable blending of their voices and the consentience of their emotional shadings made their readings a pleasure to the ear. They both used just enough acting to give the scenes dramatic verisimilitude without leaving the frame of a recital.

Jarmila Novotna is endowed with both personable and vocal charm. Her voice has a delightful lyric quality, and she sustains it suavely on the breath. Her singing combines the tonal freshness of a novice with the refined phrasing of an experienced artist. One was particularly impressed by the accuracy of her intonation and the clarity of her diction.

Her choice of songs brought together novelties and familiar airs. From Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro" she selected "Voi che sapete" and "Non so piu cosa son," which she invested with delicate graces of phrase. These were followed by the beautiful aria, "Mam zlate vlaski," from Dvorak's "Rusalka." In a later group she offered Dvorak's "Kdzi mne stara matka" ("Songs My Mother Taught Me") and two Czech folksongs, "Tece voda" and "Nadeje."

Mr. Kullman, whose vibrant voice was in excellent state, presented only one unfamiliar song, Respighi's "Invito alla danza." His other offerings were Martini il Tedesco's "Plaisir d'amour," Massenet's "Ouvre tes yeux bleus," Rakmaninov's "At Night," Hageman's "Do not go, my love," and Dobson's "Sea Fever."

Ordnance Major's Four Pistols Stolen

Police were on the lookout last night for a thief who took four pistols from the automobile of a War Department official.

Maj. Donald C. Fabel, ordnance officer, reported his car was parked at Massachusetts Avenue and North Capitol Street. The loot consisted of three Colt automatics, a single-shot target pistol and 500 cartridges.

Van Court to Quit Hospital Here

The condition of Albert Van Court, jr., of Los Angeles, Princeton student injured by a hit-and-run automobile early Christmas morning, was reported as "much improved" yesterday at Emergency Hospital. It was said the young man would leave soon for home.

Young Van Court, son of an investment banker, was struck while crossing Massachusetts and Wisconsin Avenues from midnight service at Washington Cathedral. His companion, Miss Betty Dunbar Drayton, 19, of 4625 Garfield Street Northwest, was less seriously hurt.

The youth was a member of Princeton's Triangle Club, which presented "Many a Slip" at the National Theater the day before Christmas. His father flew here from Los Angeles as soon as he learned of his son's injury.

Gov. Lehman To Attend Inauguration

Committee Reports Rooms for 5,000; More Being Sought

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York is coming to Washington January 20 to see his predecessor take a third oath of office as President, the Inaugural Committee reported yesterday.

Lehman, who succeeded President Roosevelt as New York's chief executive in 1933, is the twelfth Governor who has accepted a bid to take part in the inauguration ceremonies.

His aides in Washington, the committee announced, will be Lieut. Col. Nelson M. Walker, U. S. A., and Lieut. Comdr. A. W. Wheelock, U. S. N.

Meanwhile, the Inauguration Hospitality Committee, headed by Edgar Morris, reported that they had located rooms for about 5,000 inaugural visitors, and are now looking for more.

The committee said 1,185 Washington home owners had listed 2,550 rooms as available for visitors. Headquarters of the committee is in the Willard Hotel.

Morris announced appointment of these new vice chairmen for the housing and hospitality committee: John Saul and Harvey L. Jones, Washington real estate men; L. P. McLachlen, president of the McLachlen Trust Co., and L. Gardner Moore, president of the Washington Hotel Association.

Melvin D. Hilldreth, ticket chairman, said that the demand for grandstand seats for the inauguration celebration had made it necessary to set Friday as the deadline for holding reservations. Ticket reservations which are not taken up by that date will be canceled and the tickets sold, Hilldreth said.

New York to Send 100 Police

New York, Jan. 6.—The New York police department will send 100 men to Washington to help police the inaugural ceremonies January 20, Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine said today. The detachment, requested by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, head of the Washington police, will be commanded by Inspector Arthur W. Wallander, of the emergency service division, who will be assisted by Capt. Frank Riley, of the Midtown squad.

Heiress to Wed Third Time

CONSUELO VANDERBILT, descendant of the original "Commodore" Cornelius Vanderbilt, will be married January 15 to John Warburton, it was disclosed yesterday. Only a few friends will attend the ceremony at the bride's New York home. It will be the third marriage for both. The bride, daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, was first married in 1924 to Earl E. T. Smith, father of her two daughters. Divorced in 1933, she became the wife of Henry Gassaway Davis in 1937. That marriage was dissolved last April

Dr. Kinsolving Asks Support For Mission

200 Ministers Hear Talk on Conference Beginning Feb. 2

Dr. A. L. Kinsolving, nationally known Episcopal leader, yesterday urged more than 200 Protestant ministers at a Washington Ministerial Union meeting to support the National Christian Mission's eight-day conference here next month. He spoke at Foundry Methodist Church.

Held here once before, five years ago, the conference will open February 2 in Constitution Hall and meetings on successive days will be held in six District Protestant churches, with daily young people's seminars held in Calvary Baptist Church.

Speakers will include Dr. Kinsolving and other members of the National Christian Mission, which is sponsoring similar conferences in 22 United States cities this year.

The former pastor of Boston's Trinity Episcopal Church, Dr. Kinsolving lauded the "inspiring effect" of the interdenominational conferences in other cities and urged pastors here to request their congregations to attend the District conclave.

Others who spoke yesterday were Dr. R. H. Miller, patsor of the National City Christian Church; Dr. Edward H. Pruden, president of the Federation of Churches and pastor of the First Baptist Church; Dr. John W. Rustin, of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, and Dr. W. S. Abernathy, of Calvary Baptist Church, all of whom urged support of the coming conference.

Presiding at the meeting was Dr. J. H. Hollister, patsor of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and head of the Washington Ministerial Union.

E. S. Burruss, Capital Artist, Engraver, Dies

Funeral to Be Today For One of Last Chalk Plate Specialists

Elmer Sanford Burrus, 69, artist and one of the last living chalk engravers, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after a short illness.

MR. BURRUSS

Mr. Burrus was born in Louisa, Va., on April 1, 1871, and migrated to Texas as a young man. For many years he traveled throughout the Middle West, working as an artist with numerous newspapers and photo-engraving plants. He was a special writer and cartoonist with the Arkansas Gazette at Little Rock, Ark.

Mr. Burrus was employed by an engraving plant in Philadelphia before coming to Washington in 1917, when he joined the Maurice Joyce Engraving Co. His first wife, Genevieve Munson Burrus, died in 1919.

In 1929 Mr. Burrus married Miss Bertha Ennis, who survives him in addition to a son by his first marriage, Randolph Munson Burrus. Both survivors are residents of Washington.

Since 1930 Mr. Burrus has been employed as an artist by various Government agencies, including the Geodetic Survey and Walter Reed Hospital, where he did enlarged drawings of microbes. He painted many landscapes and was an airbrush expert. His home was at 7823 Thirteenth Street Northwest.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, followed by burial in Glenwood Cemetery.
